tendance rates among white are nearly three times higher than those among blacks. Thus, it appers that the same families who will benefit from such proposals as personal income tax cuts, and additional incentives to encourage saving, will be blessed with another advantage to widen the disparities between their environment and the lower income families.

Senator Ernest Hollings, D-S.C.) has pointed out that "tuition tax credits would indirectly subsidize the protest schools—private whiteflight schools built to avoid integration," at a time when society should be promoting equal educational opportunity. Again, one must question the validity of further undergirding institutions which are well - supported by churches most of the time and by parents who can afford such support at remaining times.

Those who are committed to the preservation and upgrading of public schools should seriously examine the det imental impacts of the popular tuition tax credit proposals. We witnessed the erosion of our urban bases on previous years. We know that the enticement of alternative schools was an integral contributor to this erosion. Now, we are considering further incentives to promote disparities in the educational facilities for our children.

We cannot let the prevalent tax credit wave of hysteria spill over into the promotion of additional inequities in our education system. The provision of tuition tax credits poses such a threat and must be watched carefully.

ONCE AGAIN the largest family in the USA gathered in Baltimore to mourn a deceased relative. The previous occasion for the Morgan, Stiths, Shells, Hicks, Bridgeforths, Johnson, Taylors and Blackwells, was the death of Jocelyn Stith.

THIS TIME it was James Carl Shields Sr., age 60, who died March 26 in Portsmouth, Va. while on a visit.

A resident and native of Baltimore, Mr. Shields was a 33 degree Mason and served in the U.S. Navy in WWII. He worked at Bethlehem Steel over 35 years.

He was the son of James Henry and Marie Morgan Shields of Baltimore and descendant from the Morgans and Shields of Lunenburg and Brunswick Counties, Va. from whence all branches of the famous family stem.

MR. SHIELDS was baptized at Ebenezer Baptist Church but became a member of Brown Memorial Baptist Church in 1971. He was chairman of the Trustee Board and a deacon. Due to failing health he became Deacon Emeritus in December, 1979.

Last rites were held March 22 at Brown Memorial with Dr. Douglass T. Miles, pastor, presiding at the services and graveside ceremonies at Maryland National Cemetery, March 23.

Assisting at the church were Rev. Theresa Robinson, Rev. Herman Spencer and Rev. Joseph Watkins.

POLICE ESCORT was provided for the procession to the church and cemetery. Countless numbers of relatives and friends attended the services, filled the main auditorium and stood outside.

Over 100 close kin survive in addition to Mrs. Wileen Johnson Shields and one son, Officer James Shields of Baltimore's Western Police District.

ALSO SURVIVING are six daughters, three of them managers of the C and P Telephone Co.; two of them claims examiners at Social Security and one a respiratory therapist at Franklin Square Hospital.

The daughters are Marguerite Shields, Brenda Wade, Elaine Raines, Sandra Ringgold, Linda Mason and Eileen Foreman.

Also, three grandsons, six granddaughters, six brothers, four sisters and nieces, nephews and other relatives who arrived from Virgima and Eastern Seaboard states.
