Description of Property and Eligibility Determination:

This bungalow, located at 3157 Solomon's Island Road in Edgewater, Maryland and built in 1930, is a greatly modified frame structure, now faced with brick, located on the east side of MD 2, a heavily traveled, highly commercialized and developed corridor, north of its intersection with Steward Drive. The project area is within a rapidly developing section of Anne Arundel County in the area called Edgewater. Converted to commercial uses and extended with a brick addition on the north, the structure is a small, frame, one and one-half story side-gable former dwelling with a nearly integral porch on the west, or entrance façade. There is a gable-roof dormer centered on this elevation and located at the junction of the roof and porch slopes. This structure was built as a variant on the popular bungalow style, which was the dominant style of middle and working class housing in the period between 1900 and 1920. This dwelling is an almost entirely disguised example of this architectural style, which exhibited many variations. There are no other structures on the property.

It lacks significant architectural distinction and therefore would not meet the National Register criterion C. In addition, it has no known significant association with important persons or events, nor would it likely have significance for the information contained in possibly associated archeological materials, given its late date of construction, thus it is not likely significant under Criteria A, B, or D for listing in the National Register of Historic Places.
