SUNDAY SERMON ち ち ち ち

A Scholarly Discourse By Rev. Dr. E T. Lee.

Brooklyn, N. Y .- Sunday morning the union services of the Central Presbyterian, Nostrand Avenue M. E. and Puritan Congregational churches were transferred to the first named church. The preacher was the Rev. E. Trumbull Lee, D.D., pastor of the Chambers-Wylie Memorial Presbytecian Church, Philadelphia, who is prominent in all the work of the denomination. His subject was "God's l Plan of a Christian," and the text was taken from Ephesians iii: 19. "Filled unto all the fullness of God."

Dr. Lee said in substance: As the apex of a pyramid is that point toward which the upright lines of the shaft converge, so our text is the culmination of the teaching in verses In these verses the sacred writer l

16-19, inclusive. gives in outline an inspired sketch of a Christian as God would have The writer would have his readers understand him, and also be enabled to fill out the plan in their lives, so he makes the matter the subject of prayer. See verse 14. He prays Christian believers may be characterized by power, faith, knowledge and love in an unusual degree, as the text says: "Unto all the fullness of God." That is, an overflowing measure. B this is meant that if in order to meet the requirements of God in the Christian life it is necessary to have power, then we must overflow with power, or faith, overflow with faith, or knowledge, overflow with knowledge, or love, overflow with love, "the love of Christ," the redemptive liever in Christ overflowing with these constituent qualities of the This raises the question of resources. When I was living in Colorado the Arkansas River, running east from the Rocky Mountains, carried a large volume of water, as it now does. The river was drawn on to supply canals branching from the river and laterals from these canals. which for extent and capacity would soon have exhausted the river but for vast stores of snow and ice piled up in the basins or great pockets of the mountains, which the daily toll of the summer sun distilled into courtless streams, which flowed down and supplied the river. The ability of the river to supply the large draughts of water required by the canals was in resources which the river drew upon in the mountains. God is characterized by infinite resources. In Him! is an infinite reserve of power, knowledge, love. He, therefore, plans that Christians shall overflow with those qualities herein enumerated, namely flow of power: Strengthened with man * * unto all the fullness This means that the entire moral nature comes into touch with God at conversion and becomes strengthened so that it becomes the expression of the power of God to save. In this city is a vast bloctric car system. Each car has a known carrying capacity and moves, empty or filled full of passengers, not only on the level at the City Hall, out up a steep grade of 2000 cars. Now the company does business on the basis always of more than enough power for all the cars to their united carrying capacity, These cars are "strengthened with might" by coming into contact with that overflow of energy. And each car in the system is the expression of the totality of the company's electric! power. So, when we become Christians we became such by coming into contact with God through the Holy Spirit, and we become the expression on earth of God's power to save. This is the reason why, again and again, vast systems of wrong and of unbelief have been toppled over, why no force of evil can ever come to The first question any one needs the next question is. "What kind of a Christian am 1?" Am I a unit of patient, persistent, unconquerable power? Counting Propostants in this country, we are forty millions in number. Twenty millions of these are members of churches It is impossible to estimate the vastness of the victories of our religion if each unit were the expression of overflowing power in Christian activity. Paul, however, grasped the dynamic possibilities involved, and exclaimed: can do all these things through Christ, who strengthened me." This assurance of superlative ability of accomplishment can be cultivated by us if we make use of all the agencies, instrumentalities, ordinances and institutions of our religion, just as a man in the physical world can make himself a hundredfold the master of situations by laying hold on steam, electricity and the like.

Second—The overflow of faith, "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith * * unto all the fullness of God." Faith removes mountains. It has always done so. The victories of faith are simply marvelous. But victorious faith is not a sentiment, nor an enthusiasm, nor an imagination. Victorious faith is conviction in action. It begins with 4 man and externalizes itself in achievements. Neptune was discovered by men who believed that that planet existed long before it was discovered. Fulton believed that he could propel a boat by steam, and ceased not till his steamboat was · striking the waters of the Hudson with its paddle wheels, and so evoked a new note in the song of the world's industry. The achievements of faith come from the overflow of faith from within to the great world outside. So in the field of the Christian life. "Faith without works is dead, being
