Meany greets N.A.A.C.P. convention

AFL-CIO President George Meany has warned that the hard-won victories against racial injustice are endangered by high unemployment arising from the "disastrous" economic policies of the Ford administration.

In a message to the 66th annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Meany noted that one out of seven black workers are unemployed and that 40 per cent of black teenagers are jobless.

He declared that the administration's projection of high unemployment over the next four years threatens "severe strains" on the nation's social fabric as black and white workers compete for scarce jobs.

"The American labor movement cannot and will not accept this cruel and fraudulent definition of 'recovery,'" Meany said in his message, addressed to NAACP executive director Roy Wilkins.

"In the weeks and months ahead, we must raise a united voice of protest against an economic philosophy that would sacrifice on the altar of unemployment so much of what so many have struggled so hard and so long to achieve. A job for every American, black or white, who is able and willing to work must be the number one priority of our government — whatever the cost."

Schaefer signs rent bill

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Mayor Schaefer Tuesday signed into law a bill that imposes a 6 per cent maximum on rent increases in the city but said he would not ask the council to renew the bill next year and may ask for its repeal before then.

The law replaces the statewide limit of 5 per cent that expired Monday night.

The only other Baltimore area jurisdiction that has a rent control law in effect is Anne Arundel County.

"I have decided to sign the rent control bill passed by the City Council after carefully reviewing the stands of both proponents and opponents and after taking into consideration the views of the council," Schaefer said Tuesday.

"I do so reluctantly, however, because I do not feel that the imposition of government controls on this aspect of housing is especially desireable.

"The Rent Control Bill, which I am signing today, expires at the end of one year and I do not intend to ask the City Council to renew it. I shall be closely watching the rent situation. If I find that conditions are such that decent housing at moderate rents continues to be available, I will ask the council to consider repealing the rent control law before its legal expiration," he said.

The bill was passed by the City Council last week.

Burch warns against bogus ad

Attorney General Francis B. Burch has issued a consumer alert regarding a California-based company which places unauthorized advertisements with local newspapers and then bills the merchant which was the subject of the ad.

Attorney General Burch said he was first alerted to the problem when Cong. Robert Bauman advised him of a complaint by a Salisbury merchant.

In that instance, an unauthorized ad had been placed in a Tijuana newspaper, noting that the Salisbury merchant is an equal opportunity employer. The merchant was then billed $129.98 for an ad which was run on the other side of the continent, without the merchant's address and without any prior authorization from the merchant.

Mr. Burch said that he has notified the U.S. postal authorities and has received information from California that the ad-placement company operates under no less than 21 different homes, using six different addresses.

"We understand that numerous complaints have been received by various government and private consumer agencies regarding this company. For a time, the company at least replied to complaints, but at present, the Los Angeles Better Business Bureau reports that it has over one hundred unanswered complaints," Mr. Burch said.

"In addition, one party for whom this company placed unauthorized advertising brought suit for an injunction and civil damages. The injunction has already been granted, and the suit papers reveal that the company has made implications that payment would benefit charitable, racial or religious causes, when no such circumstances exist."

Mr. Burch said that other companies in Maryland may have received similar billings for unauthorized advertising. He cautioned merchants to examine bills carefully.

"If you have any question, ask the ad placement company to provide you with a copy of your authorization. Don't pay bills routinely simply because they give the appearance of legitimacy," he warned.

The Attorney General called this ad placement scheme "particularly vicious in that they prey on people's fears on the one hand and charitable nature on the other. Don't let this or any other company intimidate you into paying phony bills with such tactics" he said.

Mrs. Laura H. Kearns selected for outstanding teacher contest

OUTSTANDING TEACHER

Mrs. Laura Henderson Kearns, first grade teacher at Malcolm X Elementary School, has been selected to be in competition for a place as one of the five outstanding elementary school teachers in America for 1975, based on her personal, professional and academic accomplishments.

"She is an outstanding teacher who shows great concern for her children at all times," said her principal, Charlene B. Griffin.

Each of the five national winners will receive a $500.00 unrestricted grant and an award on honor of the selection.

Guidelines for the selection include an educator's talents in the classroom, contributions to research, administrative abilities, civic service, and professional recognition.

Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America is an annual awards program honoring distinguished men and women in the field of elementary education. Each year, the complete biography and record of achievements of the selected teachers are presented in the awards volumn Outstanding Elementary Teachers of America.

A graduate of Johnson C. Smith University, Mrs. Kearns has continued her education at Shaw University, the University of Virginia, Radford College and Johns Hopkins University.

During her varied career she has been a librarian, a community center program director, a pioneer in the Head Start program, a writer and designer of pilot kindergarten programs and she has co-produced a book on activities for kindergarten, along with units of study for that age group. Additionally, she has taped a television lesson on math for kindergarten.

Community activities include: Girl Scout leader, Brownie leader and Den Mother; director of Mother's March on Polio; master teacher for the Laubach Literacy Council; presidential posts with the Cape Fear Presbyterial, the Southern Virginia Presyterial, and the Catawba Synodical; member of the Y.M.C.A., and member of the National Council of Negro Women, N.A.A.C.P.

Mrs. Kearns is the wife of Rev. C. Andre Kearns, pastor of the Trinity Presbyterian Church, and the mother of three children.

Housing committee to meet

The Housing Subcommittee of the Maryland State Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will hold a meeting at the Johns Hopkins University of Maryland, Levering Hall, Coöference Room A, Monday, July 7 at 8 p.m. to discuss urban disinvestment in Baltimore, Maryland savings and loan institutions.

The advisory committee assists the Federal Commission in collecting information assessing civil rights matters within the state.

Composed of knowledgeable citizens who serve without compensation, it conducts fact-finding studies on civil rights related issues, holds informal hearings and submits reports of its findings and recommendations to the commission.

The U.S. Commission on Civil Rights is an independent, bipartisan, fact-finding agency of the federal government concerned with the rights of minorities and women.

Mrs. Bunch retires after 14 years work

Mrs. Annie Bunch

Mrs. Annie Bunch is retiring from Jenkins Memorial where she has been employed as a seamstress for approximately 14 years.

Mrs. Bunch, who will be missed by her many friends both employees and patients, refuses to say good-bye as she plans to keep in touch with the Big Jenkins Family.

Over the years, she has been very active in missionary work through the Unity Bible Way Church and is happy to have time to continue this project.

She is looking forward to a missionary assignment which will take her to Africa next year.

In the past, most of Mrs. Bunch's vacations and holidays have been spent at religious conventions and working for the Lord.

Recently, a reception was held at Jenkins to give friends an opportunity to wish good health and Happy Retirement to Mrs. Bunch.

The alarm no longer rings for Mrs. Bunch, but knowing this lady the alarm will continue to ring for many years as other duties call and she endeavors to fill more people's needs.

Youth Council accepting nominations

The Governor's Youth Advisory Council, which acts in an advisory capacity to the Governor as an advocate for the concerns of young people throughout the state, is accepting nominations for membership. Applications must be postmarked no later than July 22.

Maryland residents between the ages of 13 and 22 are eligible. Only those willing to commit time and energy to the interests of youth, to speak for youth and to participate in projects are urged to apply to the council. Appointments to the council are for a one-year period without pay.

Created by executive order in 1971, the council consists of 115 members and is also divided statewide into eight regions. It is one of 11 advisory commissions under the Secretary of the Department of Employment and Social Services.

Young people interested in applying are asked to submit the following information: name, address, city or county of residence, telephone number, age, sex, school and&or highest level of education completed, place of employment (if applicable) and a short resume of youth activities.

Young man follows his father's footsteps, joins the Marine Corps

"It was like taking a trip back through time," stated Master Gunnery Sgt. Vernon J. Savoy, USMC (retired), as he witnessed the enlistment of his son Michael R. Savoy into the United States Marine Corps on June 16.

Taking the oath of enlistment from Marine Lt.-Col. R. J. Graham, officer in charge, Marine Corps Recruiting Station, Michael enlisted under the Delayed Enlistment Program for training as a military policeman, one of the guaranteed enlistment options offered by the Marine Corps.

As the oath was given, Vernon, wearing his Marine Corps dress blue uniform, stood quietly, but proudly, next to his wife Martha. His eyes swelling with pride, Vernon seemed desperately trying to swallow the lump in his throat as he quietly repeated the oath to himself, as he took it more than 27 years ago on Oct. 4, 1946.

For Vernon, his career as an active duty Marine ended with retirement on July 31, 1972, but for Michael it is just beginning.

"Although I was raised in a Marine Corps atmosphere, my dad had nothing directly to do with my decision to join the Marine Corps," remarked Michael.

Continuing, he stated, "I think the main reason I chose the Corps was because of the challenge you're faced with during recruit training and after, and the pride the Corps gave my dad."

MGySgt. Savoy, currently employed as a security marshal with the Social Security Administration, reminisced a little about the way things used to be and, stated,

"With all the changes that have taken place in the armed services and the tremendous increase in pay and benefits, a young man is foolish not to consider the military as a career.

"The Marine Corps was good to me and good to my wife," he added, "and gave me a sense of responsibility and self-confidence that I had never known before."

Michael, a graduate of Edmondson High Senior High, will leave in October for recruit training at Parris Island, S.C.
