1973 Advance Federal report

Each year Advance Federal Savings and Loan Association issues a report of activities to members and friends and takes a look at the coming year to see what is in store for the association.

Advance became an $11 million institution in 1973 and increased assets $1,063,633 or 11 per cent while reducing borrowed money 22.5 per cent. We ended 1973 with a record high of $11,076,918 in Assets.

Savings members received $443,736 in dividends, 20 per cent more than was paid in dividends during 1972. Dividends on passbook accounts that maintain minimum balances of $1,000 have been raised to the annual rate of 5.25 per cent and are credited and compounded quarterly.

Dividends on accounts that maintain balances of at least $50.00 but less than $1,000 have been raised to 5 per cent.

Dividends on certificate accounts opened since July 1973 range from 5.5 per cent to 7.5 per cent. Both an increase in savings accounts and in the dividend rates contributed to the substantial increase in our dividends.

Savings accounts reached $9,391,930, which represents an increase of $1,123,415 or 14 per cent over the comparable year end figure for 1972. With additional savings placed in Advance Federal, we could make Homeowners of more City Dwellers.

Advance granted $2,592,252 in mortgage loans in 1973, a 4 per cent decrease from 1972.

When one considers the fact that Maryland law made it illegal for purchasers of homes to pay over 8 per cent interest on conventional mortgage loans while Advance was paying 10 per cent prime interest rate, on borrowed money, it is remarkable that mortgage lending at Advance Federal did not decline significantly last yead.

Advance could have made many more mortgage loans last year, if savings members had transferred more money to Advance Federal.

First mortgage loans on homes, churches and business properties in Advance lending area rose to $9,798,599 an increase of $1,758,116.

Advance has mortgages on properties in the cities of Baltimore and Columbia and the following counties: Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Howard, Montgomery and Prince George's.

The 22 per cent increase in the mortgage portfolio over 1972 represents a new high in service rendered Maryland homeowners.

Advance would like to make homeowners of many more Marylanders in 1974 and plan to expand office facilities and add new window posting machines in order to serve saving and borrowing members more rapidly.

Advance expects to increase assets to at least $12,500,000 without using borrowed money.

You can earn high dividends and help Advance Federal provide decent housing for more residents of Maryland by transferring your savings to Advance Federal Today," Dr. H. O. Bryson, president states.

Employers back changing state unemployment law

Employers favoring S.B. 231 talked of "cheaters" and "barely pregnant" women, while James N. Phillips, executive director of the Employment Security Administration gave several reasons why the bill should not be passed from committee.

"This bill represents a comprehensive change in the basic structure of the Unemployment Insurance system of this state," Phillips said.

Among changes he cited were weekly benefits amounts payable to individual claimants, elimination of dependent allowances, methods of earning eligibility and benefit duration.

George W. Emory Jr., vice president of a multi-store auto parts company in Montgomery County, told the Economic Affairs Committee that he personally has reported five or six "cheaters" to the department and gotten no response.

He also charged that the Maryland system pays funds to women "barely pregnant." He described this stage as being about four months.

Employers apparently feel that the bill will limit their liability for benefit payments. The bill is the outcome of a special committee of the Legislative Council, formed following employer complaints.

According to Phillips an individual could earn a weekly check of $95 under the new system as compared with a ceiling of $78 under the old.

Benefit amount would be calculated on 54 per cent of his "average weekly wage in insured employment in the 16 weeks of highest earnings in his base period not to exceed $55 per week," he said.

Claimants would get one week of benefits for every two weeks in their base period that they received $32 or more.

The bill also requires that the claimant must have been paid at least $32 in not less than 16 weeks in covered employment.

Under the present uniform duration system claimants are covered for up to 26 weeks. The new bill allows for a minimum of eight.

Phillips cited figures showing that in 1972 the nationwide average potential duration was 23.8 weeks.

The bill was predicted to not work well in cases involving seasonal workers and out-of-town employers whose records would not be readily available.

Ministers back Dr. Patterson

The Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance has reaffirmed its support and confidence in Dr. Roland N. Patterson, superintendent of Baltimore public schools and commended him for his success in the administration of the school system.

this re-affirmatio is necessary "in view of the proliferation of unfounded and rather disparaging remarks regarding your leadership."

A letter signed by the organization's president, Melvin Chester Swann, states: "There is ample evidence that within the last two years you have succeeded in heading one of the nation's largest school systems in the direction of quality education for all rather than an elitist system for the privileged few.

"Additionally, we are impressed with the relative quietude that has been established in the schools, after a period of unrest and confrontation. To your credit, this has been accomplished without moving in the direction of a callous disregard for human right."

Stating that they fully realize that change by definition is painful, the ministers state "it generates a feeling of insecurity among those who feel threatened," noting that ". . . the very retooling and redirection ordains such insecurity."

The members stated that they believe the success of Dr. Patterson's effort would justify the changes and minimize the unwarranted aspects of insecurity.

Suffice it to say that we are both mindful of and impressed with your leadership, thus far. We know that you are not prone to being intimidated by those who are self-serving or who view the domain of public education as a political football.

"We merely feel that your actions thus far need to be recognized and commended. We stand behind you fully in your mission to make the Baltimore City Schools alive, vibrant, equal and purposeful."

RNA head says display freedom flag

JACKSON, Miss. — The president of the beseiged Provisional Government of the Republic of New Africa (RNA) has called upon all black people and friends of black people to fly the black-red-and-green liberation flag during Feb. 10-16.

President Imari Abubakari Obadele, has proclaimed the second week in February as Flag and Reparations Week.

He said that flying the flag will not only show black unity and respect for the past and present struggles of black people, it will be a show of support for the RNA effort to build new communities from reparations and win land and independence for those blacks who want it.

For three years the RNA has been waging a campaign to organize a plebiscite, an independence vote, in the Kush District, 25 black-majority counties lying along the Mississippi River from Memphis to the Louisana border.
