WATCHING FOR A WIN at the roulette wheel are these guests who wait with bated breath for where the wheel will stop.

JUDGE JOSEPH HOWARD, (R) raps with Attorney Gerald Smith (L) during the festivities.

The Lawyers' Wives of Baltimore, Incorporated held its annual Oyster - Bull Roast on November 16, 1980 at the Erdman Avenue La Fontaine Bleu.

It was a fund raiser to sponsor camperships for youngsters, scholarship - student aid for persons pursing the study of law and law related fields, and for support of selected charities and charitable organizations.

Dorothy Reddick, general chair for the affair, gave welcoming remarks to the more than 300 guests. Others on the committee were Lorraine Hayes, Betty Lee, Lois Owens, Ruth Rosedom and Anna Williams.

Highlights of the evening included dining on delectable seafood, roast beef and complimentary vegetables and lots of sippables, dancing to the music of the Dennis Fisher Band, many door prizes given - lucky ticket stub holders and two other raffles, which enabled lucky winners to walk away with a wrist watch, floral centerpieces, hanging baskets, a clock, a turkey, gift certificates from Pauline Brooks' Boutique and a basket of cheer.

There was also lots of action at the roulette wheel for those who wanted to try their luck.

Getting the evening off to a lively start was a game called 'Around the Mulberry Bush', during which guests had to search for a lucky ticket stub for a prize.

It was hilarious to watch everyone lifting tablecloths and looking under chairs, trying to be the lucky winners. Prizes were plants.

Mrs. Lena Woods, who was celebrating her natal day, got a surprise 'Happy Birthday' chourus from the band and well - wishers.

In past years, this dedicated group of women has made notable contributions to many endeavors in the areas of education, community, civic and local governmental affairs. This year's emphasis is toward camperships, support of the elderly and scholarship - student aid.

The organization's success is due to efforts of its' membership which has been spearheaded by such illustrative presidents as Martha Allen, Dorothy Reddick, Helena Hairston, Lois Owens. These leaders reflect recent years of the existence of the Lawyers' Wives.

Shirley Pinkett is president for the 1980 - 81 club year which has launched itself in a spectacular manner. This is Mrs. Pinkett's second time to serve as president of this dynamic group.

Officers, other than Mrs. Pinkett are: Betty Lee, Vice President; Clarice Parrish, Corresponding Secretary; Agnes Dorsey, Treasurer and Anna Williams, Parliamentarian.

Baltimore J.U.G.S., Inc. hold eleventh Living Ads Ball

A J.U.G.'S TRIBUTE in choreography was performed by these young ladies during the Baltimore J.U.G.'s Eleventh Living Ads Ball hosted on Saturday, Nov. 22 at The Forum.

The J.U.G.S.' Eleventh Living Ads Ball, hosted Saturday, Nov. 22 was a smashing success.

More than 300 guests filled The Forum, Primrose Ave. to enjoy the cocktail hour, dinner and a 'Salute in Dance Living Ads Presentation' by a group of young ladies who were Living Ads performers in previous years.

The black tie affair marked 11 years of service for the Baltimore J.U.G.S. chapter, and much lively patter and dancing to the music of Bill Cummings 'Gentlemen of Sound' rounded out the evening.

This organization, the acronym of which means Justice, Unity, Generosity and Service, Inc. was founded in Memphis, Tenn. February, 1953 by Josephine Johnson Bridges and Sarah McKinney Chandler.

A national charter was granted to the Memphis Club. Subsequently, chapters were established in Washington, D.C., Detroit, Baltimore, Pittsburgh and Grand Rapids.

The Baltimore Chapter was installed November 27, 1967. On Nov. 21, 1969, the local chapter presented its first Living Ads Ball, enabling it to contribute the sum of $5,000 to AFRO Charities, helping over 300 families in the Baltimore area to receive food and other necessities at Christmas.

Their contributions have now totaled more than $50,000.

The theme for this year was "Give It All You've Got" and this year the group is lending its support to the Sibling Center at the JFK Institute and its National Project.

New chapters have been installed in Los Angeles, Calif.; Atlanta, Ga. and Michigan.

24 Hour Birthday Bash—zesty fun

By Pattie Hodges
AFRO Staff Writer

What do you do at a 24-hour birthday party?

The 'Third of a Century' birthday bash, hosted by Charles R. Faison in honor of his 33rd natal day, was a Babylonian fun fest.

Promptly at 12 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 22nd he blew out the candles, cut a huge cake and listened while family and friends toasted him in wine and song — the "Happy Birthday" kind.

The party was on. For 24 hours, 75 friends dropped in for cards, chess, chit-chat, dancing, dining and sipping and 'Happy Birthday' wishes for the host.

Party fare was roast duck, roast beef, macaroni and cheese, collard greens and many other tasty edibles, with wine and cocktails to accompany it.

During the day of fun, guests enjoyed parlor games such as the 'Risk War Game,' which was challenging as well as fun.

At 7 p.m. Saturday, there was a chess tournament with guests cheering the participants from the sidelines.

Later there was much dancing, with dining and sipping in between while others vied for points in a dart game.

Everyone had a ball, but crashed out at 9 a.m. Sunday morning, just in time for church.

East Coast Party

Marvin Charles Moore, president of The Charles Modeling Studio, hosted a gala party recently at his George St. apt.

He just wanted to have a few friends over, and they came from all over the east coast — more than 90 of them, to enjoy the lively camaraderie of the evening.

The host presented each of his guests with a book of the activities of his modeling studio and a trip to Baltimore's Inner Harbor.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stevenson, Irvin Conway, chairman of the Baltimore Civic Interest Group, of Baltimore.

Also Bert Hopewell, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hall, Edwin J. King and Edna Berry of New York City; Miss Shirley Whittier and Jerry Williams of Washington, D.C.

Attending from Philadelphia, Pa. were Charles Wright, Brenda Gray, Geraldine Ferguson and son Bill, Carl Woodland, James Woodland and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Clay.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wise of Virginia, Terry Hall of Atlanta, Ga., June Carwell of Baton Rouge, La., Cheryl Lawson and Jim Warren of Los Angeles, Calif.;

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Southall and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Barrett of Winston - Salem.
