The Double Finesse Bridge Club opened its '63-'64 season Monday, at the Druid Hill Branch of the YMCA. The club is affiliated with the American Bridge League and the American Contract Bridge League.

Membership is not necessary to participate in the games. The club is open and a nominal fee is charged per session.

Any player wishing to enjoy an evening of bridge and to compete against some of the city's better players may test their skill Monday 8 p.m. at the "Y."

Winners opening night were Jean Williams, Orrin Nixon, first; J. Garland Diggs, Paul Alston, second and Herman Jones, Fred Joynes, third.

Josh White due for Lyric date

Today, 30 years after he cut one of the first phonograph records in America, Josh White is universally acclaimed the greatest folk singer of our time.

Respected throughout the western world as a perceptive artist and a versatile craftsman who can electrify a sophisticated audience while retaining the power and simplicity of traditional singing.

Greatest is an awesome word, because it necessitates the acknowledgement of absolute values. It distinguishes one individual from all his fellow men.

He appears at the Lyric on Oct. 18 at 8:30 p.m.

BALTIMORE AFTER DARK

On the TOWN with the Pub Crawler

We met Richard (Paladin) Boone on his recent visit here and found him as impressive without his black outfit and six-gun as he is with it.

The guy is as bold as he is big — and, like man, he is b-i-g!

He has some definite opinion on the treatment accorded tan stars and starlets by the television and movie industry:

"You should raise h— because they definitely aren't getting the kind of opportunities they deserve."

He then reeled off an impressive list of tan artists he described as "beautiful" and suggested that "You should work on the 'Alabama attitude' of many of the guys up front!"

As far as the Crawler is concerned this puts the star of the new Richard Boone TV series (seen locally on WBAL-TV) in the ranks of Burt Lancaster, Marlon Brando, Charlton Heston; et al. They are beautiful too!

* * *

LESLIE UGGAMS, the pert songbird of Mitch Miller's Sing - Alone, was quite a hit here too. Not cute in this former child prodigy sing but she, in the words of "Chester," is mighty p-u-r-t-y.

And what's more, she's available. But one word of warning to guys who might have eyes — including our own Wilbur Pinder — you've gotta get by mama first. She is Leslie's chaperon, ya know!

To those who insist that this is a real down town, the following statistics are presented for your edification:

Civic Center attendance figures for the past few weeks, according to Doug Tawney and Harold Jennifer, the men that make the center tick show that. . .

Leonard Bernstein Philharmonic concert drew 4,000.

Mitch Miller Sing - A - Long, 4,000.

Black Watch extravaganza, 5,200.

On the other hand. . .

A Saturday night wrestling show packed in 10,000 and the recent James Brown rock - 'n' roll production turned away hundreds after the 13,000 seating capacity was swallowed up.

Well?

IN AN attempt to bring a bit of cosmopolitanism to the Main Drag, Andy Stanziak, beginning this weekend, is staging breakfast shows at his Bamboo Lounge, featurning delicacies for starving night people who hate to go home before the dawning.

Flink Johnson, of course, will head a talented batch of entertainers who'll be dropping by to make like show time in early ayem. It'll be something different for a change.

Speaking of changes, Tall Man (That's Kleeco's Walter Thomas) has wrought one whale of a changs by unveiling his new Tango Room. It's tangrific!

You probably won't find many changes — you'll never know — but it wouldn't hurt a bit if you'd drop in on these folks who'll be more than gassed to see you on your night out:

Red Fox, Moulon Rouge, New Colony, Knotty Pine, East Side, Carnival Lounge, Cabana, Dotson's, Jones Cocktail Lounge, and Alpine Villa. . . TEN-FOUR!

Bowling bug bites young Baltimoreans

A PAIR of Monumental City teenagers show the effects of being bitten by the tenpin bug that is sweeping the country and aiding in the fight against juvenile delinquency. Young Valdem a r Washington (left) approaches cautiously as he strives for a "mark" during activity at a bowling party celebrating the birthday of a young friend, Benny Phillips, at a local alley. At right, showing more abandon but with teeth gripping an outstretched tongue, Frank Phillips 3rd (Benny's cousin) prepares to let go.

JOE BLACK, ex Brooklyn Dodger pitcher and now special marketing representative for the Greyhound corporation, traveled from New York to take a group of AFRO newsboys to a baseball game, Saturday. However, the game was rained out. The AFRO salesmen will instead be taken to the opening game between the Baltimore Bullets and Boston Celtics basketball teams. Left to right are Michael Lee, Glenn Johnson, Stanley Johnson, Nathaniel Tiggle, Ralph Cornick (in back) and Mrs. Black.

Rival coaches pessimistic on eve of Poet-C ub game

If the testimony of the two rival coaches are to be taken seriously, the Dunbar - Carver game at Kirk Field (Saturday) afternoon will pit a "just fair" team against one that is riddled with injuries.

Needless to say, pre-game evaluations by coaches are seldom taken seriously, so fans may not be surprised if the non-conference tilt between these traditional foes turns out to be a wide open, exciting battle.

The game, slated to get under way at 1:05 p.m., will be televised.

* * *

"WE'RE just fair," says Sugar Cain, veteran coach of the Poets. "That's all there is to say about our bunch this year.

"We'll show up and we'll do the best we can. But there are only eight boys back from last year's entire squad, and they haven't played together as a team yet.

"The line is light, small and inexperienced. Our quarterback, (Willie White) is small and is bound to have trouble throwing unless he gets much better protection than I can anticipate.

"Yet, as I said earlier, we're going to be at the field and we'll be doing the best we can."

"WE'RE HURTING, and bad."

That is the lament of Carver coach Charley Robinson, who reminds all and sundry that his Cubs played Douglass last week with seven boys on the injured list.

"For a young group — we had only two seniors in the starting lineup — I thought we did very well against Douglass, to tie them 6-6. We expected to make a lot of mistakes with our load of 10th and 11th graders, but I was quite satisfied.

"HOWEVER," adds Robinson, "we've probably lost Ron Epps, our best halfback, for the year with a shoulder separation. He and fullback Leroy Burns, guard Mike Richardson and Lawrence Mitchell are among the seven we had out last week, and now they've been joined by more of our main hopes.

"Quarterback Bob Herndon hurt his shoulder and guard Ernie Jefferson injured his back against Douglass. Both are likely to be out about two weeks.

"Ron Ramseur has been under treatment for a virus and, even if he rejoins the team, it isn't reasonable to expect him to be up to par.

This morning (Wednesday), I've been told the doctors had ordered Tyrone Pittman to take a rest until his physical condition can be checked.

"Like i said, we're hurting," Robbie concluded.—LACY.
