The Twelfth Annual Session of the Organization Held In Washington Brought Together Many of the Most Noted Men of the Calling-Brilliant Social Features.

The twelfth annual meeting of the National Medical association, which was held in Washington from Aug. 23 to 26, inclusive, brought together the cream of the profession from most every state in the Union.

Among the members of the association present were graduates from some of the leading medical schools of the United States, many of whom have won a nation wide reputation for their

WITH TASTE AND CONDITION.

What to One Race Will Seem Natural and Toothsome Article of Diet Might Seem to Others Repulsive.

Fashions in foods vary as do most of man's needs with taste and circumstance. It has been truly said that "one man's meat is another man's "We must at all times," said the poison." What to one race of people amount required for human sustenance. Thus the intense cold of the Esquimo are able not only to eat and drink substances as foreign to our tastes as walrus, frozen seal and trainoil, but to gorge themselves to a disgusting extent; Sir John Ross said that an Esquimo "perhaps eats 2C pounds of flesh and oil daily." But why some tribes in tropical regions can exist almost solely on a meat diet, or why others in Africa and Polynesia grading practise of cannabilism.
