Prepare both a one paragraph summary and a comprehensive description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

The Benedict Colored School, constructed circa 1922, is a rectangular, one-story, front gable structure with an incised entry porch resting on top of a steep hill above Prince Frederick Road. The frame building is covered in beveled siding and rests on a pier foundation. A brick chimney flue pierces the roof which is covered with asphalt sheeting. Roof rafters are exposed and a louvered vent is found in the façade gable end.

The central doorway is found within a shallow inset entrance porch sheltered by a narrow shed pent. The porch and doorway is approached by wooden stairs. Small paired windows flank the main entrance. The side elevations consists of two groupings of narrow vertical windows. Near the east end are two closely set windows of 6/6 light sash construction. A larger grouping of six narrow windows of the same composition are clustered under the chimney flue that pierces the roof above. Although the interior was not examined, the window configuration may correspond to the two interior rooms identified in oral accounts as a class room, and a backroom used as a kitchen and storage room. Later, this backroom was converted into an additional classroom.

Title research suggests, and archival evidence does not contradict a construction date of 1922. Stylistically, it shows many similarities with the Pomfret Colored School (demolished) which was erected in the early 1920's and included a grouping of six large windows along the eave wall.

The Benedict Colored School is an example of the one and two-room schools that once provided primary education to African American children during the first half of the 20th century. Constructed around 1922 and in operation until 1953, the schoolhouse included one classroom in which grades 1-7 would be taught by a single teacher.

The period following the Civil War saw the greatest expansion in a county-wide system of education. In 1868 there were a total of 37 schools throughout the county, six of which were for African Americans. By the end of the century that number had increased to a total of 75 schools, 30 of which served African Americans. Throughout the first decades in the 20th century, an overwhelming majority of these were one or two room schoolhouses.

In 1919, Mr. Joseph Christopher Parks became the supervisor of Charles County Colored Schools and he oversaw the construction of several new schoolhouses through the Rosenwald Fund, a national foundation for improving rural, and particularly African American education in the South. Julius Rosenwald was an American merchant who in 1910 became president of the Sears, Roebuck Company. In 1917 he established the fund which was endowed with thirty million dollars. A few of the schools constructed as a result of this funding included LaPlata, Marbury, Mason Springs, Mount Hope, Oak Grove, BelAlton, Tompkinsville, Waldorf, Pomfret and quite likely Benedict Colored School.
