Court studies NAACP fines

The U.S. Supreme Court recently took the case of Mrs. Daisy Bates and Mrs. Birdie Williams under advisement after oral argument by NAACP General Counsel Robert L. Carter.

Mrs. Bates and Mrs. Williams of Little Rock and North Little Rock, respectively, received court fines under two Arkansas city ordinances in December, 1957.

The ordinances, passed in October, 1957, were designed to compel disclosure of names and addresses of NAACP members in Arkansas. Mrs. Williams is president of the NAACP North Little Rock branch. Mrs. Bates is president of the Arkansas State Conference of NAACP branches.

Arguing before the high court Wednesday, Nov. 18, Mr. Carter cited the brief filed in the case which pointed out that the NAACP is regarded as the major enemy by those who would maintain the status quo in race relations in the South

"Its destruction is their principal and enforcing these ordinary target. It was in this circumstance that these ordinances were enacted and petitioners convicted.

"The basic reason for enactment," Mr. Carter said, "was to frighten, intimidate and coerce those who belong to the NAACP . . . into abandoning their ideas of equality." Mr. Carter said.

...ase was brilliantly presented ... Mr. Cole.

The jury men heard overwhel... ...ing testimony to the effect that Mr. Wilkerson was shot to... mistake.

They heard testimony from 11 persons including Mrs. Wilkerson and Patrolman DeManns.

The case was highlighted by these facts:

1. The testimony of Dr. Russell Fischer, chief medical examiner who said that Wilkerson was shot under the right arm pit.

Dr. Fischer added that in order to photograph the wound before performing an autopsy, he had to tie Wilkerson's right arm above the head.

On this specific point Mr. Cole in his summation told the jury the location of the wound indicated that Mr. Wilkins had his arms in the air when he was shot by Officer DeManns.

2. The "loss of memory" on the part of DeManns when questioned about what transpired.

3. The difference in facts as related by Officer DeManns and Patrolman Denver Crabbes.

Officer Crabbes was the squad car companion of DeManns when the shooting occurred.

4. The testimony of both officers that Wilkerson had a knife in his possession.

5. The testimony of two other officers one a sergeant (The first two officers to arrive at the scene) that they did not see a knife until after they arrived at the Dundalk Police Station.

* * *

MR. WILKERSON, Past Master of a Masonic lodge in Victoria and a deacon in the First Baptist Church of that city, was shot as he climbed out of an automobile on North Point Rd., in Baltimore county on November 24, 1956.

The deceased, father of three boys, was working as a trucker riding with George Glasgow of 3724 Mt. Royal Terr., at the time.

The Glasgow car was stopped by police who were searching for a man wanted in connection with a shooting on Avondale Rd. at Turner Station.

Patrolman DeManns reported that the shooting occurred when Mr. Wilkerson made a move toward his pockets for some sort of weapon.

Mr. Wilkerson at the time was on his way home after spending several hours visiting used car lots in search of an automobile to buy.

Ironically, when police carried him to City Hospitals for treatment of a gunshot wound of the right side, they found a 24-year old man who had been shot during a fight in a Turner Station restaurant.

Police said they had been told that a suspect in the shooting had escaped in a green and white car similar to that driven by Mr. Glasgow. They said they stopped his car because it matched the description.

Subsequently a 20-year-old man was arrested and charged with the Turner Station shooting following the death of Mr. Wilkerson.

* * *

IN DECEMBER, 1956 a county grand jury failed to indict Patrolman DeManns in connection with the Wilkerson death.

State's Attorney Frank Newell, who was then assistant state's attorney for Baltimore county, bypassed a magistrate's court hearing and took under the right arm pit, two inches below the chest cavity, the homicide charge directly to the grand jury.

Neither relatives of the deceased or former Senator Harry A. Cole, attorney for Mrs. Wilkerson were admitted to the hearing at that time.

Following the dismissal of charges, Patrolman DeManns was relieved of his suspension and returned to duty.

The opening day hearing on Wednesday was highlighted by the testimony of 10 persons including Mrs. Wilkerson, Mr. Glasgow and Patrolman Denver Crabbes.

Officers Crabbes was the squad car companion of Patrolman DeManns on November 24.

A—I was ...

Q—What time were you all together?

A—I had worked that morning with him and he said he wanted to buy a used car.

"We went to Vincents Motors on Monument St., and he gave the man a deposit. He said we should go to Dick Burns out on North Point Rd. to look at some more cars. We drove out there but he was closed.

"We headed back to Dundalk to Wooler Sales and looked at a 1951 Mercury. We told the fellow there we had already seen one like it but that we would probably come back again.

"We went on to an Amoco station where we usually cashed our checks and then we got some food.

"At around 8:30 on North Point Rd. near the Eastpoint Shopping Center, the police came up on the left side of me and motioned for me to stop.

"I stopped and he drove his car in front of me and told us to come out with our hands up. We both had our hands up.

Q—Did he have his revolver out?

A—I didn't notice. We started to get out and I had one foot on the ground when I heard a shot go off. The officer then handcuffed me. Clarence was still on my side coming out with his hands up.

Clarence said "Oh, I'm shot," and the officer, a sergeant, said, "what's wrong"? and then he (Wilkerson) fell.

Q—He came out on the side where the sergeant was?

A—Yes. He (the Sergeant) had opened the door on the left for me. Wilkerson was coming out under the wheel. We didn't he get out on the right side?

A—The door is hard to open on that side.

Q—Did you work at Bethlehem Steel with Clarence?

A—Yes I did.

Mr. Glasgow further testified that the officers made no search at the scene, and that Mr. Wilkerson was only "obeying the law" when he was shot.

Glasgow said he first saw a knife at the station house and while there an officer told him: "I'm sorry. We got the wrong man but how would you feel if you were a police officer".

Mr. Glasgow said that "when he asked me that, I couldn't answer. I was too broken up".

Under cross examination, Mr. Glasgow said he had often seen Mr. Wilkerson with a knife in his possession but that he used the knife on his job to cut wire.

* * *

PATROLMAN EDWARD H. HORN of the Essex Police Station said that he and Sgt. Cass per Hohman stopped the Glasgow car because it fitted the description of one involved in the Turner Station shooting.

The officer said that after they stopped the car, Sgt. Hohman walked over to the left of the automobile and told the occupants to get out.

Officer Horn stated that while he was parking the cruiser an other police car drove up with two officers later he heard a shot.

The officer admitted that in one statement he had written that Sgt. Hohman had asked DeManns, "Why did you shoot?"

Officer Horn said he saw a knife for the first time at the station house.

Sgt. Hohman said he approached the Glasgow car with his gun drawn, but he put it back in the holster after Mr. Glasgow climbed out.

The sergeant stated: "I told him (Glasgow) to face the door and then I heard a shot. Wilkerson was coming out. He put his hands on top of the car and sort of slumped. I asked him what was wrong and he said "I'm hit", I lowered him to the ground and put a blank under his head.

Sergeant Hohman told the court that he noticed Officer Crabbes for the first time "as I got Wilkerson out of the car," and that Wilkerson was coming out with his hands in the air.

When asked if he had seen anything in Wilkerson's hands the sergeant answered, "No, not before or after the shooting."

Sergeant Hohman said he later did saw a knife at the station house.

He added that when Mr. Wilkerson was shot, he was "helping himself out of the car." The sergeant said he asked, "Who fired the shot?"

* * *

He added that when he drove up behind the Glasgow car he noticed that the driver was out of the car.

DeMANNS SAID that when Crabbes leaned across the seat to get Wilkerson out of the car he saw a knife and yelled, "look out Buzz, he's got a knife and then fired a shot through the glass on the right side.

He said that after he had fired the shot, Wilkerson put the knife back in his pocket and climbed out of the car.

DeManns said the reason he had not mentioned this specific incident earlier in his report was because, "I was all shaken up at the time. I was confused after shooting a man."

In summing up the hearing, Mr. Cole called the DeManns testimony, "incredibile."

On behalf of his client, Mr. Evans asked the jury to drop the charges because DeManns was "using the only force available" when he fired to keep Wilkerson from harming Crabbes.

Mahalia Jackson

I was born to sing the gospels"

For years Mahalia Jackson's gospel singing has baffled music experts and inspired music lovers. What is the special magic of her God-given voice?

In this week's Saturday Evening Post you'll read the extraordinary story of this spiritual woman. She tells:

- about her early, poverty-stricken days in New Orleans
- how her husband didn't think gospel singing was "educated"—and how their marriage broke up
- about her spectacular concert tour of Europe
- how someone shot bullets through the windows of her house when she moved into a white neighborhood in Chicago

WESTERN NEWS

Rev. F. B. Peterson gives impressive talk

By ANDREA PAIR

Westernites came back to school Monday ready for work after a lovely weekend.

Many girls were either upset or elated over the results of the football games played on Thanksgiving, and others were excited over their holiday social activities.

However, the message that was delivered to the student body by the Rev. F. B. Peterson of Seventh Baptist Church on Nov. 25, still lingered with them.

In a Music Department assembly, the choir and the Trebiettes presented several selections and the band played lovely melodies.

The student body joined in on a few hymns.

Also featured in the program was a choral reading of the Lord's Prayer by the dramatic club.

The new editor in chief of the Campus Crier, Western's newspaper, is Catherine Thomas.

Those students with a average of 80 or more will be honored in a new club at Western —The 80 Club.

AJC praises

NEW YORK — The American Jewish Congress last week hailed a State Commission Against Discrimination not to appeal a ruling ordering the Arabian American Oil Co. to obey the state fair employment law.

At the same time, the AJC chairman called on SCAD to order an immediate hearing on charges that Aramco discriminates against Jewish job applicants.

The original complaint against Aramco was made by the AJC almost four years ago.

Following a SCAD investigation the body ruled that Aramco was exempted from adhering to the fair employment law.

Subsequently, AJC appealed the SCAD finding to the New York Supreme Court. On July 17, Judge Henry Epstein ordered Aramco to obey the law.

Although SCAD will not appeal, Aramco announced that it would
