The Baltimore Local 202 of the National Alliance of Postal and Federal Employees has always topped the early spring social season with its Valentine Gala crewd of nearly 1,000 guests. However, this year's event was the best yet.

In addition to good music, dancing and excellent food, there was the presence of the NAPFE National President Robert L. White himself.

Mr. White who heads the thousands of members across the nation is one of the most powerful of union men in all the USA.

He was accompanied by Wesley Young, national vice - president; Eugene Brockington, national comptroller and treasurer and his wife; and District II President Alonzo A. Adams, a star - studded group indeed.

According to Local 202 President Clifton Harris, his Baltimore membership is one of the liveliest in the nation, "we merit the honor of the presence of such dynamic leaders."

Among others who came for the weekend were Washington D.C. Local 209 President and Mrs. Tommie Wilson and scores of members and many others from Philadelphia and New York.

James Forbes, chairman and his Social Committee members plus President Harris, the perfect host, planned the evening perfectly. from soup to nuts.

A highlight was the crowning of Miss Alliance 1981, Jacqueline Poole. Runner - ups were Thomasine Gilliam, first place; Alice Burke, second; Brenda Nixon, third.

Next day, Sunday, the entire membership turned out with their guests for the Local 202 branch meeting and heard National President White, Vice - President Young and District II President Adams in a rousing session.

President Harris accented in his report that the Mail Handlers Campaign is on Vice - President Young's priority list. The goal is for unanimous support in getting all pledge cards signed.

Harris notes, "If the Alliance is given a chance to sit at the bargaining table, the Mail Handlers wil see a much needed change for their benefit."

District II President Adams gave an inspiring speech and reminded that retirees who pay retiree dues to their local can be eligible for full membership benefits.

1981 QUEEN (C) Jacqueline Poole, is flanked by (L to R) Brenda Nixon and Thomasine Gillian, contestants; Kaura Wilson, 1980 queen and Alice Burke, contestant.

Frank Walden chosen for Presidential Classroom

Frank Walden, a senior at Forest Park High School and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Walden, of Kathland Avenue, joined students from across the nation Feb. 21 - 28 in the Presidential Classroom for Young Americans.

The Presidential Classroom gives students a firsthand look at how the government works.

The rigorous, week - long schedule of seminars takes them to such centers of power as Capitol Hill, the Central Intelligence Agency, and cabinet departments. There they talked with their representatives in Congress and questioned many of the nation's leading political figures. They also deepen their understanding of fellow citizens by meeting high - school seniors and juniors from all over the country.

The students are also seeing the cultural side of Washington as well. The Classroom's itinerary includes an evening at the theater and concert hall and visits to the Smithsonian Institute and the National Gallery of Art.

At President Lyndon B. Johnson's recommendation, Presidential Classroom was chartered in 1968 as a nonprofit, educational program in the District of Columbia. This year, more then 400 high school students attend each session of the Classroom.

At the local level, young Walden is a judicial board member of the Baltimore Youth Council. At Forest Park High he is an Academic Honor Roll student, member of the Chess Club, Drama Club, and football team. He received runner - up recognition in the Century III Leaders Competition. He is nephew of the late Dr. Josephine Young.
