MISS MARTHA RICCI

MISS PAMELA SIMMONS

Two female students graduated from Poly

Today, Friday, is Miss Martha Ricci's 18th birthday.

For a birthday present Miss Ricci was one of two female students to be the first to be graduated from the Baltimore Polytechnic Institute.

Miss Ricci of the 2800 block of Echodale Ave and Miss Pamela Simmons, 17, of Cherry Hill received their diplomas at the commencement ceremony held Tuesday night.

Along with their diplomas Miss Ricci received a $500 scholarship from the Baltimore chapter of the National Association of Women in Construction. Miss Simmons got a $500 scholarship from the John F. Kvennedy Memorial Fund.

Planning to go to the University of Maryland College Park to major in Mechanical Engineering, Miss Ricci told the AFRO she had wanted to go to Poly because her father and her older brother went there.

"They went so I didn't see any reason why I couldn't too," she said.

However, according to her, school officials were reluctant to let her enroll.

Miss Ricci said she received help in her fight from a counselor at Northern Parkway Junior High School were she was attended. However the School Board, at the time, objected to her enrolling is the school so she went to Western for two years took two courses at Poly.

Then in 1974 the board allowed her, Miss Simmons and two other female students to become a part of Poly's student body as of Sept. 5, 1974.

"I had to make a choice between going to Western full time or going to Poly full time," said Miss Ricci. She chose Poly, and enrolled in its a-courses.

Miss Simmons came to Poly after Mis Ricci and enrolled in its B-course.

Accepted to Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburg, Miss Simmons was also a Western student, taking a mechanical drawing class.

In an AFRO interview held Oct. 14, 1974 she said, "After taking the course, I want to continue it."

Both Miss Ricci and Miss Simmons were treated well at Poly during their years becoming active in the student government the dance committee and the cheerleaders.

Miss Ricci hope she gets a job with the government when the graduates from college specifically with NASA.

Miss Simmons, who will major in Civil Engineering at Carnige-Mellon, wants to be a civil engineer with either the government or private industry.

NOTICE OF RECEIPT OF LOCATION AND DESIGN APPROVALS

Notice is hereby given that the Interstate Division for Baltimore City, State Highway Administration of Maryland, in accordance with the Maryland Action Plan and the U.S. Department of Transportation, Federal Highway Administration, Federal Aid Program Manual, Volume 7, Chapter 7, Section 5, Paragraph 11, dated December 20, 1974, has received from the Federal Highway Administration, location approval and design approval for Interstate Route 95 from Hanover Street to O'Donnell Street in Baltimore City, Maryland.

Location approval and design approval have been received based on the South Alignment presented at the December 10, 1974 Location/Design Public Hearing with location of the Toll Plaza as presented at the November 20, 1975 Public Informational Meeting. The recommended location and design is contained in the Final Environmental Impact Statement (FHWA-MD-EIS-74-01-F) and provides for I-95 to be built from Hanover Street to O'Donnell Street as an eight-lane controlled access facility. The location and design provides for an elevated structure paralleling McComas Street from Hanover Street to west of Andre Street where I-95 will descend into an underwater tunnel passing south of Fort McHenry and under the Patapsco River. I-95 rises to grade west of the Harbor Tunnel Thruway near Clinton Street and widens out for a toll plaza. From the toll plaza, which is constructed on retained cut and retained fill, I-95 extends northeasterly on elevated structure on the west side of existing Harbor Tunnel Thruway. Near Holabird Avenue, I-95 crosses over the existing Harbor Tunnel Thruway on an elevated structure and then interchanges with proposed I-83 near O'Donnell Street, where I-95 and then interchanges with elevated structure and then interchanges with proposed I-83 near O'Donnell Street, where I-95 is currently under construction. The location and design provides for full interchanges in the vicinity of Key Highway and McComas Street in Locust Point, and Keith Avenue in Canton. Full access will also be provided between I-95 and the extension of Boston Street to O'Donnell Street.

The location and design will include the necessary provisions to accommodate a future interchange with I-83 in the vicinity of Boston Street.

Maps, drawings, and other pertinent information supporting the location and design are available for public viewing. Those interested in examining this material should inquire at the Office of the Chief, Inter-state Division for Baltimore City, Third Floor, 2221 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Maryland, 21218, between 9:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m. on normal working days. For additional information, please contact Mr. Thomas H. Hamer, Chief, Environmental Section, Interstate Division for Baltimore City, 396-7167.

—No bitterness— Harrison

formed him of the change, stating that he (Billingsley) thought that Harrison could make the greatest contribution to the school in intellectual circles.

"There was some initial shock and disappointment and I do feel that I have a lot to offer administratively, but I love the classroom."

Dr. Harrison added that there will be no change in salary or status

Dr. Harrison and Richard Sandaal, director of finance soon-to-become director of computer programming, were demoted while seven unclassified employees received their termination notices effective July 1.

Dismissed were Michael A. Winder, director of the college center; Lewis L. Johnson, assistant in Development; Nicholas T. Lee, director of federal relations and George MacDonald, associate director for career development.

Also, Jerry A. Jackson, Residence Program; Lynwood B. Jenkins, director of Affirmative Action Programs; Sedric L. Suggs, coordinator of Student Activities, and James R. Ruocco, manager of the Advanced Institutional Development Program (AIDP) Computer Projects.

All the dismissals are alleged to have been handled by President Andrew Billingsley and consultant Benjamin King without the knowledge of the respective supervisors or the Trustee Board.

While the soon-to-be-former employees wage flaming indictments against him and call for state and federal investigations Dr. Billingsley is not talking.

Welford McClellan, direct tor of Morgan's Office of Information Services, told the AFRO, "Dr. Billingsley considers this an internal matter. He's legally on sound ground, so he has no comment. Also, it appears as though there might be some legal things on both sides later."

Dr. Billingsley maintained silence at the advice of Assistant Attorney General Walter Lohr. When contacted by the AFRO, Mr. Lohr simply stated, "I also have no comment."

Despite Mr. McLellan's assertion that the president was on "solid ground," at least two of the dismissed employes, Michael Winder and James Ruocco, asserted that Dr. Billingsley has violated the law on more than one point.

Mr. Winder told the AFRO, "First of all, we should make it clear that we hold Dr. Billingsley responsible for all of the dismissals. They were all given without the knowledge of the supervisors, and most of us worked under vice-presidents or someone serving in the capacity thereof.

"Theory has it that there is a secret task force between Billingsley and Benjamin King who was hired with AIDP funds as a consultant and has no right to be making policy decisions. But he's out here running the place. He hires personnel, employes report directly to him, he's signing out time sheets and everything."

It is on this basis that Winder asserts that Dr. Billingsley misused some of the one million dollars in AIDP funds.

He said, "The federal money that the school received was for the purpose of improving curriculum and developing programs, not for hiring people to run your school.

"Now, the money can de used for hiring consultants, that is okay. But he (Dr. Billingsley) has got the consultant out here ordering people who were here before he came, King's doing more than a consultant's job."

Mr. King could not be reached by the AFRO for comment.

Winder and the others dismissed were especially upset over the fact that unclassified employes at Morgan don't have the same rights as those di other schools such as the University of Maryland.

He charged "Even if it is a legal fact that we serve at the pleasure of the university, as the attorney general stated, there should be equal protection for all unclassified employes.

"A man in my position at the University of Maryland would get at least three months' notice, maybe even a year. There is no reason why employes at Morgan should have less protection than those elsewhere."

Mr. Winder's claims were verified by Ronald Burrell, director of Personnel at U.M. at Baltimore. He told the AFRO, "As an unclassified employe, or what we call an 'associate', you are on one year's probation during which time, if you are to be dismissed, you get a 30-day notice.

"After that time, unclassified personnel can be removed only with a three month to one year notice, depending upon their level. Persons whose positions are being changed or altered do have a grievance procedure which they can follow."

Those being dismissed or demoted at Morgan were given a 30-day notice, regardless of time served or level of employment. There was also no grievance procedure available.

Mrs. Enolia P. McMillan, chairperson of Morgan's Board of Trustees, told the AFRO that although the board was informed earlier that there would be dismissals, she first learned who had been rehired after receiving a letter signed by the seven employes.

She said, "The board will be considering the whole matter. At the last committee meeting, we discussed and later we will be checking into the possibilities."

Winder maintains that one of the reasons for the current problem is the board's "undetermined relationship" withDr. Billingsley came in before the present board was appointed, they have not really been aware of "the kind of man they're dealing with."

He told the AFRO, "They (the trustees) haven't yet been able to find the handle of the reings to help guide Morgan forward. This incident should help them to find those reigns."

James Ruocco, who is complaining of racial discrimination on Billingsley's part, told the AFRO that what's going on at Morgan is nothing new. He said he made the same allegations in August, 1975.

At that time Ruocco filed a formal complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission (EEOC), which he sees as the reason for his dismissal.

Last year, he complained that he had become "the subject of racial discrimination by certain Morgan State University administrators." He charged to have been discriminated against through denial of pay increment as well as the denial of unclassified position and benefits.

He now asserts, "With full knowledge of these filed and unresolved grievances, Dr. Billingsley then in retaliation, gave this employe his notice that he would be terminated June 30, 1976."

Ruocco believes that this act by Billingsley was "in violation of federal law and possibly state laws which prohibit the termination of employes with on-going civil rights grievances."

He told the AFRO, "I have written and documented proof from one of Dr. Billingsley's assistants that I was fired because of my complaint."

In a release in which the seven employes stated their grievances, Dr. Billingsley was quoted as saying "white people are on our campus merely as guests."

New schools approved for Maryland

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Three projects totaling more than $1.6 million have been added to the fiscal 1977 Maryland school construction program, state officials have announced.

The three projects are in Prince George's, Baltimore and Wicomico Counties.

Including the $10.1 million in projects announced last week, the new undertakings raise the amount taken from contingency funds to pay for school programs to $11.7 million.

Originally, Gov. Marvin Mandel set the 1977 school construction budget at $50 million in new projects and $24 million in supplemental funds for work already underway.

The extra money was added after the Board of Public Works heard appeals from local school officials in 13 subdivisions. Final distribution of the first $10.1 million was announced last week by the interagency committee for public school construction.

The final three approved projects are:

— A $1 million modernization of the Mardela Junior-Senior High School in Wicomico County.

— $175,000 for preliminary work at the site of the proposed Oliver Beach Elementary School in Baltimore County.

— $500,000 for alterations to the existing College Park Elementary School in Prince George's County.

City College students to be housed at Calvert

By Clarence W. Hunter

A complete Board of School Commissioners Thursday ordered that the move of Baltimore City College students to the Calvert Adult Educational Center for two years be handled administratively and not through any action by the board.

Dr. Crew told the board that in order to move City students while their school is being renovated to Calvert, the administration would have to move the 175 students of Alicia Crossland School to Jane Addams, which is closing at the end of the school term.

Two weeks ago staff brought before the board a recommendation to house City students at Eastern High School thus creating a shift problem for both schools despite the board's objection to the policy.

However, the proposal brought strong objections on the part of the Eastern and City communities.

Dr. Crew told the board that they (the staff) had hoped to use Addams as office space in order to avoid leasing any extra space they might need.

The board also announce the budget cut handed down by the City Council mates stating that a total of $1.75 million had been cut from the original budget submitted.

Mark Joseph, president of the board, said that the board plans to review the report and stated that there will be certain economic cuts to be announced sometime next week.

Mark Joseph also on the behalf of the other commissioners announced in order to comply with State Board of Education's directive against unions violating the prohibbition against strikes, the board would revoke the designation of the PSTA as the teacher's exclusive representative and refuse to accept a petition for certification from either the PSTA or the UTBC for two years.

Joseph said the Board would also cease making payroll deductions of organizational dues for the PSTA for one year, and refuse to make those similar deductions for the UTBC for one year.

He stated these orders would be effective July 1.

Thursday night's meeting was the first for new Commissioner Dr. Narindar U. Kelly who filled the post vacated by Robert Schaefer last year.

It was also the final meeting for Student Commissioners Earl Wrenn and Miss Pamela McAdory who turned over their posts to the new Student Commissioners Miss Yvette Fike and Michael Talmadge.

enroll in a special skills development program to be held this summer at the Harford Vocational-Technical Center.

The program will include courses in the following occupations; clerk-typist, automotive mechanic, carpentry, electrician, graphic arts worker, machine tool operator, and quantity food worker. Call 734-4104 for details.

Swimming

It is not too late to register for summer youth swimming classes at Harford Community College.

There are still openings in beginners, advanced beginners, intermediate, and swimmers classes to be held at the college. Call 838-1000 for details.

Reading Study Skills

A program to assist students in developing the reading and study skills necessary for academic success in college will be offered in Harford Community College's second summer session beginning in mid-July.

This three credit course, which provides group and individual instruction for students in reading comprehension, word attack and rate, spelling, vocabulary, and study skills, is recommended for all students who want to assess their strengths and weaknesses in reading and study skills, and to improve their performance in college level studies. Call 838-1000 for more information.

Levi favors temporary busing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Attorney General Edward Levi said Wednesday that busing to desegregate schools should be transitional, lasting no more than five years in most communities.

Busing in these cases, should "put the community in a position where normal patterns would take over," he told a news conference.

Levi said legal scholars are increasingly coming to believe that busing is a transitional remedy to school segregation.

"I don't know that this is a new policy," he said in response to a question, "the fact it has probably always been regarded by the courts as not a permanent remedy. I think it has been regarded as an unusual remedy and one that courts probably regard as transitional."

The Justice Department is preparing legislative recommendations for President Ford's consideration saying that busing could not be ordered for more than five years except under special circumstances, Levi said.

One provision in the tentative proposal would say that busing could be ordered by courts for a three-year period "under certain circumstances," he said, without being further specific. After review, a two-year continuation could be ordered.

Liddie's former lawyer disbarred for crimes in an unrelated case

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A Baltimore lawyer agreed to disbarment Monday after pleading no contest to charges of obtaining, selling and passing title on two stolen vehicles.

William Carrier — once lawyer for John E. "Liddie" Jones, who was convicted of running one of the largest drug rings in the Baltimore area — accepted the disbarment in exchange for a suspended sentence from Criminal Court Judge Albert L. Sklar.

The lawyer faced 20 months in prison and a $5,000 fine.

Carrier offered no defense to two five-count indictments that charged him and a former client, Neill M. "Tiny" Haddaway, with stealing and reselling a motorcycle and U-Haul trailer.

In return for the no contest plea, 17 other indictments on charges of conspiracy, false pretenses and receiving stolen goods were dropped. They also stemmed from the theft and resale of the two vehicles.

Assistant State's Attorney William Monfried said witnesses would have testified that Carrier helped Haddaway obtain a bogus bill of sale for a motorcycle stolen in Pennsylvania in July, 1974, paid for a classified ad in a Baltimore newspaper and then carried out a business transaction with a Baltimore man who purchased the cycle for $1,800.

A raid on Carrier's home last October resulted in the seizure of a U-Haul trailer, which had been reported stolen from a Baltimore service station, according to Monfried.

The prosecutor said an attempt had been made to obliterate the U-Haul identification marks and the serial number on the trailer.

The serial number on the motorcycle also had been altered, he said.

Carrier represented Haddaway in a murder case. Following the indictments on the stolen vehicle charges in November, Haddaway disappeared and has never been tried for murder or theft.
