c. 1890

Defining Snow Hill Road south of Salisbury is a string of two-and-a-half story, cross-gabled frame farmhouses dating from the late nineteenth century. One of these is the Parker farm, south of Nutter's Crossing, which is improved by the late nineteenth-century farmhouse as well as a group of early twentieth-century farm buildings including a three-level sweet potato house. Like most rural farmhouses, the exterior has been remodeled with the application artificial siding. The sweet potato house and a gable-front barn are well preserved structures dating from the early twentieth century. Sweet potatoes were a large cash crop in Wicomico County during the early twentieth century.

Construction of the cross-gabled farmhouse probably took place during the ownership of William P. Ward, who purchased 117 acres of the "Causey land" as a result of a chancery settlement. William P. Ward paid $938 for the 117 acres, which suggests the property was unimproved at the time to sale. Fourteen years later, in June 1906, William P. Ward sold the property to John J. Shenk, who in turn sold the farm the following year to Clayton C. Parker for $4100. Clayton C. and Maria L. Parker retained title to the Snow Hill Road farm until 1919 when they transferred it to their son Joseph H. Parker, who maintained ownership through his entire life. At his death in 1957, the farm passed to Mae M. Parker. The property remains in family hands.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Clayton C. Parker farm is located at 4637 Snow Hill Road, southeast of Salisbury, Wicomico County, Maryland. The two-and-a-half story, three-bay, cross-gabled frame dwelling faces southwest with the principal gable roof oriented on a northwest/southeast axis. The turn of the twentieth-century dwelling is joined on the property by a gable-front frame barn and a three-level sweet potato house.

Built around 1890, the two-and-a-half story, three-bay frame farmhouse is supported by a continuous brick foundation, and the exterior is uniformly clad with aluminum siding. The steeply pitched cross gable roof is covered with asphalt shingles. Attached to the back of the single-pile main block is a two-story service wing.

The southwest (main) elevation is a symmetrical three-bay façade with an enclosed porch sheltering the first floor. The porch is distinguished by a cross gable and exposed rafter ends. The second floor is lighted by two-over-two sash windows flanked by louvered vinyl shutters. Piercing the cross gable is a two-over-two sash window. The edge of the roof has an extended eave with open soffits and exposed and decorated rafter ends.

The southeast gable end has a single-story, three-sided bay window pierced by two-over-two sash windows. The second story is defined by a single two-over-two sash window flanked by louvered vinyl shutters. Piercing the gable end is a small two-over-two sash attic window opening which is flanked by small louvered vinyl shutters. The edge of the roof has an extended eave with open soffits, small stick eave supports at the base of the roof and plain bargeboards. The northwest gable end has an exterior brick stack.

The northeast (rear) wall is partially covered by the two-story, one-room plan rear kitchen wing, which is extended on its south side by a single-story shed roofed section. The rear wing is finished in the same fashion as the main block with extended eaves and open soffits. The rear wing is lighted by two-over-two sash windows flanked by louvered vinyl shutters.

Standing northeast of the farmhouse is a single-story gable-front frame barn with side sheds supported on brick piers and sheathed with vertical board siding. The medium pitched roof is covered with tin. Piercing the northwest (main) elevation is a pair of sliding doors. To each side are sheds accessed through single board doors.

Northeast of the barn is a three-level sweet potato house which rests on a poured concrete foundation, and the structure is sheathed with a combination of wood shingles and vertical boards. The potato house is flanked on each side by open shed roofed implement storage bays. The entire structure is covered with asphalt shingle roofs. The edge of the roof is slightly extended beyond the wall surface. The southwest (main) elevation is a shingled front pierced by three board doors, one to each level. The third level features a timber beam for hoisting. Piercing the roofline is a single-flue brick stack as well as a round metal stack. The northeast (rear) wall is defined by three door openings, one to each floor.
