Bill Swindell, Horn Man

By Paul D. McAllister

Bill Swindell is gone; but I will not grieve,
He wasn't much for tears and pity;
He wouldn't want a monument constructed in the city,
He paid his dues and quietly gave us leave.

* * *

I used to see Swindell going to work
With Johnny Burks, Clyde Patterson, Rufus Nance
They didn't get the breaks. They didn't get the chance.
It seems the fates must have quirked them a quirk.

* * *

I dug his sounds, and his moods, and his themes,
Tunes like scrapple from an apple, and flying home.
I could drink some beers, and lose my gloom,
And it seems we all walked on the street of dreams.

* * *

So farewell to Bill Swindell, and I clearly must add
That he wasn't all good and he wasn't all bad.

Carver High students make 'pretty' choice

Miss Bernessa R. Weens had never entered a school contest until a few days ago. Nov. she wished she had entered more.

The attractive Carver High School senior was elected that school's homecoming queen on Nov. 3 by a fairly convincing margin.

The brown-eyed cosmetology major will attend Morgan State College next fall and major in Business Management. She aspires to be a successful beautician, and judging from her looks, that should be no problem at all.

Provident has new emergency room team

Providex Professional Association, Inc. is providing 24-hour a day, seven days a week, emergency room physician coverage of the Provident Hospital Emergency Room.

The group operates under a letter of agreement with the Receiver until Providex's contract proposal has been reviewed by the heads of all affected departments of the Provident Hospital Complex.

Their input with regard to the Providex contract will be incorporated in a report to be submitted to the Medical Executive Committee of Provident Hospital and then to the Receiver for his guidance in negotiating the final contract by Nov. 1.

The need for the employment of a highly competent group of emergency room physicians as opposed to the old system of "moon lighters" was recognized by the administrative medical staffs of the old Provident Hospital.

Letters explaining the concept and requesting participation of interested physicians in an emergency room group practice have been sent periodically to all black physicians in the Baltimore area since 1969.

The Providex Professional Association, Inc. is headed by Dr. Hector Feliciano who will serve as Providex's chief liaison with the appropriate hospital committees and personnel.

THE HEATING FUEL SHORTAGE:

WHERE WE SET OUR THERMOSTATS WILL DETERMINE HOW SEVERE IT WILL BE

A heating fuel shortage of as much as 10% has been forecast for this winter. Oil, gas, and electricity will all be involved.

You don't like it. We don't like it. But the fact is, there just isn't going to be enough heating fuel to go around.

This may cause some very unpleasant things to happen. Schools closing and kids missing their classes. Businesses closing and workers missing paychecks. Brownouts by electric utilities.

But there is something we can all do to ease the situation.

CONSERVATION: IT HELPED BEAT THE GASOLINE SHORTAGE LAST SUMMER

If we all use a little less, there'll be more for us all. Last summer was a case in point.

The forecast was for a shortage of gasoline based on normal usage. Amoco and other oil companies urged people to conserve gasoline. And they responded by using less gasoline so that very few communities suffered severe run-outs. In fact, most people felt nothing more then a minor inconvenience.

YOUR THERMOSTAT IS THE KEY TO HEATING FUEL CONSERVATION THIS WINTER

If everyone would dial down their thermostat this winter, it could ease the shortage tremendously. For example, if you dial down a few degrees to a daytime setting of not more than 70°, you can conserve a substantial amount of heating fuel over the year. That's true whether you use oil, gas or electricity.

And if you dial down another 5° overnight—to a setting of 65°—you can conserve even more.

If you go away for the weekend, remember to dial down the thermostat to not more than 55°, so you don't waste fuel by overheating an empty house.

We're asking all Amoco employees to dial down both at work and at home. We are asking all businesses and government to dial down, too. And we're asking you to do the same. It's a job for all of us because it's important to all of us.

For a booklet on additional ways to conserve heating fuel, contact your Amoco Heating Fuel man, or write: Heating Fuel Conservation, Amoco Oil Company, MC-1506, P.O. Box 6110A, Chicago, Illinois 60680.

WHAT IS CAUSING THE SHORTAGE

The international crude oil situation has been bad right along, and recent developments in the Mid-East have made it even worse.

When one source of crude supply tightens up, it puts extra burdens not only on other crude sources, but on the availability of foreign refined products for import, as well.

U.S. refineries probably won't be able to run at capacity this winter because they won't have the available crude oil necessary to maintain full production. This affects not only people who heat with oil, but electric power as well, since many utilities born oil to generate electricity.

WHAT AMOCO IS DOING TO EASE THE SHORTAGE

For months now, we've been making as much heating oil as we could. We have made a concerted effort to encourage our customers to fill their storage. We have built maximum inventories at our bulk plants and terminals. We offered advice on conservation. All of this was done so that we could be in better shape to take care of our customers.

Further, we implemented a voluntary allocation plan to our agents and dealers based on previous years' usage. We also have implemented the government's allocation plan.

IT'S UP TO ALL OF US

Just a little heating fuel conserved per home per week can make the difference between a severe shortage and a mild one. Let's all dial down that thermostat and beat this thing together.

Few blacks at 1st meet of city board

It's not everyday that private citizens can tell the Mayor what is wrong in their communities, how it might be remedied and have him say that something will be done about it.

And few black citizens were on hand Tuesday evening when the opportunity to directly talk to the Mayor was first presented.

But citizens of Baltimore, with a problem and a proposed solution, have the opportunity again to meet Mayor William D. Schaefer face to face by attending the next two meetings of the Mayor's Advisory Committee on Municipal Problems.

The first meeting was held Tuesday night, with a noticeable absence of black citizens, who comprise more than half the population of the city, and a surprisingly large number about 6 out of 27 attendees, from the county.

* * *

Blaine Taylor, chairman of the committee, explained that the original group of 104 invitees, also lacking an equitable number of blacks, had been divided into three groups to attend the separate meetings.

However of the same eight blacks in attendance Tuesday evenings only one acknowledged having been invited to attend the first meeting.

Subsequently meetings will be held Nov. 8 and Nov. 27 at 7 p.m. in the Board of Estimates Room, 231, in City Hall, 100 N. Holiday St.

Taylor says that any citizen with a problem and a proposed solution is welcome to attend, explaining that the program is an ongoing one which will have several committees working on various problems following the initial three meetings.

The Mayor says that all solutions may not be workable, and that final decisions are left to him as the city's chief executive, but the opportunity for direct answers to problems plaguing black communities is at hand.

Paul Evans, director of public relations at Coppin State College, is co-vice chairman. Miss Karen Slaughter is also co-vice chairman, with Miss Joan Vermeulen serving as recording secretary.

The grand finals will be held on Sunday, Jan. 6, at 12 noon. For additional information call Tim Latshaw at 444-6396.

Mrs. Vance must now find the money to pay for her son's funeral and needless to say, she will need help, a great deal of help.

Of course, any and all donations (both spiritual and financial) are appreciated and may be sent to:
