One of the most progressive young men in the fight for recognition this fall is Charles J. F. Steiner, who has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Third district. Although this is the first time this young man has been before the people for office, he has started a hot campaign among the voters all thru his district, and has received many assurances of support. During the week just past Mr. Steiner started a strenuous campaign among the colored voters in East Baltimore, and they seem to like the manner in which he enunciates his policies. He is making a house to house canvas and when the voters are out he puts a good word in for himself with the women and children.
