THE REV. Mr. Murray did respond though in a prepared statement Wednesday. He said, in part:

"We regret that dragging in questions of school prayers and pornography should be permitted to obscure the issues in civil rights.

"For the record, the ACLU does not favor the distribution of pornographic materials to the young. We are opposed to prior and secret censorship.

"Again for the record, the ACLU has consistently supported the recent United State Supreme Court decision in the school prayer case as in fact the law of the land. Would the councilman be more favorably disposed to us if we advocated lawlessness?"

In an arson case Wednesday Judge Oppenheimer delayed sentencing John H. Anderson, 19, 2700 block Pennsylvania Ave., pending completion of mental examination.

Anderson was convicted of setting fire to the fourth floor of Oct. 19 last year. In a statement to investigators, the youth said he started the blaze because he was displeased with the action of hospital officials "about my back when I hurt it."

The day before Anderson set fire to the hospital closet he also started one in the restroom but put it out, Richard O. Motsay, prosecutor, said.

TESTIFYING IN Anderson's defense, hospital employees credited him with helping to rescue children from the children's ward and in aiding firefighters to extinguish the blaze.

In a second arson case Judge Oppenheimer sentenced Stewart L. Goldstein, 17, to five years in the Reformatory for Males.

Goldstein, of the 3100 block Park Heights Ave, testified he struck fire to a Pennsylvania Ave. sporting goods store because he was "having family difficulties."

W. Va. favored over Norfolk in classic at D.C. Stadium

IN D.C. STADIUM — Eugene Lambert, sophomore quarterback of the Norfolk State College, will lead the Spartans against West Virginia State College in Washington's D. C. Stadium in the Capital Classic Saturday night. Lambert is a former Douglass High star of Baltimore, Md.

WASHINGTON

West Virginia State College will rule a slight favorite over Norfolk State College in the twenty-first renewal of the Capital Classic at D. C. Stadium, Saturday night.

Bolstered by seven previous classic appearances and a line averaging 209 pounds, the Yellowjackets are out to improve on their 24-1 classic record made at old Griffith Stadium, while the lighter and faster Spartans are aspiring for their first classic victory.

The 8 o'clock kickoff will mark the first time any predominately colored colleges have played in the new D. C. Stadium.

WHILE THE integrated West Virginia eleven will throw an extremely heavy forward wall at the Spartans, the Virginians are not too overshadowed in this department with a line that tips 203 on the average. This figure can be increased to match the Yellowjackets if sophomore Oliver Grifin, 273-pound tackle from Walker - Grant High in nearby Fredericksburg, Va., is a starter.

Besides the Virginians carry a heavier backfield that averages 195 pounds to West Virginia's 179. This means an aerial battle is in the offing and anything can happen when the pigskin is tossed around a lot.

THIS WILL be an interstate battle in the true sense of the phrase as Norfolk has twenty - seven players from Virginia high schools on its roster and West Virginia boasts of thirty - four home-grown products.

Three former Washington scholastic stars are on the Norfolk aggregation. Bob McFadden, 6-foot-2, 225 pound ex-Roosevelt stalwart will be at guard, while Louis Tutt, 165 - pound speedster, and Jim Leggett, 180 - pound quarterback, both former Spingarn High standouts, will see action in the backfield.

In addition to Griffin, the Virginians have another Walker - Grant product in Leroy Hamm, 250 - pound sophomore tackle, and two other area players, Michael Johnson, 195 - pound guard, and Gene Lambert, passing sensation, both former Douglass High luminaries from Baltimore.

The half-time show will feature the traditional crowning of "Miss Capital Classic" and a 150 - piece band.

sought service in a segregated bar in the Boomtown section of Hanover.

The shooting, Mr. Keenan told the jury, climaxed a three-day dispute between the soldiers and a band of white youths, alleggdly led by Warfel.

THE ACTUAL shooting occurred on the premises of Fort Meade after the white gang chased the servicemen back to the post, testimony showed.

Defense attorneys claimed the slaying occurred after the soldiers cruised through the area and threw a bottle in Warfel's car.

The 19-year-old soldier was slain, they claimed, during a several melee involving Pfc. John A. Pettiford and Sp. 5 Connis Hubbard, Rodriquez's companions and Warfel and his friends.

Hubbard and Pettiford Testified they were attacked by the band of whites while driving through the area in early morning after attending parties in Baltimore.

Warfel, who earlier had "test-fired" the gun, a prosecution witness testified, claimed he intended to "shoot in the air" to "scare" the soldiers.

Open house held at Henryton

Refreshments were served held open house Tuesday and parents and other members of the public visited the institution which is a special-ized training center for severely retarded adults.

Visitors were taken on guided tours of work and play areas of the hospital.

Some 201 patients—119 males and 82 females—are being treated in the hospital.

During open house, Dr. T Glyne Williams, assistant commissioner of mental Hygiene, spoke on the subject, "Where Are We in Retardation."

HENRYTON IS a former tuberculosis hospital which was converted in 1962 to treat the mentally retarded.

Novel methods are being used to help the severely mentally retarded return to their communities.

Mrs. Juanita Chase, social worker who did her undergraduate work at Morgan State College and who has her Master's in Social Work, reported that the average mental age of the retarded people in Henryton is three years.

In the past, such severely retarded people were banished to out-of-the-way places.

Now, reported Mrs. Chase, they are taught, through group aides or leaders, how to be useful.

Presently, all of the custodial work at the hospital is done by the inmates, many of whom had been condemned to being totally unproductive.

Music is an important part of their rehabilitation.

Through music the patient learns how to socialize and communicate with other people.

The patient is also taught to be like other people and how to do for himself—bath, shave, eat, make beds, mend their clothing, clean, etc.

Parents and relatives are also encouraged to visit the patients and to take them home, when they are ready, on holidays and weekends.

RELATIVES ARE also invited to participate in the hospital's program and to share in the rehabilitation of their kin.

Henryton, like most other social institutions, lacks trained personnel. To fill the gap, volunteer workers had in the training of the patients and served as group leaders.

Most of the volunteers come from the immediate area.

Mrs. Chase said that more volunteers from the Baltimore city area are needed.

Speech therapists, specialized education teachers, social workers and occupational therapists are among the specialists needed to push Henryton's program onward.

ROSEWOOD STATE Hospital also held open house, Tuesday.

Speaker was Dr. Isadore Tuerk, State Commissioner Henryton State Hospital by the domestic work program trainees.
