Old Methodist Protestant Parsonage
Quantico
Private

c. 1883

Although this house has been extensively remodeled during the past few years with a distinct change in the character of the original design, it contributes to the historic nature of Quantico as the former Methodist Protestant parsonage, built around 1883. The two-story, side hall/parlor house was a modest sized dwelling when it was erected, served by a two-story dining room/kitchen wing.

The trustees of the Methodist Protestant church purchased this lot from Virginia A. C. Bounds in July 1883 for $325. A clause in the deed mentions that the 7/8 acre lot is intended to be used for "a parsonage lot for the M. P. Church." Presumably the congregation financed construction of the parsonage shortly after their purchase of the property. The house remained a Methodist Protestant parsonage until the early 1930s when a new gambrel roofed house was erected closer to the church on the north side of town. In later years, between 1945 and 1973, the house was the residence of Vernon Lee and Hattie Bailey.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The old Methodist Protestant parsonage stands on the east side of Main Street in Quantico, Wicomico County, Maryland. The two-story, side hall/parlor frame house faces west with the gable roof oriented on a north/south axis.

Built around 1883, the two-story, three-bay frame dwelling has been reworked extensively during the last few years. Supported on a new brick foundation, the house is clad with vinyl siding and the medium pitched roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the main block is a long two-story dining room and kitchen wing.

The west (main) elevation is a asymmetrical three-bay facade with a side entrance and single-pane sash windows. The front door is a replacement and it is framed by two-light sidelights and a two-light transom. A shed roofed turned post porch shelters the first floor. Trimming the base of the gable roof is a cornice featuring bold dentil blocks that were added during the remodeling.

A large exterior brick chimney, added during the last few years, rises against the north gable end. The south gable end is marked by a pointed arch window that lights the attic. Attached to the back of the main block is a two-story, three-bay wing.

The interior was not seen.

Due to the remodeled nature of the late nineteenth century house, the property is classified under Category C, which identifies structures where alterations should be considered carefully since neighboring properties fall in Categories A and/or B.
