is a stark history of the life of Augusto Sandino, the rebel-patriot of Nicaragua. Sandino is the torch-bearer of Nicaragua—a. hard-working man who has faith in Nicaragua's peasantry.

There is a hint of jessamine in the air, and the faint perfume of pressed roses; silver-haired grandames in lavendar and old lace rock gently to and fro on vine-covered piazzas, and Negro slaves hover in the background. This is the picture Benjamin Brawley paints of the old decadent South in writing of "The Southern Tradition" in The North American Review for September. Mr. Brawley says that the spirit of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, is slowly permeating the new Southland, and that the younger generation is developing a scientific approach to social problems.

has decided to admit the 700 natives engaged in the industry. This is the first time that a European trade union in South Africa has admitted native workers.

At Bloemfontein, in Orange Free State, an attempt is being made by the Town Council, to establish a minimum wage of about 3 shillings for native unskilled labor. The present wage averages 2s. 3d. In the Transvaal, the Johannesburg joint council of Europeans and natives is an inter-racial group of 60 persons. It was organized 5 years ago by Dr. F. G. Bridgman of the American Zulu Mission. It contains a large number of leading whites and natives and has taken up the matter of housing, recreation, and General Hertzog's proposed native legislation. It has issued three pamphlets with regard to these bills and is about to publish a

 A second conference of Europeans and natives was called by the Dutch Reform Church at Capetown in January, 1927. As a result of their request, the Hertzog native bills were referred to a select committee before the second reading.

In Cape Province there are 15,000 native voters out of a total voting population of 150,000. In Natal there are only about 12 native voters and there are none in the Transvaal and the Free State.

It is a teasing and tortuous road that Service. The bride was a student at civilization has got us on. We are learning to live with all these nations, colors, creeds, and castes that for centuries have been specializing in their differences. It is very difficult-so difficult that Peter himself did not fully live up to his housetop vision. Only, my friends, illwill has no contribution to make. Prejudice is poison.
