—GM lay-offs —Teachers

came a day after 4,000 workers returned from a scheduled one-week layoff.

"Sales have slowed to the point where you're not turning the product over in the field," Lawhon said.

Lawhon blamed higher gasoline prices and tightened credit for the slump in intermediate and full-size cars, but demand for compact cars has remained steady — resulting in adding shifts at plants where those vehicles are made.

Lawhon said the layoffs will not affect the company's Wilmington, Del., assembly plant, which makes the compact Chevette.

Officials of local 239 of the United Auto Workers said they do not plan to protest the layoffs.

"You can't protest poor sales," said Ronald Longstruth, the union's financial secretary. "There's not much anyone can do, unless the American public buys more American-made cars."

The layoffs are the first major cutbacks at the Baltimore plant since 1975.

Case 91: I receive a monthly grant from the department of social services, which just pays my rent, gas and electric, water bill and phone bill. I have two children, girls, six and eight. They want so much and I wish I could give it to them, but they will be happy with just about anything. Please help me.

Case 92: I am a mother with six children. I am unable to work, because I am sick with high blood pressure, and a bad heart. We would appreciate a basket of food for Christmas. It will help us very much.

Case 93: I have sugar diabetes and high blood. My husband had back surgery and can't work. We get social services, but we can't make ends meet. If you can just help us have a good meal for Christmas, I will be happy. I have six children, their ages are 1, 3, 12, 11, 15, and 16.
