Thomas J. Truitt House
Salisbury
Private

c. 1880-1890

Architectural details place the construction of this tee-shaped Gay Street house during the third quarter of the nineteenth century, probably around 1880-90. The asymmetrical front elevation, the two-story pavilion, the turned post front porch, and the extended eaves with stick brackets are common features for houses erected during the last decades of the nineteenth century.

The land record research on this house and lot indicates the Truitt family owned the property from March 1919 until October 1984. In March 1919 the house was moved from its original site on North Division to the east end of the same lot owned by St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church. An article that appeared on March 27 stated,

Mr. Thomas J. Truitt has purchased from the Vestry of St. Peters Church the house and lot located on Gay street. This is the house which formerly stood on Division street and was moved back to occupy its present site. The lot purchased Mr. Truitt is about sixty-five feet on Gay street extending back around one hundred and seventy-five feet. We understand Mr. Truitt will make further improvements in the property to occupy it as a residence.

Thomas J. Truitt advertised in the same paper his cemetery monument business, stating that he was a "manufacturer of FINE ITALIAN STATUARY." He also imported a host of monuments, headstones, tablets, vaults, and cemetery lot enclosures. His business was located on East Church Street.

The St. Peter's P. E. Church vestry had owned this parcel since 1873, when Benjamin Parsons stated in his will, "Also I give and devise to said Vestry for the use of St. Peters Church in Salisbury, the Lot of ground in the rear and east of the Parsonage Lot." While a parsonage or rectory can be documented as early as the 1850s on the Division Street lot, the architectural details of the dwelling at 306 Gay Street indicate it was erected several decades later.

Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Thomas J. Truitt house, also known as the Protestant Episcopal Church rectory, stands at 306 Gay Street in the center of the Newtown historic district in Salisbury, Wicomico County, Maryland. The two-story, tee-shaped frame house faces east with the principal gable roof oriented on a north/south axis. This house was relocated to this site in March 1919 from its original site on North Division Street.

Estimated to date around 1880-90, the two-story, three-bay frame house is supported on a low brick foundation, and the exterior is clad with a combination of plain weatherboards and fishscale shingles. The steeply pitched gable roofs are covered with slate shingles. Piercing the roofline are narrow single flue brick stove chimneys.

The east (main) elevation is an asymmetrical three-bay facade with a projecting cross-wing of the tee-plan house facing the street. The two-story, gable-front wall is dominated by a two-story, three-sided bay pierced by single-pane sash windows on each floor. Between the first and second floors the pavilion is sheathed with fishscale shingles. The top of the pavilion is covered by a cross-gabled shed roof, and decorative brackets enrich the soffit of each corner. The gable end is covered with fishscale shingles, and center in the wall is a replacement attic window. The edge of the roof is finished with an extended eave and open soffits.

The entrance is sheltered by a single-story turned post porch with a turned baluster handrail. The partially glazed door is topped by a two-pane transom, and the adjacent bay is filled with a single-pane sash window. The second floor is lighted by two single-pane sash windows.

The north wall is a single bay deep with a single-pane sash window on the first and second floors. The gable end is covered with fishscale shingles and pierced by a replacement window. The extended eave features a stick bracket at the base of the roof.

The south side of the tee-shaped house is four bays across with single-pane sash windows lighting the first and second floors.

The interior was not seen.

The house is a significant example of a mid-size late nineteenth century dwelling with much of its original exterior fabric intact.

The property deserves listing in Category A.

Dec. 15, 1977

Dear Mary:

I have made the effort and have at last found out some history of our house (306 Gay St.) It was the rectery of St. Peter's Church, and was located on North Division Street, where the Webb house stands now, beside your home. In March, 1919 it was moved back/to ^{from Division} St. Gay Street and turned around so that it faces Gay Street. My father bought the house on March 19, 1919, and we have lived in it every since. There is a record of the deed in the Wicomico County Court House.

I went to the Maryland Room in the Wicomico County Library and found the following in Polly White Burnett's book "A Bi-centennial Anniversary History of Saint Peter's Church, Salisbury, Maryland" on page 14 . "When the Rev. William Fulton arrived in the Parish in December 1869 he and his large family moved into a Parish-owned rectery on Division St. near Parson's Alley. The carriage house in the rear had been converted into a Parochial School". I do not know, and have not been able to find out when the rectery was built, but it was in existance in 1869, making it over 100 years old.

I have heard several very old people in Salisbury talk about the school that was located about where our house stands now. It was moved and is on the property we own on the corner of Mill & Isabella Streets. It is over a hundred yrs. old and should be recorded as one of the old buildings in Salisbury.

Helen and I are anxious that this history be recorded in the proper place in the Newtown Association.

Sincerely

May H. Truitt

The majority of the places of business in Greenwood have resolved to close their places of business at 2 p. m. except on Saturday nights.

Cadmus L. Phillips, who resides on Clayton avenue, Laurel, was awakened from a sound sleep a few nights ago and, on going to investigate the cause, was almost paralyzed with astonishment on beholding the cement pavement in front of his home in a fierce blaze. Further investigation disclosed the fact that some boys in the neighborhood had poured a quantity of gasoline upon the pavement and, after setting it afire, had aroused Mr. Phillips and then, it is supposed, from various hiding places, viewed the "fun."

An enjoyable party, given by Miss Louise German, at her in Laurel, was slightly marred by the theft of the ice cream and cake by some misguiding young men whose arrest and prosecution are threatened. Those present at the party were: Misses Blanche Elliott, Anna Stodley, Leonora Parsons, Blanche Wootten, Mary Allen, Lela Pollitt, Eva Allen, Eloise Rodney, Blanche Workman, Lucille Leates, Messrs. Lee Wootten, Howard Russell, Hayward Pollitt, Webster Pollitt, Loren Ellis, Harold Cook, Chester Wingate, Enos Valliant, Francis Weatherly, and Lyn Melvin.

The band of thieves which have been operating in Seaford for the past month, but which had not broken into a place for about a week, following a reward offered by the town council for their arrest, began operations again Saturday night when they forced an entrance into the home of John Messick, near town. Here they took a desk out of the house to a field, pried it open and took all the contents. They also took a child's bank containing a small sum of money and several other articles. The same night they visited the office of J. E. Bowden & Co., fruit brokers, but were scared off before gaining an entrance.

MARCH TERM OF COURT RECESSES SAT. MORNING

The Dockets Were Fairly Well Cleared—Court Opened in Worcester.

The Circuit Court for Wicomico County which has been in session for two weeks recessed last Saturday, the Judges having to open Court in Snow Hill on Monday. The case of L. E. Jones vs. Elmer C. Williams, growing out of a sale of Mr. Jones against Mr. Williams for libel because of publications inserted in the columns of this paper, several months ago, was finished Friday night after occupying the attention of the Court for two and a half days. The jury returned the verdict for the defendant. Ellegood, Freeny & Wallis represented Mr. Jones and Hon. Joshua W. Miles and Mr. F. Grant Goslee defended Mr. Williams.

Saturday morning the case of William Short for assault and battery was taken up, the party pleading guilty and receiving a fine of $25.00 and costs by the Court.

Just before the Court closed Saturday morning, two boys were tried for larceny. Alvin Campbell was sentenced to one year in the Maryland House of Correction, while Millbourn Willing was paroled in the custody of his mother and two sisters, and especially in the custody of Thomas J. Mumford for a period of two years.

The Petit Jury were all discharged on Saturday morning, and it is not likely that the Court will be called in session again until the July term.

The trial for damages in the case of George L. Powell vs. J. Ernest Shockley, which was to be tried at this term of Court, and which has been moved to Worcester County, will be tried at Snow Hill on Monday next. This case grew out of an accident in which Mr. Powell claims Mr. Shockley ran over information was announced by the Secretary of Treasury, Chase, together with the fact that short-term notes maturing in not over five years, would be issued instead of the longer term bonds. Mr. H. W. Carvis, Salisbury, Md. My Dear Mr. Carvis: We certainly thank you for your very complete and clear report. I can understand the you have raised about as much money as you will likely succeed in raising. I know, however that you will do your very utmost to collect your money. From the figures which you have given me, your total raised would be $4,822.88. If you could make that about $7,000 or $75,000 three hundred, we could arrange to credit the expense to our State Expense account, so that you would get the credit for $5,000. It is possible that some money has been sent to New York before the Campaign which I can credit to you. This I will try to do.

Regarding the standing of Wicomico County with other counties of the State, a complete report will be published at a later date. At the present writing, Wicomico County ranks every county in the States. Worcester, Carolina, Washington, Anne Arundel, Prince Georges, Harford, Carroll, Frederick, Montgomery together have raised their quota. Numerous of the other counties will do so by the time their campaign is complete. To date Baltimore City has raised about $78,000. Money is coming in every day, so that the report is not complete. Virtually all the counties of the State outstripped Baltimore City.

I want to thank you for the good work that you have done, the successful campaign that you have managed. We are entirely satisfied with the showing of Wicomico. It is one of the tremendous need of the Near East which is growing more distressing that prompts me to encourage you to any further effort that you can make.

Cordially yours, JOHN W. MACR, Director.

Delmar School Plans Being Selected

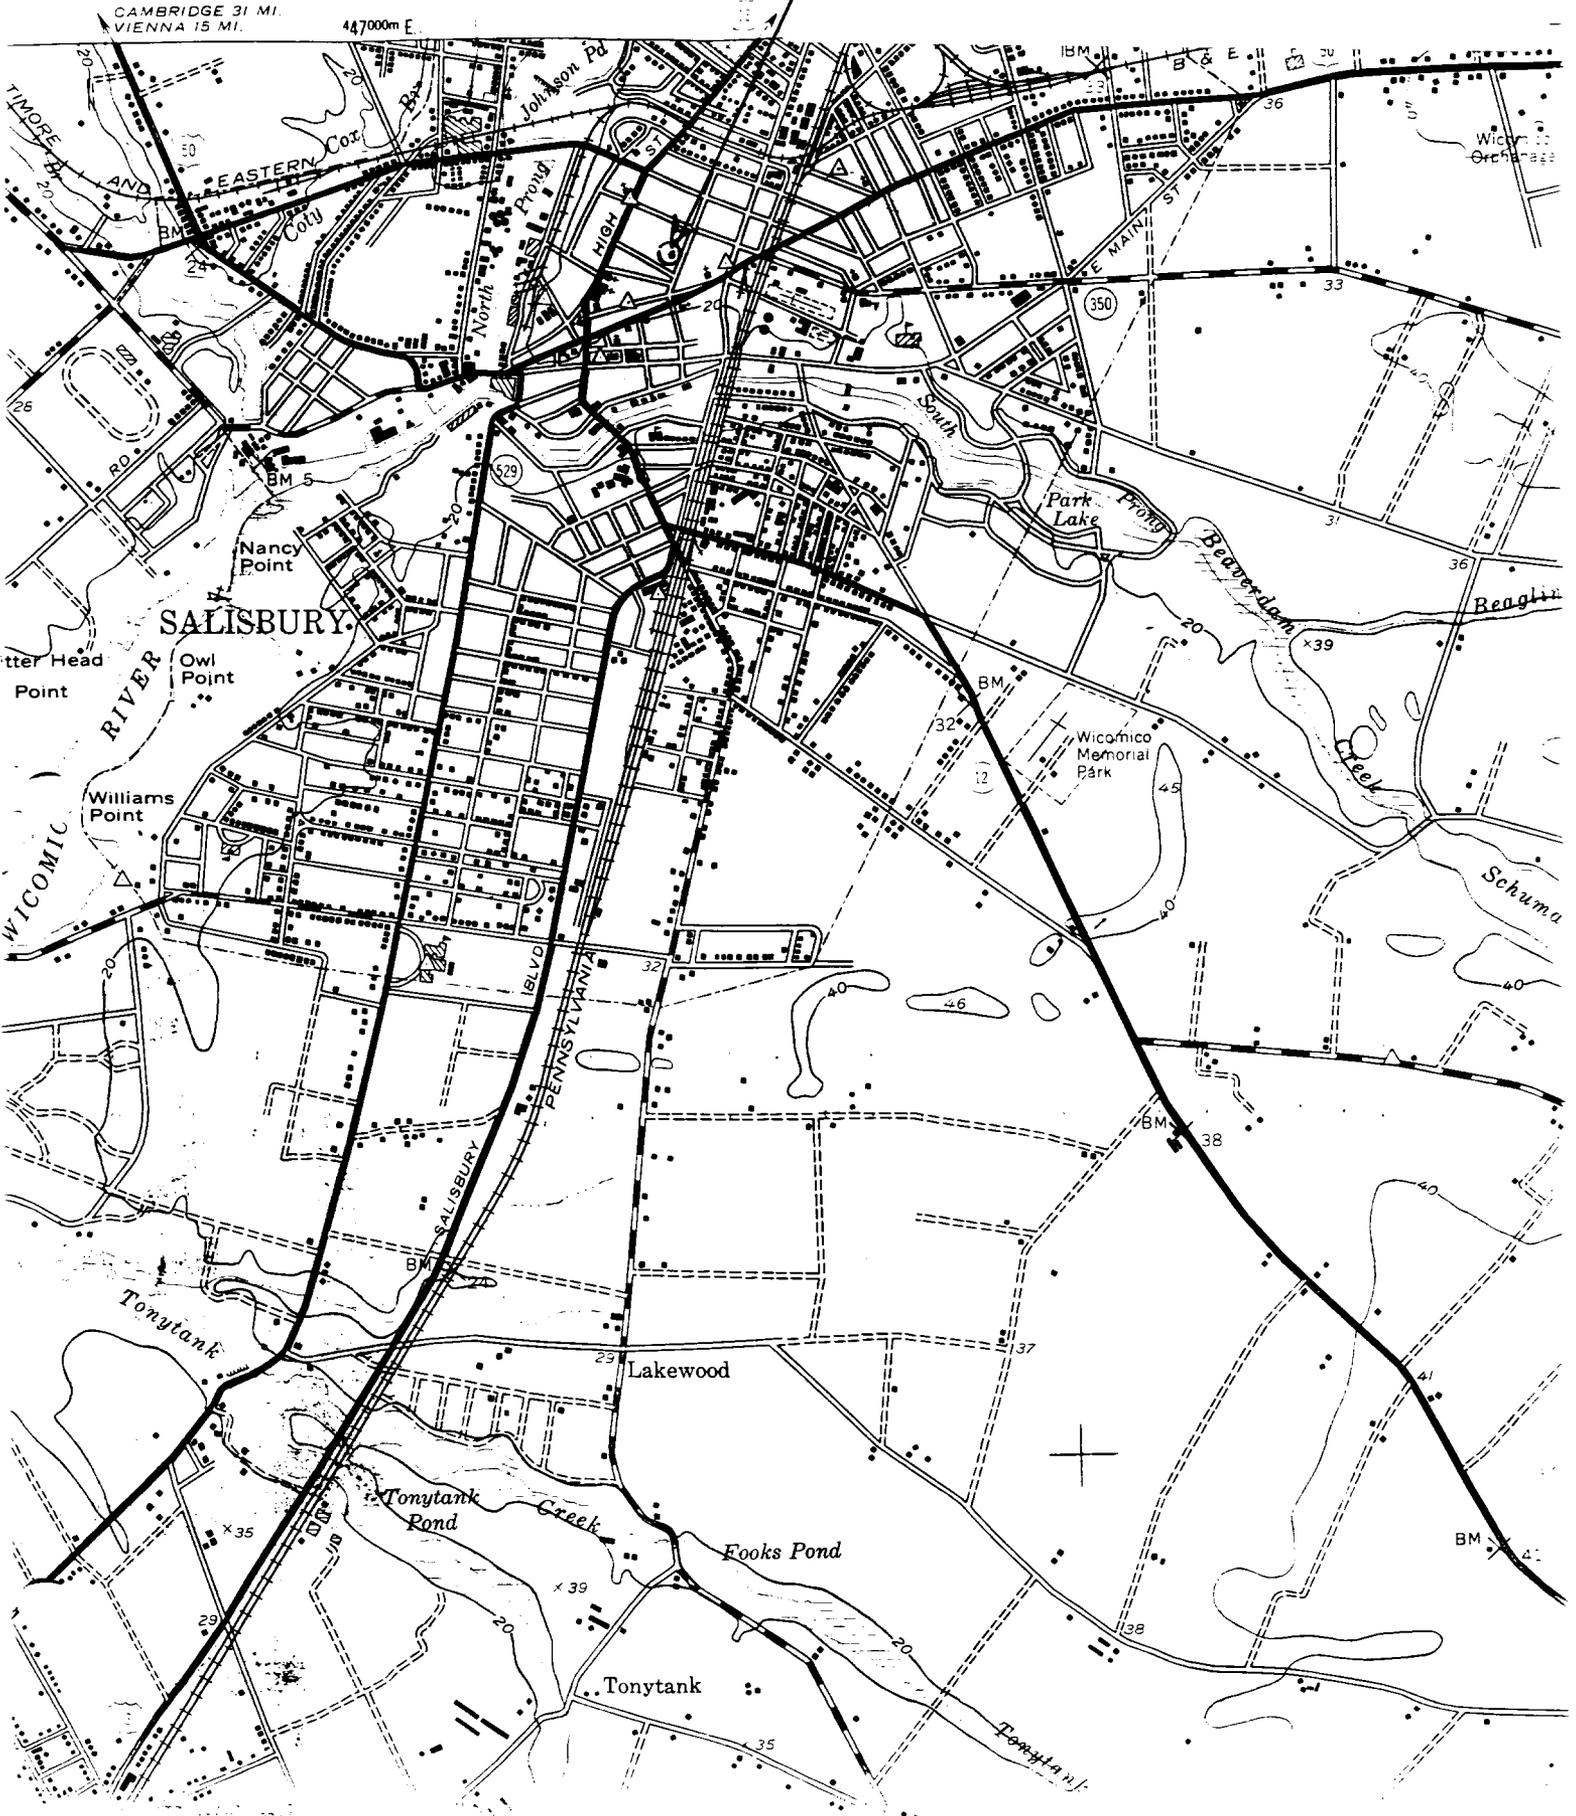

The School Board at a special session held last week went over plan and specifications for the new brick High School at Delmar. Because of the absence from the city of Mr. H. L. Brewington, a member of the Board, final decision on the plans was laid over for a few days, but another meeting will be held in the very near future to finally decide on the plans so as to advertise for bids on the construction of the building. The Board has an appropriation of about $20,000 for this building, and the plans will show one of the most up-to-date high schools in the State, and we feel sure that the people of Delmar will be perfectly satisfied with their buildings when it is completed some time in the Fall. The County Commissioner made special effort to meet the demands of the citizens of Delmar who failed to get their building earlier as was the fate of several other communities in Wicomico, when the Bill to bond the county for the erection of these school houses failed to pass the Legislature last year.
