

ROBERT A. PASCAL — Anne Arundel County Executive, (D.), in keeping with the week of Oct. 21 through 27 being declared National Business Women's Week, is pictured during ceremonies at a special meeting of the Annapolis Business and Professional Women's Club. The county executive presented Alfreda Bowles, president of the Annapolis BPWC, right, with the club's "Woman of the Year" Award.

Riggs Bank Vice President to keynote Business and Professional Women's Banquet

Working women from across the state of Maryland will gather on October 27 at the Sheraton Inn in Lanham to commemorate the fifty-first celebration of National Business Women's Week and to honor outstanding women from various professions who have made significant contributions to their communities and to the needs of women.

The banquet sponsored by the Maryland Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc., will feature keynote speaker Maxine Garrett, vice president of the International Executive Services Department of the Riggs National Bank.

Responsible for serving the nation's capital embassy community, Ms. Garrett's career started in Indiana where she was the first black hired in the state's banking history.

The third week in October (21-27) has been celebrated as National Business Women's week since 1928 and honors the millions of full - time and part-time working women in the United States.

The Maryland Federation is part of this country's oldest and largest organization of working women.
