Description of Property and Eligibility Determination: (Use continuation sheet if necessary and attach map and photo)
Though established in 1917, Fort Meade was not designated a permanent Army post until the late 1920s. Buildings constructed between 1928 and 1934 are associated with the permanent establishment of Fort Meade (Criterion A). Buildings associated with the permanent construction effort at Fort Mead also are a significant and distinguishable entity whose components lack individual distinction. The buildings retain integrity of location, design, setting, materials, workmanship, feeling and association. These buildings embody the distinctive characteristics of planning and design associated with nation-wide patterns of military post construction in the late 1920s and early 1930s. These areas include a full range of building types including administrative buildings, officer and NCO housing, support services and landscape features. The north and south cantonment areas are characterized by similar brick construction, scale, and restrained Colonial Revival design. The areas were designed and constructed as a planned military community that was unified through street and landscape planning.

The Ft. Meade Historic District is comprised of one hundred twenty four buildings which possess those qualities of significance and integrity necessary for listing in the National Register Historic District under Criterion C. An inventory of contributing resources is attached.

200000534

Ft. Meade was initially determined eligible for inclusion in the National Register in 1993.

Description of Property and Justification: (Please attach map and photo)

The buildings were constructed in 1947 and 1948 per the Inventory of Military property database. These small structures (about 9'x9') are commonly referred to as electrical substation buildings and provide electric service to the homes in the 2500 and 4500 areas. The July 2001 Fort George G. Meade ICRMP considers these buildings to be "eligible for listing in the National register", but we cannot find any information from MHT to substantiate this.

The historic homes of the 2500 and 4500 areas were constructed in the early 1930s and reflect the overall Georgian Revival Architecture and became eligible for listing in the National Register under Criterion C for architecture and as a cohesive of similarly styled houses along with the administrative facilities in the area. The six buildings that were erected ten years later are simple brick boxes without any type of distinctive style, interesting design, or unique workmanship, though they are located in a distinctive area.

Fort Meade does not feel that these six buildings, though close in age to the historic homes, are a contributing resources to the historic district and are not eligible for the National Register.

This garage is located directly behind the Commanding General's Quarters for Fort Meade. The commanding general's house, Building 4628, was determined eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic places in 1983, however, it appears that the garage was not evaluated.

The garage, which is believed by the Army to have been constructed at the same time as the house, 1933, is a single story running brick bond building which is five bays wide, three bays deep with six over six double hung sash windows. The elevation of the garage which backs up to the house has two garage bays and a bay with a single door. There is a porch attached to the bay with the single door. The garage has a chimney between the garage bays and the non-garage bay. The gable end connected to the garage bay has two six over six double-hung sash windows with an arched louver aperture at the roof line in the center of the gable. The opposite gable end also has two six over six double-hung sash windows and a center door with a bracketed pent roof covering over the door. This gable end has also has a louvered arched vent aperture. The building has a simple cornice with gable end returns. The garage appears to be covered with slate shingles.

The building has the same simple, Georgian characteristics as the commanding general's quarters, and the other housing within the historic district which was U.S. Army Quartermaster designed and issued.
