An Encouraging Trade Outlook. It we in the morning hours of "b day" in the little out-of-the-way village The mingled odors of fresh bread, pies and cookies floated out of the open kitchen windows. From one of the smaller cottages at the end of the street came a barefooted child in a colorless calico dress and slat sunbonnet. With the important air of a heavy buyer she entered the village store, and handed across the counter a blue teacup. The proprietor took the cup, and said, in brisk tones:

"Well, Emmy, who does your ma want today?" "Please, sir, ma "ants an egg's worth of molasses," and suc carefully placed a

When He Was Twenty-One.

There is a young criminal lawyer in the city who, on the occasion of his becoming of age, began the celebration his birthday in a way that caused his household a great deal of consternation. On the eve on the fete, shortly after midnight, the young man's family were suddenly startled from their slumbers by "There's a man in the house! There's a man in the house!' The valiant paterfamilias rushed from his room, bearing in his hands a heavy billet of fire wood, to learn the cause the disturbance and to capture the intruder. His son was standing in the hall, shouting at the top of his voice.

A medical man, as a rule, dislikes to acknowledge-the value of a proprietary medicine. In fact, professional ctiquette debars him from doing so. Yet there many eminent physicians, those most advanced in their professions, who give full credit to the great curative properties of Vogeler's Curative Compound from the fact that it is manufactured by an old and reliable company, proprietors of Jacobs Oil, from the formula of a brother physician, who to-day stands in the front ranks of the most eminent medical men in London, and on account of its intrinsic merit it is largely prescribed by the medical profession, but in the case which we are about to relate the attending physician called it "rubbish," but as it turned out Mrs. Nettleton tells the doctor that "rubbish or not, it saved her life."

Mrs. Nettleton graphically relates the particulars of her own case, which will doubtless be of interest to many of our lady readers: "I had been an intense sufferer for many placed in my hands, and, although at that time I had been bedridden for more than six months, I determined, after reading some of the wonderful testimonials therein of cases similar to mine, which had been completely cured by the timely use of Vogeler's Curative Compound, to try some, effecially as my doctors failed to lost in a year. even benefit me, and I had almost given of ever being well again. It et interesting and, in fact, marvelous to elate, that the very first dose of fifteen drops relieved me. It was not long before l was able to get up and about; three months; from taking the first dose I was enjoying better health than I had been for fourteen years. I continued well until a few months back, when I was taken ill again, my troubles being dyspepsia and constipation. I had a doctor attending me for a month, but continued to grow worse, until I again found myself bedridden, when bethought myself of my old medicine. Vogeler's Curative Compound, which immediately sent for and took in place of the doctor's medicine; at that time I had not had a movement of the bowels for five days, but Vogeler's Curative Compound soon put me on my feet again; in fact, completely cured me a second time, but, of course, this attack was not as bad as the first, yet I fully believe I should not have been alive to-day had it not been 1a11/2c.
