gene W.) Gallagher, who voted against Jim Reid, said he would make an excellent planner," Venetoulis said.

• • •

Venetoulis rapped councilmen voting against Reid saying, "their behavior shows frightening disregard to basic charter responsibilities of the legislative branch of government and clear indication that they prefer the sordid ways of the past to the fresh possibilities of the future . . ."

Under the administration of county executive Dale Anderson, convicted of multiple counts of fraud in 1974, Baltimore County fought against low income people moving into the county.

At least two council members voting against Reid, deny his interracial marriage played a part in their personal vote.

Clarence Ritter said, "I wasn't even aware of it until Feb. 27." The council voted March 3.

"It was never mentioned to me by a councilman," he said, adding that between Feb. 28 and March 3 he received about 53 calls from constituents concerning the vote.

after Tuesday's 12:40 p.m. holdup.

Baltimore County police reveal the suspects were apprehended when a state police dog sniffed out the three as they were hiding in a coil of cable near a North Point warehouse.

Police recovered a brown suitcase containing an undetermined amount of money and a .32 caliber revolver believed used in the stickup.

The arrests, which took place shortly after 4 p.m., were the culmination of a two-hour search by about 125 law enforcement officers aided by about 6 dogs and a helicopter.

A half-mile wooded area, bounded by Beachwood, Belfast and Fisher Roads and Back River, was the focal point of the search.

The hiding place was on the outskirts of the area.

Records show police were led to the scene when a county policeman, investigating a trail of smoke coming from the woods, found a man attempting to burn a car that resemble the getaway car used by two men who robbed the bank.

When police appeared on the scene, the suspect fled into the woods. Unable to find the man, the officer called for help which soon arrived with dogs.

and "we make out the checks."

She said, "We keep the records. The court keeps the records and so does the sub-contracting company."

Mrs. Zalls admitted that evicted tenants' furnishings not retrieved within 30 days are auctioned off by the Zalls Auctioneers.

She said, "We are the auctioneers for the highest dollar, a contract for which we bid. Anyone could have bid on it. We get a percentage."

Congressman Parren J. Mitchell told the AFRO Thursday he has undertaken an immediate investigation on complaints from evicted tenants one of whom he says suffered auctioning of the family's furnishings.

Another case is under investigation by Legal Aid attorneys. Another investigation is being conducted by Baltimore Neighborhoods Inc. (BNI).

• • •

Commander Calvin Lewis, head of Western District Police Division and other police officials are watching the course taken by persons concerned with furnishings of evicted tenants from the time the furnishings are taken from the house until they reach a warehouse.

• • •

Meantime, Del. Bralley said he has learned that landlords send out 10,000 to 12,000 eviction notices a month.

He states that some tenants are being evicted for simply complaining to the landlords about repairs that need to be made.

He also states he has evidence that landlords can and do evict tenants after they complain too much rent is charged.

Del. Bralley says that all a landlord has to do is send the tenant a 60-day notice.

As proof, he offered a letter sent to a widowed lady who complained to her landlord that her furniture was ruined by a leaky roof.

The letter states, "This letter is my notification of termination of tenancy for the apartment you now occupy which is Apt. 1 located on Maine Ave., Baltimore, Md. This termination will be effective Feb. 12.

preserve my health, welfare and self-respect and in the interest of both parties."

The husband's bill of complaint states he and his wife were married May 5, 1956. The older of their two children is 18 and the younger 14.

Mr. Ashby claims there is no hope of reconciliation.

When the AFRO reached Mrs. Ashby by phone Wednesday night, she said she had received no formal notice of her husband's filing for divorce and does not know what her answer will be.

students presently in the school.

The school will also remain substantially near its present racial composition housing 1420 students, 72 per cent black.

Fallstaff Middle School zone has been expanded to include the students of the entire community who helped establish the school. Thus, the school will retain its feeder schools, Mt. Washington and Cross Country Elementary.

• • •

The area above Northern Parkway between Pimlico Rd. and Park Heights Ave. which had previously been zoned into Pimlico Junior High has now been zoned into Fallstaff.

An amendment to a motion that would include those students from the Grove Park Elementary Area defeated because of the existing limited space at Fallstaff.

• • •

In order to remain a combination elementary - junior high school next fall, Robert Poole's entire 8th grade body will be re-assigned and housed in the City-Eastern complex.

The eight major changes will not affect the present projected number of student's to shift in September to remain between 14,000 and 16,000 students.

It is expected that 43,000 students will be housed in the city's 24 junior and two middle schools that will be desegregated along with the senior high schools.

The board will keep the present pairing plan on the elementary school level but will monitor the progress of that plan to determine if a revision is necessary.

marijuana, cocaine, hashish and LSD.

According to the detectives who conducted the raid, the police had been investigating the dope ring four months and often used wiretaps to seek information.

Police state they raided 11 locations in the apartment development and are searching for others.

He states that such a letter is typical of hundreds being received by city tenants.

• • •

Del. Bralley also states he has complaints that furnishings picked up after eviction are often minus the TV sets when the tenants go to reclaim his furnishings.

A documented and compiled list, he said, is kept of such complaints and other complaints are invited from tenants who feel they have been wronged.

Complaints may also go to Baltimore Neighborhoods, 32 N. 25th St., 243-6007 where authorities will investigate or transfer complainants to other agencies for aid.

Churches help recruit police Sunday

Sunday is Community Awareness Day as designated in a request by Major Neal Brockington of Eastern Police District.

Sgt. George Boston of Community Relations states that each minister is asked to inform the congregation of a responsibility to assist police in efforts to reduce crime. It is left to the minister as to emphasis to be placed on the sermon or announcement.

Ministers are also asked to aid in recruitment of minority police officers and distribute materials announcing openings in the department.

The above recommendations came after a meeting between police and clergymen of the Mt. Pleasant Bantist, Faith Evangelical Lutheran, Berea Lutheran, Blazing Star Pentecostal, North Ave. United Methodist, Mt. Sinai Baptist, Faith Baptist and Evans Temple Church of God.

Demand Pomerleau submit records

By Alan Shearer

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (UPI) — Baltimore Police Commissioner Pomerleau Thursday received a subpoena from a state senate investigating committee demanding police records and documents.

Pomerleau's attorney, George L. Russell Jr., and the committee chairman, Sen. Edward T. Conroy, D-Prince Georges, both refused to comment on the subpoenas but sources close to both the committee investigation and the police dept. confirmed the subpoena.

The commissioner received a ducas tecum subpoena, which requires specific records and documents, but does not require the appearance of the commissioner. Russell refused to say if Pomerleau would comply.

The subpoena was one of several signed by Conroy Wednesday.

The other six, it was learned, went to former or present police officers, some of whom are slated giving testimony to the panel.

The six were summoned to appear at the committee's next public hearing, March 21.

Also, UPI learned that two officials of the C and P Telephone Co. will meet with the committee's lawyer, Friday to answer allegations of illegal wiretaps.

One of the officials, C. and P. Division chief, Charles P. Featherstun, also presented company records and documents Thursday afternoon to a Baltimore grand jury conducting a criminal investigation of the alleged spying.

• • •

Featherstun said he and C. and P. security chief, Herbert Rouse, were "invited," not subpoenaed, to meet with committee counsel, Dianne G. Schulte, Friday and the company has pledged "full cooperation" with the legislative inquiry.

Featherstun said the grand jury subpoena, issued Wednesday night, was the only summons C and P received and he personally took the records to the courthouse Thursday afternoon.

Children hurt at circus

Eight children received minor injuries on an escalator leading to the entrance of the Civic Center around 11 a.m. Thursday as they were going to the circus.

A spokesman for the Civic Center stated one girl fell, causing seven other children to fall. However, they were all taken to University Hospital, treated and released for minor cuts and bruises.

According to the spokesman, someone improperly turned the escalator off which prevented what could have been a serious tragedy while 15,000 school children were in the Civic Center.

12 persons arrested at 2 schools

In separate incidents, 12 persons were arrested in connection with disturbances at two city schools on Wednesday afternoon.

A 17-year-old youth, an outsider, engaged in a fist fight with a student at the Garrison Junior High School, 3910 Barrington Rd. was arrested by Northwestern District Police and charged as a juvenile with assault with a deadly weapon.

Police report that the young man had threatened several teachers with a butcher knife prior to the fist fight.

Because of his previous record, Juvenile Services authorized detention and he was taken to the Maryland Training School for Boys awaiting a preliminary hearing.

At Francis Scott Key Junior High on Fort Ave. in South Baltimore, 11 persons who had congregated outside were arrested and charged with trespassing and disorderly conduct.

One adult, Francis E. Dougherey, 19, 1600 block S. Charles St. was also charged with possession of a deadly weapon.

The group had congregated outside the school before the noon dismissal to confront several other students in the school who allegedly assaulted a female student Tuesday morning.

Police report that the confrontation which was broken up by officers before it became serious, involved students from nearby Southern Senior High School.
