One of the great differences between modern civilization and the ages that have gone before is to be noted in the use by many men of information compiled and published by one of their number. It is impossible to make even an approximate estimate of the time and energy saved to the human race by the application of such a process in modern life. Little by little men have learned the value of organization and co-operation, and have understood how to make use of the labors of their fellows, and today the extent to which this is done in any group or community is an accurate index of the state of advancement of that group.

For a long time after the Civil War the colored people in this country were "hewers of wood and drawers of water," and their business and industrial life was of the simplest kind. As the years passed slight changes were noted, and in very recent years the change has been most rapid, especially in the great urban centers. One of the recognized accompaniments of modern commercial and professional life and organization is the directory. In 1820 Bradstreet first published his famous commercial directory in New York. In 1913 the publisher of this work thought he saw the need of a directory for the colored business, professional and educational world of Baltimore, and later included other cities. That his thought was a good one is evidenced by the fact that in the years intervening since 1913 this work has been published each year and similar works have been compiled for other cities with large colored populations, in imitation of Mr. Coleman's idea.

One of the very interesting things about this directory is its compiler, himself well known in the cities which figure in its pages. Mr. Robert W. Coleman comes of good stock, being the son of A. B. Coleman, who, associated with the younger Frederick Douglass, helped to organize the colored Forty-fourth, Forty-fifth and Fifty-fifth regiments in Massachusetts during the dark days of the Civil War, and for this service received the thanks of the legislature of Boston. Mr. Coleman was born November 3rd, 1876, at 708 D Street, N. W., Washington, D. C. He is a brother to Mr. John H. Coleman, a prominent business man of Chicago, Ill., Dr. A. B. Coleman and Mrs. Daisy Coleman Arnold, of Washington, D. C., a cousin of Mrs. Laura Jones, of Tuskege Institute, and of the late Judge Robert H. Terrell and Wm. Terrell, of Washington, D. C., an uncle of Mrs. James A. Mitchell, wife of Detective James A. Mitchell, of St. Paul, Minn., and great uncle of Florence Harrold and James Mitchell. He married Miss Mary A. Mason, of Baltimore, who has been an indispensable figure in the life and activities of Mr. Coleman. Mr. Coleman has six children, all girls, Daisy G., Dorothy May, Louise F., Catherine M., Harriett E. and Roberta A. Misses Daisy and Dorothy are teachers in the public schools of Baltimore.

Stricken, after he reached adult manhood, with almost complete blindness, Mr. Coleman, though weighed down by the responsibility for the care of a large family showed the stuff that was in him by learning a new trade, that of piano-tuning, and in his odd hours, at certain seasons of the year, collecting the advertising and other material for his directory in the cities concerned. His energy, courage and perseverance, under such a handicap, have been little short of marvelous. Mr. Coleman is a graduate of the Business Department of M Street High School, Washington. In his later years under the administration of Rev. Williams' secretary, he was a member of the board of directors of the Baltimore branch of the Y. M. C. A. He organized the Maryland Association for Colored Blind, October 15th, 1913, which was reorganized May 3rd, 1925, as the Association for the Handicapped, which includes the blind, mute and crippled. Incorporation papers are now being prepared. April 13th, 1927, with the assistance of Mr. Marvin Eckford and others, he organized the South Baltimore Y Club at John Wesley A. M. E. Church for the purpose of erecting a Y. M. C. A. in South Baltimore.

The directory idea, in this new age of progress and expansion among the colored people, is capable of almost indefinite extension, and its possibilities are unlimited. It is our hope that the originator of the idea may some day realize his most ambitious dreams concerning it. With the assistance of and co-operation of the communities involved, not only in the way of advertising, but also in the furnishing of complete and accurate information, there is no reason why he should not do this, for the enterprise is certainly deserving of the most hearty and generous support of the public.

Mrs. Beulah West Johnson, Chief Clerk at the Frederick Douglass Senior-Junior High School, was born in Annapolis, Md., daughter of the late William and Kate West. She was reared and educated in this city, Baltimore, her parents having settled here when she was but an infant.

Mrs. Johnson, from the offset, was an unusually bright, energetic and conscientious pupil, graduating from the grammar school Valdictorian of her class. Entering high school in 1907, she finished the course in three and one-half years, a member of the memorable Class of 1911. This class is exceptional in that two-thirds of its members have and are making a creditable showing in the professional world. There are eight on the present faculty of the Douglass High School, among whom are the President of the Alumni Association, the Vocational Counsellor for the Senior High and the Librarian.

Mrs. Johnson finished training in 1913, receiving her appointment as teacher in the public schools of this city the same year. Her work was handled in such manner that her critics and observers were led to believe that she must have had previous experience. The news of her resignation was received by all concerned with deep regret.

Mrs. Johnson, since marriage, has devoted the most of her time to clerical work, due to the fact that the rules governing married women were not as favorable to teachers as of late. She started her career as clerk in the service of the United States Government, Washington, D. C., at the beginning of the World War and has worked in many departments. Her work on all occasions was considered highly efficient, and it was during her last appointment in the War Department Adjutant General's office that she was made temporary chief of her division, receiving a rating of 96.48%.

It was during this appointment that Mrs. Johnson left Washington to accept the assistant clerkship at the above named school. When in office but three months it became necessary for her to take over the entire responsibility, at which time she passed the examination for this position ranking ninth out of 500 and first among race competitors, making an average of 84.25%. Mrs. Johnson has unusual executive ability and has been adjudged by many prominent citizens as well as school officials a capable woman and one well fitted for the post she holds. Her charm and dignity add much to the tone of the school.

Mrs. Johnson is an ardent worker in the Baptist Church and is well recognized for her ability in public speaking. One of her most recent and creditable speeches was noted in her presentation of the Mayor of this city in a national convention held here during July of this year. Upon taking the platform the Mayor referred to Mrs. Johnson's speech as most eloquent. The Baltimore Daily Post (white), in its write-up, had this to say: "On the basis of grammar and vocabulary, there was no reason for her being ashamed of comparison with the speech which followed. Whatever differences there existed were entirely in her favor. Her talk was sensible, well delivered and pleasant."

WILLIAM N. JONES

Managing Editor of The AFRO-AMERICAN

William N. Jones, one of the most active figures in Negro journalism today, is a native of South Carolina. Before graduating from the graded school of Spartanburg, he attended the Clemmons Episcopal Mission School, and after a year in the printing department of Tuskegee Institute, he entered Benedict College, where he graduated from the College Preparatory and the College Departments, receiving the degree of A. B.

Like most southern youths, Mr. Jones has supported himself since he was 18 years of age and worked his way through school. During the last two years of his college course he was a student teacher of printing and directed the South Carolina Standard.

Although unassuming, he early demonstrated capacity for potential leadership. In school he was president of the Douglass Debating Club, student manager of athletics, for a while conducted the College Band and "Mayor" of the school government, a system of student government which he helped to inaugurate at Benedict College and which had judicial and legislative departments which completely controlled student life and taught self government.

After leaving Benedict he taught physics at Haines Institute, Augusta, Ga., and for two years was head of the science department of Bishop College, Marshall, Texas, where he taught biology and conducted the work in chemistry and physics. While teaching at Haines he became a protege of the late C. H. Turner and helped him in his research work in biology, making studies upon which the biologist wrote some of his pamphlets on ant life.

While doing summer work at the University of Chicago, Mr. Jones became interested in social investigation and upon the suggestion of workers at Hull House decided to enter this field. He gave up his place as head of the science department at Bishop and took a job as chauffeur in Memphis as a beginning in social service work.

Very soon he attracted the attention of Dr. George E. Haynes, then a secretary of the National Urban League, who included his work in the Urban League program.

In Memphis Mr. Jones developed the first municipal playground ever started in the South and created the first position of Municipal Director of Social Survey of Memphis. As Director of Municipal Social Survey of Memphis, he had charge of municipal recreation, band concerts, public dance halls, the City School Department and branches of the city library, helped to develop the juvenile court and the Woman's Protective Department, with a policewoman connected with the police department.

He guided the recreation department to its purchase of the $85,000 central auditorium and recreation park, formerly owned by Robert R. Church.

Down on the register of Benedict College in 1899, Jones wrote his life objective as that of journalist, and six years ago he left the social service field and joined the staff of the Afro-American. Starting as court reporter, he was promoted to City Editor and then to his present place as Managing Editor of what has been adjudged America's best Negro journal.

Incidentally, since his connection with the Afro-American, Mr. Jones has organized the first evening class in journalism ever conducted in a colored high school. He is at present President of the Baltimore Century Club, affiliated with the Baltimore Association of Commerce; Vice-President of the Baltimore Urban League, a member of the Executive Committee of the N. A. A. C. P., a member of the State Central Committee of the Progressive Party, a member of the Boy Scout Council, and a member of the Association for the Handicapped.

PUBLIC DEMANDS IN FOODS

Mr. President, Officers and Members of the National Negro Business League.

Ladies and Gentlemen:—

To say the least, I was profoundly stirred by the very kind invitation to address this splendid organization at its Annual Convention. I was likewise as profoundly perplexed as to the whys and wherefores of this invitation, for public speaking is not an accomplishment by which I am best known among friends, acquaintances and that portion of the general public with which I have to frequently deal, and I would most certainly have declined the invitation, were it not for the fact that the subject which I have been asked to discuss is one which, because of the nature of my life's work, makes to me a singularly strong appeal, and the further fact that out of the richness and variety of experiences I have been privileged to have, it is just possible I may be able to say some word that may prove helpful to some whose problems are not wholly different from many I have had to meet and solve. If in the course of this brief address, I should seem to draw rather heavily upon these personal experiences, regard it not as an evidence of egotism, but regard them rather as my very own, and for that reason, have full confidence in their reality and value.

You have all, no doubt, given much study and attention to trends in modern business, from the gigantic corporations with their vast aggregations of brains, capital and skill, on down through the lesser ones to the individual corner store wherein its proprietor must be a combination of all the qualities enumerated for the corporations plus the hired man of all work. If you have thought along these lines you must have noted that one of the most outstanding trends in business conduct is the attitude of business organizations toward Pleasing the Public, the ultimate purchaser of all our output, whether these be products of forest, field, mines, the sea, the factory, the foundry, the brain, our services, or what not; of not only meeting this public's just demands, but actually anticipating and creating new desires for the ultimate in service and satisfaction.

As we have all come a long way from the days of the Tweed Ring in our greatest American city, when the general policy in both business and politics was "The Public be Damned," Today everywhere the slogan is "The Public be Pleased." And it matters not whether the organization be large, or whether it be small; it makes no difference whether it operates in this field, or whether it operates in that; the principles which must govern in having it meet the public's demands are the same. And we who sell this public, whether it be material product or skilled services need to understand and apply these principles if we are to have its generous approval.

I take it that we are in general agreement that nothing in this life, viewed from a material angle, is of greater importance than Food. Not only is this true from the standpoint of bodily nourishment, but also when considered as a contributing factor to the joy of living. Food, then, to be of value in the promotion of health, must necessarily be pure, fresh, properly preserved and of good quality. For if these elements do not obtain primarily, no amount of culinary skill can make up for their loss.

This first step is a problem of the purveyors; those whose duty it is to provide the foods. The public is justified in demanding that these purchase only such foods as are wholesome and of standard grade. It has been no uncommon thing to see many a meal prove disappointing because some of the dishes composing it were prepared from products that were far below the grade to which the patrons were accustomed.

With more science in agriculture, more skill among the raisers of cattle, sheep and hogs, and the increase in knowledge among manufacturers and preservers of food products, it is becoming easier to meet the Public's demands for foods that leave nothing to be desired in nourishing qualities or eating pleasures.

Repeating then, it will appear that our first problem is the preserving of health-giving, nourishing, pleasure creating foods to satisfy one of the Public's demands in food.

PREPARATION OF FOOD

Having procured appropriate foods of the right quality, we now move on to their preparation.

I do not think the kings of the earth, or the otherwise great, have had more paens of praise in their honor than have those humble artists whose studies are the kitchens and whose productions make their appeal, not to the eye or ear, but to the palate.

The tremendous increase in the number of hotels, restaurants, dining cars, wayside eating places and high class passenger steamships, attests the great growth of the eating public. Those whose work consists of preparing the food in many of the establishments enumerated above, know just how discriminating and exacting is the public taste.

Here arises a perfectly fair question relating specifically to our group. Are we meeting fully the cooking demands of this discriminating and exacting Public? I wish it were possible for me to say, without any mental reservations, that we are. But I fear that heretofore we have been satisfied in far too many cases, in merely "getting by." Nor have we looked upon the science and art of cookery as constituting a profession comparable in dignity and importance with those of medicine, law or any other of the so-called learned professions.

Mr. Washington, who was so closely identified with the conception, organization and early work of this League, used to emphasize in his own inimical manner, how dignity could be attached to any kind of labor; that whatever was worth doing at all, had a right to all we possess in the way of intelligence, energy and interest.

Now to meet the Public demand in the preparation of food, our present cook needs to know much of the relative values of foods; nutrition, the effect of heat on certain foods at various temperatures; the principles underlying and the reasons for boiling, baking and frying, sanitation, the fine art of seasoning and a working knowledge of what is being done elsewhere in the field of cookery, sufficient to keep him abreast of the times. He should be imbued with the spirit of progress, keeping always in mind that perfection in every line, is the human goal, always lying just beyond that to which we have attained. He will not be a guesser; but every food production of his will have its ingredients as carefully selected and measured as a Doctor's prescription for some bodily ailment. Above all, he himself, and his bodily surroundings, will be scrupulously clean, for he will be aware that this is a Public demand as relates to food that is becoming more and more insistent.

Summarizing; our cook will know much about the various kinds of foods and their relative values; he will be able to prepare many palatable tempting dishes; he and his surroundings will be scrupulously clean; his work will be carefully and intelligently planned, and executed with judgment and fidelity; he will be more cheerful and progressive; in short, he will be more than an artisan; he will be an artist.

SERVING THE FOOD

Having selected the foods of quality, purity and appropriateness, and having prepared them in a wholesome and appetizing manner to meet the Public's demands, we now come to the final act in the drama—serving.

If you can think of any one making a stronger appeal to the Public in any capacity than a neat, tidy clean, cheerful, obliging, careful and skillful waiter, I would be pleased to know such a person. Waiting, rightly performed, stands at the very apex of service, given the very best in foods, and let it be most appetizingly prepared, yet it is easily possible to destroy the enjoyment of the meal through inferior serving.

Those whose work lies in the field of serving foods should ever keep in mind certain fundamentals if they would meet the Public's demand in their line. It goes without saying that among the very first of these fundamentals are personal cleanliness, immaculateness of linens, abundant cheerfulness, alertness, an obliging disposition, a sincere interest in the work to be performed, an intelligent understanding of the viewpoints of both employer and guests, a mastery of the details inseparable from such service, and a deep appreciation of the opportunity to engage in a service that yields first place to no other in promoting the happiness of the general Public.

So necessary has the type of men I have described become in meeting the Public's demands in food that the great Railroad System with which I have the honor to be connected has just established a school on wheels for the training of stewards, cooks and waiters whose efficiency shall be such as to make the road's food serving department fully comparable with all other of its departments in meeting the Public's demands for service and winning its appreciation by the excellencies of this service.

This I regard as a step in the right direction, a good omen of the time when the work of the steward, the cook and the waiter will be considered professional and be accorded a dignity second to that of no other profession. If this contribution to your program does aught to further the ends desired, then I shall feel amply rewarded for the time and labor required in its preparation.

A Central Civic Organization with a Vital Business, Industrial, Co-operative Program

To Baltimore Business and Professional Men:

That Baltimore may take her rightful place in the world of business and industrial expansion, that her thousands of young men and women coming from our schools may find proper vocations in life and that this job may not be left to chance, THIS ORGANIZATION HAS COME INTO BEING.

The basis of its object shall be to use efficient organization in business and industrial expansion.

First. It will be associated directly with the Baltimore Association of Commerce, and will co-operate with that great organization in promoting the industrial and business growth of Baltimore.

Second. It will conduct an intensive educational campaign, bringing to the attention of the group masses the importance of developing business within the group.

Third. It will systematically call to the attention of business men throughout the country the opportunities open in Baltimore. In this way it will bring to this city institutions like Poro College which will provide additional employment.

Fourth. It will join with the local forces in increasing jobs of every source and in increasing wages to a fair basis.

Fifth. It will conduct no business, but will seek to induce young men and women to enter the business field here in Baltimore and supply data and help along this line.

Sixth. It will hold a weekly luncheon during the fall, winter and spring months wherein business and professional men may thrash out their problems and hear discussions by experts.

In short, it will use intelligent organization to make the greatest social and economic use of the spending power of the group.

It hopes to enroll every business and professional man in its program, which, after all, is a program that will most benefit them.

OUR ORGANIZATION

Seventeen years ago the Gross-Grant Company was organized with the idea of building an organization to assist our people in the matter of purchasing homes, renting homes, and saving their earnings through the building association.

How well we have succeeded in this purpose can well be settled by the fact that during that time no one has ever lost one cent of their earning through this organization. For that and many other reasons the public has come to look upon our company as one of the leading and most reputable real estate firms in the city.

OUR PROMISE

We promise that in the future we shall endeavor to live strictly up to this reputation which we have built and to give to the public whatever advantages we may possess through our long years of experience in the handling of all kinds of real estate transactions.

OUR PROPERTIES

Our homes are located in the most desirable sections of the city, and you will find that they are all in good condition.

OUR TERMS

Our terms and prices are absolutely the lowest possible, consistent with good business policy and our charges for financing are practically nominal.

Homemaker's Building Association

As a Saving or Investment Proposition this is a most attractive opportunity.

A high degree of safety, a rate of interest above that which banks can afford to pay, and the consciousness that every dollar entrusted to the Homemakers Building Association will be put to work at once in helping people of limited means to secure suitable homes, are factors which should appeal to many.

DUNBAR THEATRE CENTRAL AVENUE, NEAR MONUMENT STREET

The Dunbar Theatre, operated by the Dunbar Amusement Corporation, with Mr. Josiah Diggs, President; Dr. James Hilburn, Secretary and Treasurer, and Mr. Walter W. Carr, Manager and Vice-President, is a monument to the industry, untiring energy, and faith in the people of Baltimore manifest by its president and founder.

Mr. Diggs opened his house, which was then a much smaller building, with a capacity of 350 people, back in 1917, and by the dint of continual effort and persistency "carried on" until in November, 1923, he was compelled to rebuild on the original site when he enlarged his theatre to a magnificent building, 75x100 feet, with a capacity of 1,000 people, making it the largest movie house for our people in Maryland.

Besides pictures from such famous studios as Paramount, Fox, Metro Goldwyn, Warner Bros., and First National, the Dunbar has an unexcelled orchestra led by Carlos Daugherty.

Visitors in the City should make it a special point to visit the Dunbar Theatre.

The Urban League has for its mission the improvement of conditions among the Negroes of Baltimore and the creation of a better understanding between the white and the colored races. Its officers, who include both whites and negroes, are occupied with the problems of life in the colored neighborhoods.

The Urban League is especially active in seeking to improve the economic status of the Negro and to aid an increasing number of them to find their way to better paid jobs. This is done in the belief that better pay leads to better housing, better training, better recreation, better health—to better citizenship.
