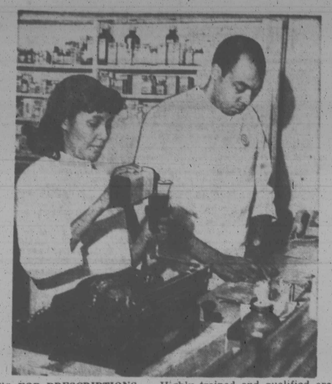
PHARMACISTS: THEIR FIRST CONCERN IS SERVICE



TWO FOR PRESCRIPTIONS — Highly trained and qualified are these two pharmacists, who are among the five employed by the Hilton Court Pharmacy, Inc. They are Mrs. Rebecca Davis and John C. Hagan.

By GEORGE COLLINS

A search for independence, firm conviction that no one can do for you better than you yourself, pursuit of personal satisfaction derived from achievement, and a desire to open up new avenues of opportunity ...

These are the ingredients which gave birth to the Hilton Court Pharmacy, Inc.

Barely a year and a half old, the two-store drug outlet — like its competitors — caters to an astonding array of other needs and services — is valued at $100,000.

Hilton Court is the product of the combined determination and imagination of two pharmacists and a veteran businessman who is no stranger in the arena of consumer and dealer.

John C Hagan and Wesley Shelton, both graduates of the Howard University School of Pharmacy, are president and vice president, respectively.

Charles T. Burns, a longtime name in local business circles, is secretary-treasurer. They are the founders of Hilton Court.

First of the two-store chain, located at Liberty Heights Ave. and Hilton St., opened June, 1962. The second, Federal and Wolfe Sts., followed a year later.

There are many impressive facets of the colored-owned and operated firm, not the least of which is the impact it has had in the area of job opportunities, heretofore a scarcity among colored citizens.

In addition to the three directors, 11 other persons are on the payroll of Hilton Court. They are:

Mrs. Rebecca Davis, Earl Gates, and George Lee, pharmacist; Donald Rice, apprentice; Mrs. Ruth Burris, Mrs. Ruth Williams, Miss Estelle Parker, Mamie Faulkner, clerks.

Harry Cross, Thomas Jones and Joseph Leon, chauffeurs.

* * *

THE FIRM, based on the opinions of persons in a position to know — physicians — is doing more than an adequate job of holding its own in a highly competitive profession.

A survey of a cross section of leading physicians showed — in addition to other favorable impressions — that there is unanimous agreement on one vital point:

Hilton Court excels in efficiency, service and economy.

"An operation with compassion," the pioneer in a "new sphere," and "correcting an ancient evil," are among other laudatory assets attributed to the new and growing pharmacy.

Dr. Robert W. McDaniels, who praised the firm for its "reasonable prices and not refusing medicine to people who need it," credits Hilton Court with "destroying a practice uncovered years ago."

"It is a well known fact that heretofore, prescription costs have varied in predominantly colored and white areas. Those who could afford it least paid more.

"I have always felt that prescriptions should be priced so that if anyone benefits, it will be the patient."

Dr. McDaniels said the firm's refusal to "hold back medicine from those who need it and hope they will take care of the obligation," is a unique feature of the pharmacy and has helped it to establish confidence and rapport with the community.

"Its reasonable prices, concern for the customer and efficient service are wonderful and I hope it spreads like wildfire," the physician declared.

DR. OAKLEY H. SAUNDERS said as a "physician, I can appreciate the fact that the pharmacy is run on an ethical basis" and called it an asset — "both medically and sociologically."

"I'm glad it's there and so are my patients," enthused Dr. William M. Hall.

"It is really the first colored-owned and operated business in this area and it's doing a good job of service and efficiency," he added.

Impressed with the caliber of health service the pharmacy provides for the community, Dr. Shirley R. Clinton is encouraged with the economic breakthrough the venture represents.

"This marks an upturn in colored business in Baltimore," he said confidently.

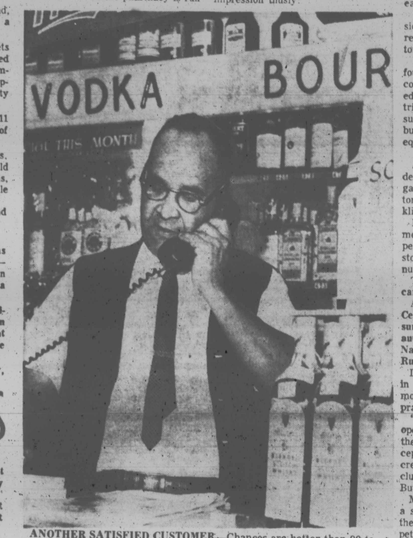
Hilton Court was called a "bold venture" by Dr. John S. Braxton Jr. who also sees an economic advantage for a large segment of the city's population.

"It gives us a chance to move into the sphere of ownership, instead of employment in a field where colored citizens have been confined to the employment end," he said.

Echoing the sentiment of other doctors, the physician lauded the staff of the firm.

They are cooperative, pleasant, and efficient."

Dr. Charles Venter capsuled his impression thusly:



ANOTHER SATISFIED CUSTOMER—Chances are better than 99 to one that the customer on the other end of the wire will be delighted with the service from the Hilton Court Pharmacy. Taking the order is Charles T. Burns, secretary and treasurer.

"Service, reliability, and economy are all very good."

A CITY that has a 37.2 per cent colored population needs drugstores of this kind, said Dr. Eric White.

"As long as there is comparable efficiency and service, there is no reason for colored physicians and patients not supporting it," he stated.

The status of the venture was seen as a tribute to the founders and operators by Dr. Emerson C. Walden.

"It's an excellent organization," he said. "I'm happy to see it. This is the first store of its type to really get off the ground. I would think it's due to the people involved. I would like to see it expand to 24-hour service."

The degree of success the firm has earned in its effort to "serve the total community," was reflected in the opinion of Mrs. Samuel Abrams, a regular customer.

"They are wonderful people. When it comes to prescription service — which is very important — they can be depended on."

Hilton Court has still another meaning for Mrs. Mable Hagan Alleyne, mother of one of the founders.

"In order to become certified it is necessary for potential pharmacists to get a year's practical experience.

"Until recently this hasn't been easy for us."

Significantly the above impressions left by the new firm are a direct result of the philosophy of Hilton Court.

Rooted in the orientation of the founders which dictates that colored consumers should also be represented in the ranks of suppliers and distributors, the firm appears to be a sure-fire bet to make a major contribution to the overall struggle for equality for all citizens.

* * *

A CASUAL CHECK of the list of dealers, suppliers, and service organizations doing business with Hilton Court reveals a generous sprinkling of colored faces.

It is an accepted fact that salesmen, deliverymen and maintenance personnel who cross the portals of the stores include more than a token number of colored citizens.

The following illustration is significant:

Accountancy, the Benjamin King Certified Public Accounting firm; insurance, Earl Koger, father and son; automobile — business connected — Nat Allor; legal counsel, George L. Russell Jr., etc.

Directors, however, are emphatic in their declarations that their modus operandi is an attempt to practice segregation in reverse.

"It is the sum total of our desire to operate in a manner consistent with the trend of the times where the concept of service and opportunity created by such a venture should include "all people." is how Mr. Burns explains their aims.

Mr. Hagan views the operation as a source of satisfaction gained from the knowledge that "you can compete successfully in a highly competitive field."

HILTON COURT, as far as Mr. Shelton is concerned, represents triumph over adverse circumstances he, himself, was a victim of.

"In the past the lack of drugstores where a colored apprentice pharmacist could acquire sufficient training to become certified was a definite handicap.

"This situation has improved recently, and establishments like this quicken the pace of this improvement."

Recalling obstacles encountered en route to becoming certified, the pharmacist declared:

"When I came out of school in 1955, I could find no drugstore that would hire me as an apprentice unless I worked for nothing."

Mr. Hagan, a 1951 Howard grad, thinks the chain operation will be an incentive for students of chemistry and science who do not necessarily want to enter the drugstore end of the profession.

"There is a place in the industry for people of different temperament. Those who chose not to establish a store — and few, if any of us, have that kind of initial cash outlay — may enter hospital pharmacy, drug manufacturing or research."

PHARMACY IS UNIQUE, as far as professions go, Mr. Hagan said, in that the supply of pharmacists never catches up with the demand.

Without hesitation, he said, he would recommend it as a rewarding life's work for anyone who derives satisfaction of rendering a valuable service while doing what they are best qualified to do.

In the first year of its young life, directors reported, the corporation filled 30,000 prescriptions.

This fact, which illustrates the degree of support and acceptance Hilton Court has earned, serves as sound basis for this prediction.

When National Pharmaceutical Week is celebrated in October, 1964, founders and customers of the firm will have a lot to celebrate.

PROMPT AND COURTEOUS — The service at the Hilton Court is always the best and here a clerk, Mrs. Ruth Williams, serves another happy customer.

SOME HEATING TIPS

By GORDON W. CRANE

With an eye to Old Man Winter, perched around the proverbial corner around the proverbial corner, the AFRO, as a public service to its readers, asked a heating expert to list some pointers on how best to keep warm economically and safely through the upcoming winter.

Our consultant was Robert Holt, franchised fuel oil dealer of 1655 W. North Ave., whose five-year-old firm outgrew its present quarters and demanded an expansion.

Based on predictions from the heating industry, which in turn relies on the long-range probings of meteorologists, the winter of 1963-64 is destined to be a long, hard one, according to Mr. Holt.

The current price of fuel oil — 15.3 cents per gallon — is therefore destined to be hiked, possibly more than once.

Hence the timeliness of these oil-saving — and money-saving — hints, as listed by Mr. Holt.

1. Make sure your furnace is clean.
2. Weatherstrip windows and doors, if home is not tightly constructed.
3. Although not mandatory, it is to the best advantage of homeowners to install storm windows and doors.
4. Don't overlook basement windows and doors, where icy winds can play havoc with your heating budget.
5. Don't be a "thermostat juggler."
6. Turn off radiators and close doors to rooms not being used.
7. Modernize your equipment.

THE EXPERT said research and experience in the heating industry have shown that clean furnaces not only cut down on oil consumption but give added protection from fires as well.

Many fires have resulted from soot-packed furnaces when they are turned on at the beginning of the heating season, Mr. Holt pointed out.

Loose - joined windows and doors are the greatest heat wasters, according to the expert, because when sneaky winds reach the thermostat it is an automatic signal for the furnace to go into action.

Neglected basement windows and doors are the major culprits in this respect, our consultant reported.

Numerous "air-pockets" are found in non-compact or huge, rambling - type structures, researchers have found.

For these homes, Mr. Holt informed us, storm windows and doors are more protective than decorative.

UNUSED ROOMS say heat uselessly and shutting off radiators and closing doors to such rooms account for appreciable savings during the winter, Mr. Holt advises.

Maintenance of heating equipment is a vital part of any plan for a worry free winter, the consultant stated.

This not only conserves fuel but prolongs the life of your equipment as well," he said.

The life of a furnace depends to a large extent on the care it receives, Mr. Holt said, adding that "they last indefinitely if properly cared for."

PERIODIC CLEANING and inspection will detect otherwise unnoticed defects which could prove very expensive if allowed to continue the dealer said, and made this suggestion:

"The mystery of oil heat has been solved. Factory-trained servicemen are thoroughly acquainted with the operation of furnaces.

"The guess work has been eliminated so you can trust the advice and performance of reputable repair and servicemen.

"You'll find it profitable to modernize your equipment, making use of all inventions created by research."

The "thermostat juggler" is his own worse enemy, Mr. Holt declared.

"Juggling the thermostat imposes an unnecessary burden on the furnace in addition to a useless drain on your oil supply. It is far better — and less expensive — to maintain a constant temperature in the home," the expert pointed out.

KEEPING FUEL tanks full to avoid formation of vapor which creates rust, and opening doors on furnaces not equipped with summer-winter hookups to prevent moisture are other helpful hints offered by Mr. Holt.

Depending on the condition of the particular home and furnace, oil consumption can go as high as 20 or as low as two gallons on such a day, Mr. Holt said.

His firm, Mr. Holt said, has enjoyed considerable success in the past five years. Through its factory-trained mechanics, efficient and courteous driver-salesmen his firm has gained wide acceptance and shows strong indications of continued growth.

Having outgrown its present home, the firm will be relocated on a site to accommodate new office space and storage facilities for 100,000 gallons of fuel, the dealer said proudly.

Employees include James Richburg, driver - salesman; Sherwood Wilson, factory-trained service mechanic of 15 years experience; and James Dandridge, driver-salesman, former Morgan student.

Miss Cynthia Hunter is office manager.

FREE LUNCHES

Baltimore City public schools have been observing National School Lunch Week.

The week — Oct. 13-19 was designated nationally by President John F. Kennedy and in Maryland by Gov. J. Millard Tawes.

The purpose of the week is to focus the attention of parents and pupils on the importance of proper nutrition.

Clarence J. Gittings, administrative assistant in the city's school system, told the AFRO that safeguarding the health of today's students is a solid and secure investment in the nation's future.

School cafeterias, said Mr. Gittings, are providing students with well - balanced, nourishing and low - cost lunches.

THE PUBLIC schools provide two types of lunches — a "Type A" lunch for those who can pay and a free lunch for those who can't.

Mr. Gittings said that 18,000-20,000 students are served the Type A lunch. The lunch provides from one-third to one- half the necessary daily intake of food.

With the Type A lunch, the student receives a half-pint of milk, protein rich foods, vegetables, fruits, bread and butter or margarine.

Elementary school children purchase the lunch for 30 cents while it costs secondary students five cents more.

THE FREE lunch and milk program is limited by a lack of funds. Mr. Gittings said that the program is financed by contributions from the Federal Government, the city and private groups.

The free lunch program is valuable because it gives many children the opportunity of having at least one wholesome meal each school day.

"A well - nourished child learns better and faster," said Mr. Gittings.

Schools such as Mt. Royal Elementary School, 121 McMechen St., have embarked upon an active program to inform their students of the importance of lunch.

Mrs. Mary K. Pool, chairman of the lunch program at the Mt. Royal school, said that her school is stressing physical fitness and hot lunches.

THE STUDENTS learn how to make up the menu, buy nutritional foods, prepare a greater variety of meals, be economical in purchasing food and the value of the cafeteria.

Mrs. Pool also said that what the children learn in school, they will be able to take home to help their parents.

THE U.S. Department of Agriculture plays an important role in the school lunch program.

James C. Kellam, an administrative officer in the department, said last year his division purchased and distributed some $45,000,000 worth of food to schools throughout the nation.

Through what is known as a Section 6 program, the department buys meats, natural juices, beans, canned vegetables for distribution to school cafeterias.

The schools need the aid to help maintain their low lunch prices so that the students can afford the meals.
