The Davey L. and Vickie L. DeWitt House, built circa 1900, relates to the late nineteenth and early twentieth-century development of the Mountain Lake Park region as a resort area. Mountain Lake Park was founded in 1881 as a Christian resort community modeled after the Chautauquas begun in New York state in the late nineteenth century. Situated a short distance east of Oakland and adjacent to the B & O rail line, Mountain Lake Park in the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries combined religious, educational, and cultural activities into a wholesome retreat. But unlike Deer Park and Oakland where the B & O had built large lodgings for its wealthy patrons, Mountain Lake Park emphasized more modest, privately-owned family units, and thus smaller, single-family dwellings predominated. The Dewitt house is typical of much of the area's early-twentieth-century architecture.

Research has not identified any associations with the lives of persons significant to the Oakland area's past or with events that have contributed significantly to broad patterns of the area's historical development. The architecture does not represent a particularly distinctive type, period, or method of construction, nor does it represent the work of a master, possess high artistic values, or represent a significant and distinguishable entity whose components may lack individual distinction. This resource has not yet yielded and is not likely to yield significant information important in history or prehistory.

DeWitt House
G-IV-A-253
520 East Oakland Drive
Oakland vicinity
Circa 1900
Private

This is a two-story, four-by-two-bay, gable roofed frame T-plan dwelling with a shed-roofed open-sided front porch, three shed-roofed frame additions, and an attached one-car garage. It is built with weatherboarded and asbestos-clad walls, an asphalt-shingled gable roof, and an exterior brick chimney. Windows are mostly paired and single, one-over-one, double-hung wooden sash with wooden surrounds. A modern gable-roofed, gable-fronted, one-car garage is attached to the southeastern end of the additions; a small frame shed also stands on the lot. The house stands at the intersection of Oakland Drive and Oakhall Drive and faces Oakland Drive to the northeast. It is located on a flat open lot about one mile east-southeast of Oakland.

Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The foundation of the building was not visible when the house was surveyed. The walls are clad in gray wooden weatherboards ornamented with light blue trim and wooden shutters. An asphalt-shingled gable roof tops the building. A single exterior brick chimney with a corbeled top rises on the easternmost gable. Triangular metal louvers near the gable peaks ventilate the attic.

Windows are a mixture of paired and single one-over-one, double-hung wooden sash finished with plain flat wooden surrounds and drip caps. Some two-over-two wooden sash is also present. There are two entrances on the front or northeastern elevation: one, which is sheltered by a small asphalt-shingled gable-roofed hood, leads into the northern corner of the front-facing gable. This entrance contains a paneled wooden multipaned half-glass door. A second wooden door with a three-light upper section. The rear entrance leads into the opposite elevation of one of the one-story additions, and contains a paneled wooden door. All door openings are finished with wooden surrounds.

The front porch consists of a wooden deck, a wooden balustrade and rail, four-by-four wooden porch posts, and an asphalt-shingled shed roof. The shed-roofed one-story rear leanto is sheathed in weatherboard to match the rest of the house and topped with an asphalt-shingled roof finished with exposed rafter feet; fixed six-light sash windows finished with wooden surrounds light the interior. A second one-story frame addition is topped with a curving, slightly concave, asphalt-shingled roof; this addition is clad in gray asbestos siding and pierced by paired one-light sash windows finished with flat wooden surrounds. A modern gable-roofed, gable-fronted one-car garage is attached to the southeastern end of this rear addition.

A one-story, gable-roofed, gable-fronted shed stands to the southeast. This building is clad in incised plywood siding and topped with an asphalt-shingled roof. A straight macadam driveway oriented perpendicular to Oakland Drive runs along the east side of the house and leads to the garage. The house lot is roughly square in shape, with a few shade trees planted near the house. The house is presently occupied and in good condition.
