REUNION OF REUNIONS

Douglass alumni span more than seven decades

REUNION GAIETY — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Creigler, Class of '38, take a whirl around the dance floor at the mammoth Douglass High School Reunion held at the Convention Center on Saturday, May 17.

By Pattie Hodges
AFRO Staff Writer

More than 2,000 Frederick Douglass High School alumni and their guests thronged the Baltimore Convention Center on Saturday, May 17 for the reunion to end all reunions.

This affair, which began at 8 p.m. and lasted until 1 a.m., was attended by Douglass alumni whose graduation dates spanned the decades from 1908 (when Douglass was known as The Colored High School) until the present.

They came from all areas of the continental United States and from abroad to meet their classmates and renew old acquaintances with great jubilation, and frolic during an evening filled to the brim with activities.

The Convention Center halls, escalator and downstairs lobby were a kaliedoscope of color and excitement as enthusiastic alumni were greeted at the welcome table, headed by Mrs. Twilah M. Scarborough, chair of public relations for the affair. She was assisted in her welcoming of alumni by Dr. Virginia Brodie, Mrs. Milly Wilkins and Dr. Alphonso Johnson.

Hosts and hostesses who ushered the vivacious alumni members into the main ballroom were Milton Brown, Tazewell Thornton, Joseph Cromartee, Patricia Walker, Doris Cooke, Rose Byrd, Margaret Lee, Margaret Hollins, Pauline Allen, Clarice Bass, Hannah Berry, Ruth Stark, Frances Branch, Jessie Dawns, Evelyn Moore, Ruth Cromartee, Zorita Mills (who also did the brochure), Evelyn Payne, Billy Brooks, Ann Snowden, Viola Butler, Barbara Davenport, Ruth Paysour, Lenora Pulley, Winsteer Winfred, Winona Dixon, Betty Brooks and Angela Williams. Head hostess was Hortense Davenport Cain.

The reunion itself, chaired by Hannibal Mickens, head of the Douglass Alumni Association, Benjamin Mason and Earl Hagan, present Douglass High principal, had a multipurpose.

It was held to aid in building the Douglass High Scholarship fund, to assist the Douglass High music department with the replacement of musical instruments damaged by the flood and other mishaps and to just get together — to greet old friends — to pin verbal roses while everyone could be combined under one roof.

All program participants and honorees were either Douglass alumni or current students.

The Rev. Vernon Dobson, pastor of Union Baptist Church, gave the invocation. The welcome was by Ben Mason.
