Baltimore Aquarium seeks minority applicants

BALTIMORE — The Baltimore Aquarium, currently under construction at Pier 3 of Baltimore's Inner Harbor, is actively recruiting qualified minorities to join its staff.

As part of its effort, the Aquarium invited minority community leaders to a special recruitment luncheon held at the World Trade Center Oct. 17.

During the luncheon, minority leaders were asked to assist the Aquarium in recruiting minority candidates for the various positions that will be available over the coming months and up until the Aquarium officially opens during the spring of 1981.

Aquarium director, James S. Kepley, told the group of local as well as national minority leaders that the Baltimore Aquarium recognizes the need to hire minorities.

He recently said, "If the Baltimore Aquarium is to be successful, it must be a community oriented facility in all areas from hiring to educational programs, to volunteers."

Kepley adds, "In the future," we plan to participate in career seminars and other related activities to inform minorities of the job opportunities at the Baltimore Aquarium and opportunities that exist in other similar facilities."

Accountants, building service workers, cashiers, stenographers, membership coordinator, membership secretary, gift shop manager, security officer and chief engineer are just some of the positions that will be filled.

Interested persons should either call the Aquarium at 752-7740 or write to: The Baltimore Aquarium, Dept. of Personnel, 10 South Street, Baltimore, Md., 21202 for additional information and - or applications.

Maryland sets all-time bank robbery record

More bank robberies have been committed in Maryland this year than ever before, the FBI says.

Special agent Edward D. Hegarty, director of the Baltimore office said 162 banks have been robbed, compared with 157 last year.

Hegarty said 80 percent of last year's robberies have been solved. Agents have solved only 61 percent of this year's holdups, but that percentage should increase, by this time next year, he said.

Gay rights rally set to push city ordinance

On Sunday, Nov. 11, at Baltimore's Inner Harbor, the Baltimore Coalition of Gay Organizations will sponsor a rally to kick off their campaign to seek passage by City Council of a civil rights ordinance prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.

The event, which has been planned by the Women's Caucus for Legislative Rights - one of the Coalition's member organizations - will feature live entertainment and speakers. Baltimore's bluegrass women's band, The High Strung Band, is one of the musical groups on the program. There will also be disco music and a local D.J.

The rally will be held at 1 p.m. at the Pavillion near Rash Field.

The ordinance, which the Baltimore Coalition of Gay Organizations wants enacted, was drafted by the Community Relations Commission, the city's anti - discrimination agency.

That body, after considering testimony from individuals who had experienced discrimination because of their sexual orientation, as well as testimony from representatives of gay organizations including the Baltimore Gay Alliance and the Baltimore Coalition of Black Gay Men and Women, concluded that there was a critical need to expand coverage of Baltimore's anti - discrimination law to include gays.

This proposed ordinance has been forwarded by the Commission to the City Council; the bill would prohibit discrimination based on sexual orientation in the areas of employment, public accomodations.
