JAZZ ENSEMBLE — Members of the Collective Black Artists Jazz Ensemble, who will play a benefit concert for the Survival Center East on June 13 at the Famous Ballroom.

TJD on 'Profile' program

A prsonal interview witn Baltimore's Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, III, will be televised on WBAL-TV's "Profile" special scheduled for Sunday, June 13, at 6-7 p.m., in color on TV 11.

Sydney King, WBAL-TV Community Service Manager, and To Ross, Assistant Community Service Manager, will conduct the interview, which will be designed to focus on the Mayor as a person rather than a political figure.

The program is one of several special interviews seen on WBAL-TV. Other similar interviews have spotlighted a wide variety of people including Sarah Cephas, a Baltimore housewife; Reverend Frederick J. Hanna, Rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church in Reisterstown, Md., and Cardinal Shehan, Archbishop of Baltimore.

Jazz Society benefit for Survival Center

On Sunday, June 13, the Left Bank Jazz Society of Baltimore will promote a jazz concert for the benefit of the Survival Center East. This will be the third in a series of jazz concerts given by the Left Bank Jazz Society for the Community Action Agency's Project Survival.

The proceeds are intended to help in the founding of a multi-purpose center to be located at Guilford Ave. and Oliver St. The Survival Center East will have its official opening this coming October.

The Survival Center East will have many functions, possibly the most important of which will be the founding of a day care center for senior citiens. Materials will be provided for the elderly to participate in various arts and crafts.

Guests who prefer to remain to themselves will have large prints books and talking books. Programs will be initiated to involve the senior citziens in activities that will result in their feeling a sense of belonging, even one of the "family."

The day care center will be administered by project S.A.G.A. (Security in Action for Golden Agers'. SGA is currently operating a center at 606 N. Paca St. Plans are in the making for the founding of a Boys' Club which will also be housed and administered by the center.

The Left Bank Jazz Society's Jazz Concert on June 13 will showcase the musical talents of "The Collective Black Artists Jazz Ensemble," whose personnel include: James Spaulding, Sonny Fortune, Jimmy Heath, Roland Alexander (reeds), Jimmy Owens, Johnny Coles, Joe Gardiner, Cecil Bridgewater (trumpets), Kiane Zawadi, Vincent Holmes, Curtis Fuller, Dick Griffin (trombones), Stanley Cowell, Ted Dunbar, Reggie Workman, Freddie Waits and the vocalist will be either Dede Bridgewater or Andy Bey.

The concert will be held at the Famous Ballromm, 1717 N. Charles St., from 5 to 9 p.m. For further information phone "Jazzline," 945-2266.

Rock Glen dedicates dogwood

Wednesday, June 9, at 10 a.m. there was a memorial dedication of a flowering dogwood tree on the campus of Rock Glen Junior High School located 201 North end Rd.

The tree was dedicated to Miss Anne L. Ballage, who was the first principal when the school opened in June, 1970. She died in April of this year.

Participating in the dedication was the Rev. Lavely Grover, pastor of Rogne Heights Methodist Church, who gave the dedication, Mrs. Rita Berry, president of the PTA and Mrs. Elizabeth H. Adams, principal of Rock Glen Junior High School.

Also participating was Timothy Brown, president of the student council, and a selected group of students who sang the song "Trees," words by Joyce Kilmer. Ed Roberts is the director of the music group. In attendance were members of the PTA, parents, faculty, student body, and others.

On June 16 at Glen Rock there will be the 9th grade graduation. Due to the number of students graduating, there will be exercises in both morning and afternoon. At 10 a.m. William Donald Schaffer will be the guest speaker.

At 1 p.m., George Russell will speak.

Early summer swimming a hazard, says Red Cross

WASHINTGON — As temperatures rise and Americans begin flocking to beaches, pools and waterways, the American Red Cross cautioned swimmers that almost 50 per cent of early summer drownings are caused by trying to do too much too soon after a winter of inactivity.

"So take it easy the first few times out," suggests Robert M. Oswald, national director of Red Cross Safety Programs.

"Don't court disaster by overtaxing yourself before A few more hints for swimmers recommended by the water. Many of last year's more than 7,000 drownings occurred in the early weeks of the season."

* * *

A few more hints for swimers recommended by the Red Cross are:

Don't substitute floating devices for swimming ability.

Don't dive into unknown water or shallow breaking waves.

Maintain close supervision of children at all times.

Don't swim close to piers, pilings, diving boards and platforms.

Know how to administer artificial respiration and lear simple and safe reaching rescues.

Don't attempt to see how far you can swim under water.
