As the Colts stunned New England

Last Sunday, at Memorial Stadium, the Colts and their fans collaborated to shoot down high-flying New England with a courageous, 31-26, shocker.

To their fans at home in Foxboro, Mass., the Patriots were looked upon as traitors. They couldn't cope with the aerial thrusts of Bert Jones' arm, the infantry assault of the Baltimore ground attack and the bombardment from 41,289 in the stands, voices which had experienced little to cheer in 10 of 12 previous NFL clashes.

The home team, on the other hand, played superbly to erase the image of the loser that it had unwittingly adopted earlier in the campaign.

The offense was there when it was needed to overhaul the enemy in the late stages, and the defense came through when it was necessary to withstand the closing charge by an enraged foe.

And always, the noise level from the stands was there to encourage the home club and intimidate the invader.

Attention now turns to the Cincinnati Bengals, arriving Sunday.

The Patriots made traitors, the job now is to declaw the Cats.

This will be the fourth time Baltimore and Cincinnati have met in regular season play. The former leads in the series, 3-1.

In their last meeting, the Colts were one-point winners, 28-27.

That was in 1976.

Dunbar, Carver products bolster CCC harrier unit

The Catonsville Community College cross-country team is currently favored to win a regional championship. Three reasons why are Ed Phillips, Randy Howell, and William Wiley.

All three are former runners in city high schools.

Phillips is a graduate of Dunbar who credits the coach there for his development.

He says, "Bob Wade was a real guiding force to me in high school and you can't say enough good about the many coaches Steve Cutler and Bob Locust were just as good. They empasized the importance of getting good grades and made me realize that sports are only a small part of life."

Ed had scholarship offers to other schools but turned them down, preferring to attend Catonsville in order to strenthen his grades. "I knew some people who attended CCC and they raved it. And the coach, Dennis Mitchell, made me feel like he wanted me on his squad. I've been really lucky to have such good coaches in all my life." Ed commutes to Catonville from his home in East Baltimore.

Howell and Wiley are from the west side of town. Both young men are former No. 1 runners at Carver. Wiley is a sophomore who hopes to get a scholarship to a major university. But that is not the main reason he runs.

He says, "I come from a family of runners and it's in my blood. I love the feeling I get after a good workout and besides that, it's something I do well and it makes me feel proud."

Pride also has a lot to do with why Howell runs. According to Randy, "Size has a lot to do with why I run. There are a lot of sports that I like but my small stature makes it impossible for me to excel. I feel like I'm a good runner and am proud of the fact."

Both these ex-Carver runners give credit to former coaches for their opportunity and inspiration to attend college. Mr. Moore (a JV coach) and Mr. Cole (cross country coach) pushed them to keep thier makrs up even if it meant missing some practices.

Randy says, "They made me realize that the most important thing in life is to grow as a person and since coming to Catonsville I feel like things have taken a turn for the better. I'm getting a good education, the people are friendly and there are a lot of things to do."

BY THE WAY...

Well, President Jimmy Carter has conducted his summit meetings so that he could head his administration in a positive direction and launch a successful campaign for reelection. Have you been reading and analyzing his several moves? Do you know the names of some of the Democratic and Republican candidates who may oppose him in his bid for a second term as President of these United States? Have you looked about you and asked has the socioeconomic condition of Black Americans improved while Mr. Carter has been in office? How have our "builders of yesterdays" fared under his administration? Has he shown the same efforts and consideration for our senior citizens as he exerts in foreign affairs?

It is not my right, nor prerogative, to tell you who should get your vote. But I can remind you that a lot of blood, sweat, tears, and some deaths were experienced so that Black people can register to vote. And, I do have the right to extol the fact that our apathy and accepting political crumbs are primary reasons why the "freedom train" has been stalled, or sidetracked, the past few years. It is okay to have a one party affiliation, but don't let that loyalty blind you to the fact that you can, and must, ask questions and seek changes when decisions are detrimental to the forward progress of Black Americans. Black Americans, wake up! Get smart! We have the power to secure better paying jobs that will rid us of the welfare syndrome and put us in homes rather than projects. Register to vote; think about the candidates; and then vote!

Bally president Bill Weinberger and Willie Mays
New boss autographs ball for displaced Famer

Atlantic City welcomes Willie

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — While baseball officials spurned Hall of Famer Willie Mays Monday, Atlantic City welcome the sports legend with open arms.

Mays was greeted by a host of local celebrities and state and local officials when he arrived in the East coast's gambling capital to begin his job at Bally Manufacturing Co.

"We are shocked and discouraged that some would look down upon us, said Atlantic City Mayor Joseph Lazarow. "The gaming industry has supplied hundreds of jobs and put bread and butter on the table for many people.

"Bally is part of making gambling a wholesome business. Atlantic City welcomes with open arms, Willie Mays, a man with beautiful human qualities."

Mays was officially ordered to disassociate himself from baseball Monday for signing the 10-year, $1 million contract with Bally, a casino developer.

Billy Weinberger, the president of Bally Park Place, said, "This is a great day for Atlantic City, and we're proud to have Willie join our team. We know we're going to win a lot of pennants and the world series."

Mays told the officials he did not like the order from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn. "But I will abide by it."

"I know I'm not a gambler and I hope to be here a long time," said Mays. "It's not for the money, but that helps too."

"I will never contest the decision of the commissioner of baseball. Baseball was very good to me. I didn't give up the game. The game gave me up."

(AFRO reaction to the Kuhn decision will be discussed in upcoming A to Z).

Bears sound cocky on eve of trip to Panther lair

By Samuel Davis

Have you ever heard of a team having its opponent where it wants it, and where it wants it is on the opponents home field?

That's the way it is for the Morgan Bears this week, when they take on Virginia Union at Richmond.

The Bears have been playing so successfully on the road that they have sort of grown accustomed to playing away games. The feeling is such among the players and coaches, that before last Saturday's win over A and T the group took a little trip.

"We had been playing so well we decided to go away for a while," said head coach Clarence Thomas. We went to a motel about 10 miles down the Baltimore Washington Parkway.

Of course, it is going to take more than superstition to beat the Panthers, they are a formidable team, both defensively and offensively.

The team's unbeaten, 8-0 overall record and 6-0 league mark gives it first place in the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association. It also has drawn the attention of the national officials who rated fifth among the Division II teams last week, one notch above Morgan.

The Panther defense is an awesome one, led by Phil Cunningham it has allowed but 39 points all year. And, the foocense is explosive, accounting for 208 points.

Union is coming off a very physical game with Virginia State in which she spoiled State's homecoming with a 3-0 victory.

But some of the Bears feel the Panthers haven't proved themselves.

Freshman sensation Darrell Goulter, who was elected CIAA Player of the Week, for the third time in a month, grinned at the thought of playing Union.

"They haven't played anybody," he said when asked by reporters after Saturday's win.

Flanker Clarence Holzendorf, who leads the Bears' receiving corps with a 21.5 yard average, also feels the Panthers haven't played anyone, and a 10 win over State reinforces that though.

"They just got by State," he replied. "I'm looking for blowout."

Not all of the Bears are that optimistic, defensive tackle Todd Fleming, who has played in the shadows of Gerald Huggins and Elvis Grooks, it looking for a tough contest.

"This is going to be a hard game, and I know that for a fact," said the senior. Every time we've played them they have given us a hard time.

The Bears beat Union last year, 16-6 and the Panthers have not lost a game since.

OLD TIMERS

An old timers sports reunion is scheduled next Saturday (10th) at the Coppin State College student center, commencing at 6 p.m.

Expected to attend are such greats of the Baltimore Colts, Atlanta Hawks, Baltimore Bears, Dunbar, A.C. Black and the Dunbar Poets high basketball team, among others.

Skins and Colts reverse roles

Last week, the Redskins were favored and the Colts were the underdogs with oddsmakers. Both threw the pickers.

This week, the Colts are the favorites and the Skins are dumped.

Reno rates Baltimore 9½ points over the Cincinnati Bengals, and Jimmy the Greek gives the Colts a 3-point edge.
