—Tension high

Only eight board members, Emmett Edwards, Rosetta Jolley, Mary Scott, Young, Joyce Chatmon-McKoy, Clifford Robinson, Frederick Woods and Naomi Hines were present, and three of those members were non-voting.

The audience reacted angrily to Young's declaration, and several counter proposals filled the air.

"Why not place Ms. Hawkins on administrative leave? (this entitling her to pay), "asked Kenneth Williams, a local resident.

Another person asked if the two new board members could be sworn in that night, but Young and Naomi Hines rejected the proposal.

Both Hines and Young said that the only thing they were responsible for was "trying to get the board members out."

Edward Smith, head of the Monumental City Bar Association, represented Ms. Hawkins, and his disgust with the proceedings was evident.

He stated that this was the second time the board of directors had failed to muster an adequate amount of members to hear Ms. Hawkins' grievance, and noted that the witnesses he had lined up to speak on Ms. Hawkins' behalf had all managed to attend both hearings.

Rumors circulated following the meeting that a member of the executive committee of the board had phoned several board members and asked them not to attend Thursday night's meeting.

The AFRO contacted several board members, and found that most were not even aware of the issue at hand.

Mary Savoy said that she only "knew what she read in the papers," and that she did not attend the meeting because she was working. She added that she doubts if she will attend the next scheduled board meeting.

Doris Tuggle denied receiving a call from anyone telling her to stay home, but said that she was tired and had company which prevented her from attending.

Earlise Mitchell angrily hung up on a reporter, while Bob McCullough said he had not recived any notice of the meeting, and was not aware of the particulars concerning Ms. Hawkins' firing.

"I don't think I received anything, but usually I do," he responded when asked if he received notice of Thursday's meeting. He said that many residents of the community feel they are not being treated fairly by the board of directors because "the board is set up on a political type buddy-buddy thing."

He added that he will try to make the next meeting.

By failing to resolve the Thye Hawkins issue last Thursday, the board may have only made matters worse.

Resentment toward the board has increased since the meeting, and the next scheduled hearing, slated for Thursday, May 29 will witness an even larger delegation of angry community residents and PHCC staffers.

Since the Thursday meeting, tempers in the Park Heights community flared Tuesday, May 27, when a man entered the offices of the Park Heights Community Corporation and began creating a disturbance.

According to police spokesmen, the man entered the offices at 6 p.m., and demanded to know who had fired a former community organizer. He then turned over a desk, and ripped a phone out of the wall. After turning over a desk, file, the intruder fled, and, according to police, is still being sought.

Korea, Inc., an up and coming modeling agency, headed by Korea Johnson, designer, and her brother, Gregory Johnson, business manager, is really making waves in the Baltimore area.

This group, formed just eighteen months ago, recently sponsored a combination fashion show-dinner party-art exhibit in the Constellation Room of the World Trade Center.

300 people attended and enjoyed a delicious dinner and dramatic fashions aired under the theme 'Moods of Korea."

The modeling segment of this extravaganza was done in six scenes — Daytime Classics, Short-Cuts, Nicely Stroked, Night Lights, Razzle-Dazzle Black Lacquered, Dream.

Featured during these scenes were spiffy casual wear, nifty playtime clothes, and swimwear, dreamy lingerie, flamboyant disco wear and sleek, sophisticated after 5.

Lydia Finney was commentator for the show. All fashions were fabulous creations designed by Korea.

Model coordinator was Brenda Miller, who also modeled.

Other models airing the luscious fashions were Janice Smith, Gina Chester, Pauline Spellman, Brigette Hines, Karen Pullen, Donna Martinez and Curtis Smith.

Also modeling were Diana Ckyyou, Kyung Hahn, Tilwana Boone, Harriet Cole, Ingrid Page, Harriet Payne, and Johnnie Smith.

Intriquing modern art which was exhibited at the affair was done by artist Donald Trout, of this city.

Also spotted were Congressman Parren J. Mitchell and Kweisi Mfume.

Proceeds from this affair, which lasted from 6:30 until midnight, and which was a celebration of 'Mother's Day,' will go to assist Korea in opening a boutique, which will allow the general public to get a day-to-day view of her creations.

Dolphin Cruising Club holds flag raising ceremony

SHIP AHOY — Semmingly ready to cast off are Dolphin members Captain Harry Hawkins, Mate Mildred Pipkin and Captain David Pipkin, as they smile serenely from the entrance of the Pipkin's boat, following the Dolphin Cruising Club's Flag Raising ceremony on Sunday, May 18.

The Dolphin Cruising Club, local black yachting group, officially launched the 1980 yachting season with an impressive Flag Raising Ceremony on Sunday, May 18, at the Hanover Bridge Marina. Greetings were extended by Captain Edward O. Hunt, commodore of the club.

Blessing of the Fleet was by the Rev. Lawrence Hunt.

The actual flag raising was done by Captain Ronald Grady, vice commodore of the group.

Introduction of the guest speaker was by Captain James Edwards. Guest speaker for the occasion was the Rev. Wendell Phillips, the honorable delegate, 41st D., and pastor, Heritage United Church of Christ.

In his remarks, Rev. Phillips reflected on the aspects of nature and the water meeting, and of the tranquility of the water itself.

He commented on the fact that people who enjoy the water must realize the beauty and religious significance of it, that it is a gift from God for all to enjoy.

Awards were presented by mates Geraldine Blackwell and Ruth Hunt. Awards were made to former Commodore Charles Howard, who received a plaque.

Also receiving certificate awards were present Commodore Edward O. Hunt, and Captains Ed Collic, David Pipkin, George Taylor. The awards were made to these captains as an indication that they had taken their crafts on a trip from Florida to Baltimore, Md. by water.

Special guests acknowledged by Commodore Edward Hunt were Benjamin Brown, city solicitor and Mayor Schaefer's representative, who presented pewter steins from the mayor to Commodore Hunt and his mate, Ruth.

Other guests recognized were visiting commodores from other yacht clubs in the Baltimore metro area and Annapolis.

The Dolphin Cruising Club, founded in 1975 by a group of men who met on Charles Howard's boat, is the only black-based yachting club in Baltimore. Edward Collic was the first captain.

Following the formal program and flag raising, two boats, the Jerjac, owned by Captain John Blackwell and Mate Geraldine, and the Sea Hunt, owned by Captain Edward Hunt and Mate Ruth, served as hosting areas for a delightful reception.

The Dolphin Cruising Club plans to take a trip to St. Michaels, Md. and several other trips in Maryland waters until the end of this year's yachting season

Double celebration hosted for Coppin State graduate

By Pattie Hodges
AFRO Staff Writer

On Saturday, May 17, on the eve of his graduation from Coppin State College, George R. Roberts of this city was honored at a double celebration.

His wife, Nathalia, hosted a cocktail party in celebration of his upcoming graduation the following day and as a send-off for him in his second career.

Mr. Roberts who served with the U.S. Army for 22 years and then retired, became a student at Coppin, where he persevered for nine years, while working and being a husband and father, to get his B.S. degree in management science, (received, Sunday, May 18).

This degree will be of great help to him in his present (and second) career. He is currently an Internal Revenue Service representative at Baltimore's downtown branch of IRS.

The cocktail reception was held at the Robertses lovely home in the Windridge area of Randallstown.

The many guests who came to help George celebrate enjoyed delectables from a relish board, a cheese board and a plate table, which included such goodies as shrimp and caviar, in addition to swedish meatballs and chicken bits. Of course there were many delicious sippables available.

Catering was done by Wiggins' and Taylor's Caterers.

Guests also enjoyed lively conversation to the background of pre-taped cocktail music.

The honoree received many beautiful gifts and cards of good wishes from family and friends on hand.

On May 18, following his graduation, Mr. Roberts and his family celebrated further with a delicious sit-down dinner for 12 at the Chart House downtown.
