BRAVE DAD FIGHTS HEAVY ODDS

His big hope: Heart transplant

By Jim Nolting

Life is difficult enough for the Junious C. Coles family of South Richmond with the oldest of the three children, 10-year-old Gaynelle, confined to a wheelchair with cerebral palsy.

But despite the presence of the crippling disease that has contorted her frail little body, Coles says his daughter is a "very happy child" and attributes much of her happiness to the fact that his other children, seven-year-old Juanita and four-year-old Junious Jr., love and "accept" little Gaynelle.

Gaynelle's happiness is reflected in her sparkling eyes and big smile, although her voice has been robbed by the dreaded disease which damaged her brain during birth.

Yet despite the Coles' tragic situation that has put their strong faith in God through the toughest of tests, one would think that they had "paid their dues," so to speak.

* * *

But tragedy struck them again — and struck them hard.

Coles, just 32, has suffered two major heart attacks since 1973 and doctors at the Medical College of Virginia hospital say he won't live much longer in his present weakening condition, a condition that a year ago forced him to retire from the job he held for eight years with Philip Morris, Inc., in Richmond.

His only hope is to become MCV's 14th heart transplant recipient, four of whom are still living.

He has been in the hospital a month now in preparation for the innovative and extremely difficult surgery, but does not know when the operation will occur because a donor has yet to be found.

MCV let Coles come home to his family on Father's Day and the small brick bungalow in the 200 block of Ridgemont Road was brimming over with family and close friends Sunday, June 20. They brought with them optimism that comes hand-in-hand with folks who have "the faith."

JUNIOUS C. COLES

In an interview with the AFRO on that happy day, Coles had tears in his eyes. "A lot of people withdraw from life, but I can always look at my wife, Dorothy, and my children and see what God has done for me. I'm living a beautiful life," he said.

"God has taken all the fear out of me." Coles said bravely. "There will be a time when my body will start weakening quickly; I must do this (the heart transplant) now."

At Coles' side during the AFRO interview was 36-year-old Jenny Alexander of Richmond who underwent a successful heart transplant at MCV in November 1974. She has become a close family friend and a source of tremendous encouragement, having met Coles through the hospital.

Mrs. Alexander has helped the Coles family get rid of the great amount of skepticism and mystery normally associated with this unique heart surgery which has focused worldwide attention on MVC in recent years. And now she is a picture of health and happiness.

* * *

"I was sicker than Junious," she said, referring to the six congestive heart failures she had suffered before her operation.

"I had lost all feeling from my knees down and coughed constantly... my legs and neck were swollen and my lungs congested," said the Highland Park mother of a 10-year-old boy.

Ms. Alexander, a divorcee, said she was born with a heart defect. What began as a murmur, developed into an enlarged heart and ultimately led to the MCV hospital and a new life.

Of the transplant, Ms. Alexander told Coles that it was "one of the best things ever to happen to me. It's good to be feeling good; I was sickly and unable to do even the simplest of everyday tasks.

"I feel great now," she said with a smile. "If you have a second chance, take it. I'd rather die trying to live, than live like I did."

Although she can't hold a job because of the operation, she is able to do housework and try to come as any normal mother will with raising her active son, Gary. She resides in the 2200 block of First Avenue.

And Coles' daughter, Gaynelle, is scheduled for major back surgery this fall in her continuing struggle in life.

Cole's wife is employed part-time at Woolco Department Store on Richmond's Southside but is faced more and more with a need to be at home. While the family gets practically all their income from social security, Coles is disappointed in Phillip Morris, Inc., where he worked until he had to retire in May of last year.

He was able to get whatlittle he put into a profit sharing plan during his eightyears there, but the company's attractive major disability plan" has not helped him in the least.

Holding a copy of an annual employee statement from the Richmond Firm, Coles said the plan stated it covers the "individual" employee after about six months on the job.

"I worked there for eight years," he said. "Initially, they have said they couldn't pay me anything because of the amount my family was receiving from Social Security."

Coles, a Chester native who was living there when he firstbegan work with Philip Morris, said the final decision from the corporation's New York offices where disability-related matters are handled is yet to come.

But he is very pessimistic about the outcome. Added to that is the fact that he is unable to pay a lawyer to "consider looking into the matter."

Shuffling through the papers he had accrued from his employment at Philip Morris' Stockton Street plant and more recently, the spacious new Balls Road plant, he admitted to being "just plain confused" over the situation.

Yet, he say she is thankful for his family and friends. Yet, he looks to a heart transplant for a longnew life.

TOGETHERNESS — 32-year-old Junious C. Coles, a heart patient who needs a heart donor, is flanked by his family and 1974 heart transplant patient Jennie Alexander (standing) on the front steps of his South Richmond home on Father's Day. Coles, a brave man, says the love of his family makes him want to live and the encouragement of Mrs. Alexander has given him faith that his planned heart transplant operation will come about and be successful.

IN MEMORIAM

BOOTHE — In memory of my beloved husband and our loved one, CHARLES O., who passed away June 27, 1970:
Sunshine passes, shadows fall
Love's remembrance outlasts all,
And though the years be many or few
They are filled with remembrance, Dear, of you.
Loving Wife, GRACE and FAMILY.

FRANK E. DURR
Words can not adequately express our deep appreciation for the many kind and sympathetic acts that came to us at the time of our recent bereavement.
WIFE and FAMILY.

EPPS — In loving memory of my dear husband, WILLIAM H., who passed June 26, 1963:
Gone is the face I loved so dear,
Silent is the voice I loved to hear,
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
A heart to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
Loving Wife, ORANGIE.

MITCHELL — A tribute of love to my dear husband, Foster SAMUEL MITCHELL, who passed away June 26, 1973.
Now that you're gone, and life is lonely,
I live in memory, strangely ever changing to the things that used to be.
I live a million times the things that you and I enjoyed,
And I cannot erase you, dear, for in my heart you're told.
The little things like empty chairs, the hearts on my heart;
And I shed tears of loneliness, because we are apart.
In fact, my dear, I speak to you in silent conversation.
For even though you're not around, you are my inspiration.
And though they say that time goes on, a memory will die.
Your memory grows stronger dear, as time goes rolling by.
Loving Wife, HAVELLA.

WADE — In loving memory of my husband and our loved one, VERNON F. WADE, who passed away June 25, 1965:
I have lost my soul's companion
A life linked with my own!
And day by day I miss him more
As I walk through life alone.
His Loving — WIFE, BROTHER and SISTER-IN-LAW.

WOODLAND — In loving memory of my dear mother and our grandmother, ANNIE ROBINSON WOODLAND, who passed away June 28, 1960:
Your memory is a keepsake
With which we shall never part.
Though God has you in His keeping
We still have you in our hearts.
Daughter — CLARA HEARNS HACKNEY
Grandchildren — DR. WILSON R. DICKERSON
FRANCES D. HUGGARD.

WOODLAND — In loving memory of our dear mother, MRS. ELLA WOODLAND, who passed away June 30, 1974:
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true, in her heart and mind.
Beautiful memories she left behind.
Daughters — RITA and DELORES.
