Area schools offer inviting courses

Amy Salganik, nationally known press and television illustrator of courtroom scenes and other real life subjects, will teach a course in advertising illustration in the evening session at Villa Julie College, beginning Sept. 8.

The course will cover techniques of commercial art, including assignments in newspaper and magazine illustrations, posters, book jackets, graphics for television, etc. Students will also develop a professional portfolio.

Some background education or experience in graphics is required for acceptance to the course. Classes will be held on Wednesday evenings from 7-10 p.m.

Two other credit courses in the art program will be offered in Villa Julie's fall evening session: basic layout and production," a new course to be taught by Bruce Jennings, art director of Metropolitan Magazine.

The course will cover commercial art, including an introduction to basic studio skills, paste-ups, mechanicals, layouts, etc. The course is designed for the beginning student, and will be held on Tuesday evenings from 7-10 p.m.

"Basic Photography" will be taught by John Ennis, a well-known local film director. The couse will cover technical functions of the camera, processing, black and white printing. The class will be held on Wednesdays from 7-10 p.m. and Thursdays, from 7-9 p.m.

For more information, call Villa Julie College at 486- 7000.

The Community College of Baltimore's "Thursday Mornings" older adult series at the Joseph Senior Center, 730 South Broadway, will continue Sept. 17 with a talk by author, lecturer and radio commentator, Don Spatz.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. The public is cordially invited to attend free of charge.

A former newspaper columnist and drama and music critic, Don Spatz has been entertaining radio audiences with his humorous and insightful commentaries for over a decade.

A prolific writer, he has authored several mystery and detective novels and plays for the stage. He has also written numerous radio dramas.

Developed by CCB in conjunction with the Joseph Senior Center, the "Thursday Mornings," series focuses on topics of interest to older adults.
