that all colored applicants seeking transfer, file, without fear or reprisal."

All transfer papers, said Commissioner Schmidt would be forwarded directly to Chief Inspector George J. Murphy, by the applicant's immediate commanders, for review and consideration.

"I also wish to emphasize that the Department has initiated a special effort for placing colored applicants in the following categories: Communications, Crime Laboratory, K-9 Corps, and Traffic Division," he stressed.

Those sections or divisions named by the commissioner are at present all white.

"A preliminary report will be made to the Governor's Office no later than Oct. 15, 1963 and it will be suggested that a copy of this report be forwarded to the Maryland State Commission on Interracial Problems," the commissioner said.

COMMISSIONER SCHMIDT promised the leaders that within two weeks, a final report will be filed showing the progress attained and that periodical reports will also be made to the Governor.

"Captains are being instructed to forward within 62 hours a list of the applications submitted and to simultaneously recruit colored members of the department who possess special skills and talent for the positions they aspire," he concluded.

THE negotiators included, in addition to the Rev. Mr. Williams; The Rev. Marion Williams, The Rev. Robert T. Newbold Jr., Clarence Logan, of the CIG; the Rev. Wesley Nash, the Rev. Maxwell Johnston, Mrs. Juanita Jackson Mitchell, president of the Maryland State Conference NAACP, and State Senator Verda Welcome.

DURING THE discussions, more than 40 picketers representing several civil rights organizations, formed a line in front of Police Department Headquarters.

ORGANIZATIONS REPRESENTED were the Congress of Racial Equality, the National Association of Postal Employees, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and several prominent ministers.

Earlier the commissioner met with Parren J. Mitchell, executive secretary of the State Commission on Interracial Problems; Robert J. Murphy, deputy attorney general; and Senator Verda Welcome.

The ministers, during a conference with the commissioner on Wednesday, had warned that if their demands were not met, at that time they would seek their goals by other methods.

POLICE PICKETS—An orderly group of pickets paraded outside of police headquarters Thursday protesting alleged segregation in the department. Later, Commissioner Bernard Schmidt announced that an agreement had been reached to bring about integration.

Sobbing Mothers Recall Tragic Sunday Morning

By JAMES D. WILLIAMS
Assistant Managing Editor

BIRMINGHAM — Perhaps in time, the ache in the hearts of Mrs. Alice Collins and Mrs. Alvin Robertson will ease — but now the hurt is too recent for them to do anything but cry when they speak of their daughters.

Addie Mae Collins, 14, and Carole Rosamond Robertson, 14, were two of the four girls killed in the bombing of the 16th Street Baptist Church, on Friday, the mothers were still crying and obviously near a state of complete collapse.

In the modest living room of her home at 233 6th Ct., W., Mrs. Collins was slowly sorting through some of the mail and telegrams she has received. There hasn't been time to tabulate the number, or even acknowledge them, but they have been read and appreciated.

RECALLING WHAT it had been like on Sunday morning, Mrs. Collins spoke of the breakfast Addie Mae had eaten before leaving for Sunday school::

Sausage, sweet potatoes and grits.

Addie was one of eight children. She was a regular member at the 16th St. church and last Sunday started off as any other Sunday.

She left the house about 9:10 a.m. but she came back in and asked her mother could she put some powder on her face.

"I told her no at first and something told me to let her come back. She powdered asked me 'mommy, don't I look like you?' and I told her to stop fooling and go along to church."

THE CHURCH is almost 20 blocks from her home, but Addie and two of her sisters, Jannie and Sarah walked. It was a pleasant day.

Also headed for Sunday school were three other sisters, Hattie B., Junie and Addie B. Collins. They took the bus.

Asked why two girls with the same name, Mrs. Collins smiled wanly and explained that her husband had named the children, and he seemed to have run out of names.

Mrs. Collins was still at home when one of her daughters called and said there had been an explosion. A few seconds later University Hospital called and asked her to come.

She found her daughter Addie dead, and another daughter, Sarah, 12, with her eyes badly damaged. There is still some doubt about Sarah being able to see again.

THE GRIEF of the mother is still so strong she finds it hard to tell how she feels about the men who killed her child.

"I can't tell, I can't tell" she says, but she says it without bitterness.

Not far from Addie Mae's home is the home of Carole Roberston — or rather her former home, at 1021 Fifth St., N.

Both of Carole's parents are school teachers and she, like so many other teenagers, han't quite made up her mind what profession she would choose, but her latest interest had been to become an airline stewardess.

Sunday was to be a big day for Carole. She was to serve her first time as an usher at the church.

For the occasion, she had on a very special white dress.

"She didn't have a coat on so I told her to get a little lightweight jacket," her mother said.

CAROLE'S FATHER took her to Sunday school and on the way they stopped by the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Anderson Sr., where she received her weekly allowance and a white necklace to compliment the very special outfit.

A few minutes later she was dead.

Mrs. Robertson also has not had the time to read the cards, letters and telegrams that have come in from all over the country and from overseas.

"It's something still like a nightmare," Mrs. Robertson said. "I've tried not to have any bitterness about the people who have done the thing that they have done."

No bitterness in their hearts —this is the way two mothers here in Birmingham have accepted the deaths of their daughters.

Plaintiff's color wrong for rights

ATLANTA — Because he is white, Henry M. Henderson cannot sue for civil rights in the U.S. District Court of Judge Lewis R. Morgan's ruling on Mr. morgan's ruling on Mr. Henderson's bid to desegregate a downtown Atlanta hotel.

The judge said that Mr. Henderson was not directly affected and that he had no record of a court taking jurisdiction in a case where the plaintiff is only indirectly affected by racial discrimination against other persons.

Two youths given second chance

Two teenage boys were given probation without a verdict on charges of disorderly conduct by Judge Jerome Diener, in the Northwestern Municipal Court, Tuesday.

Accused of having made a disturbance in the 2000 block Rosedale Ave., at 2 a.m. Monday were Robert Rice, 17, 600 block Glenalden Ave., and James Watkins Jr., 18, 1800 block Poplar Grove St.

Edward B. Cook, production director at Radio Station WAOK, entertains his son Edward, Jr., 1½, and daughter Kimberly, 3½, at his turntable. Both children started on formulas made with Carnation, world's leader for infant feeding.

Popular Atlanta disc jockey presents his "Small Combo"

They started on Carnation, stayed on Carnation ... the milk with extra Vitamin D for strong bones, sound teeth and steady growth.

How does a law student become a radio star? Edward Cook did it with a dynamic personality and an urge to entertain that just wouldn't go away. As a pre-law student at Fisk University, he also concentrated on dramatics.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Cook are active in little theater groups. Mrs. Cook, a 1957 graduate of Louisville General, is an amateur artist—and an artist in the kitchen as well. When the Cooks entertain small groups at dinner, there is always a homemade cake, a frozen dessert, or a fabulous pie.

"Carnation makes such a heavenly cream pie filling," Mrs. Cook volunteers, "and such a tender cake. Best of all, it whips beautifully for home-

CARNATION HIGH-PROTEIN EGGNOG

(Makes 1 large glassful)

1 egg
1 heaping teaspoon sugar
1 small can (⅔ cup) chilled undiluted CARNATION EVAPORATED MILK
½ cup cold water
Nutmeg
Vanilla

Separate egg white from yolk. Beat yolk and sugar with rotary beater until light. Add water to Carnation, then add to egg yolk mixture. Beat well. Chill. Beat egg white until fluffy. Beat well into mixture. Add a drop of vanilla flavoring if desired. Pour into large glass, and sprinkle with nutmeg.

Rights fight seen as help in UN

CHICAGO — (ANP) — The struggle by colored Americans for civil rights "works for us" in the United Nations, declared Mrs. Marietta Peabody Tree, United States representative to the UN Human Rights Commission.

Mrs. Peabody, speaking last week in Chicago, expressed the opinion that recent gains are being made in U.S. race relations.

"Although everybody in the world saw 'Bull' Connor's police dogs on the front page, everybody in the world is also aware that we're making a major breakthrough in civil rights"

MRS. TREE, who is also an alternate delegate to the UN General Assembly, recalled that the Soviets had tried to exploit the trouble that James E. Merdith had getting into the University of Mississippi last fall.

"I said in the General Assembly that this shows the concern of the American people—that they're willing to put 20,000 troops in the field to protect the rights of one person.

"The Soviets never brought that up again," she said.

Water detected

Dr. Emanuel Kaplan of the City Health Department announced this week that the use of the cryoscope, which detects excessive water in milk, is assuring consumers of a high quality of milk.

Pet into use in 1958, the device has cut violations from 109 in 1960 to only five for the current year, Dr. Kaplan said in his weekly letter to the Mayor Theodore

Tragedy in 'Bama seen as clarion call to women

WASHINGTON (NNPA) — white or yellow, red or black. The time is now to build that kind of world.

"It is not only you who grieve that your strong city was besmirched with blood of innocent young girls and boys," said the letter. From East to West and North to South the women of America are roused by your distress," it added, continuing:

"PERHAPS YOUR children died that we might see the tragic folly of our hate. Perhaps they died to make us know that women, blessed with motherhood, must rise from bombs and guns and awful weapons of brute force.

"We have too long accepted passively the fact of racial bigotry. The privileged among us took good fortune as their right. The underprivileged accepted deprivation as their fate. But this has changed since we have seen that children, women's special care, have now become the victims of our apathy.

THE TIME has come to care about the kind of world we want for children —

15 professional tips from I.W. Harper
The Prized Kentucky Bourbon
1. Stir when it says stir, and shake when it says shake. Shaking a clear drink, like a Martini, makes it cloud up.
2. When shaking or stirring, be thorough. Shake means shake!
3. For stirring, use ice cubes; for shaking, cracked ice. But ice only; not ice and water.
4. Pour liquor over ice, rather than dropping ice into liquor ... the liquor will chill better.
5. If you're caught short without pre-chilled glasses in the refrigerator, fill your glasses with crushed ice while you're mixing the drinks. Then dump the ice and pour.
6. Remember that one ice cube makes 2 to 2½ ounces of water.
7. Use only fresh fruit, and make sure it's thoroughly squeezed.
8. When you're cutting peel for a drink, remove the white under part; it's bitter and useless.
9. Want to make a Daiquiri froth with professional flair? Add a drop of milk to your mix before shaking.
10. Soak lemons in cold water for fifteen minutes to get more juice from them. Then roll them on a hard surface.
11. Rub the edges of the bottle with waxed paper before pouring to prevent dripping. An occasional rub will do.
12. Rinse ice cubes with a few glasses of cold water to get rid of the snowy look.
13. Don't stir carbonated beverages vigorously.
14. Keep simple syrup—sugar and water, premixed—on hand for the most efficient way of sweetening drinks. It will dissolve; plain sugar will often present problems.
15. Use clean glasses — with clean ice—for seconds. Just a drop or two of a stale drink can ruin a fresh one.
