Director's retirement highlights 7th Lillie Carroll Jackson Musuem banquet

By Elizabeth M. Oliver

The 7th annual Freedom Heritage Award Banquet of the Lillie Carroll Jackson Museum held Sunday at Martin's West was a many-splendored event and by tradition opened the autumn social season with a star-spangled capacity list of guests from the Eastern seaboard.

Highlight of the 6 p.m. occasion was the announcement of the retirement of the Museum's director, Mrs. Kelly (Viola) Jackson. The presentation of her portrait done in oils by Museum Founder Mrs. Virginia Kiah, daughter of the late Dr. Lillie, the famed freedom fighter and internationally known civil rights advocate. Viola who had served as director for the Museum's entire life is a retired school principal and member of the board of the Peale Museum.

Her successor will be named later according to Attorney Juanita Jackson Mitchell, head of the search committee who said a new director will hold a paid position whereas Mrs. Jackson was a volunteer.

The main speaker was Federal Judge A. Leon Higgenbotham, one of the nation's premier legal scholars and member of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, Yale Law School 1952 graduate. Judge Higgenbotham was awarded the coveted Freedom Heritage Award presented by Ron Shapiro, attorney, who headed the banquet's lawyers committee. A second Freedom Heritage plaque went posthumously to Civil Rights leader Clarence M. Mitchell Jr. and presented to his wife, Attorney Juanita J. Mitchell by Dr. Benjamin Quarles, noted historian.

The Museum Award went to Rev. John W. Holland, renowned Howard County minister, Museum Board member and community and civic worker. Presentation was by Charles Wagandt, board member. Certificate of commendation went to two longtime and ardent Museum workers, Board Members Bowen Keifer Jackson and Mrs. Johnnie Mae Thompson. Mrs. Jody Albright of Mayor Schaefer's office, gave Mayor William Donald Schaefer's proclamation that Oct. 22, 1984 be Freedom Heritage Day in Baltimore.

Among the city and state notables were members of the Baltimore bar, jurists, members of the Maryland General Assembly, clergymen and Miss Pauline A. Young, relative of Paul Laurence Dunbar of Wilmington, and Carroll Greene Jr., Annapolis, curator of the Banneker-Douglass Museum.

The Museum's Annual Meeting will be held Oct. 29 at 6 p.m. at the Sharp Street Memorial United Methodist Church, Etting and Dolphin Streets, Community Hall. 5th board and general membership. Judge Robert B. Watts is chairman of the board and banquet master of ceremonies.

WMAR TV-13 anchor Beverly Burke introduced Judge Higgenbotham and served as Banquet co-chairman along with Assistant States Attorney Marcella Holland and Mr. Shapiro.

The TV Mondale - Reagan debate was shown live on a twin set of wide screens arranged by Attorney Michael Bowen Mitchell, Museum treasurer. Previous winners of the Freedom Heritage Award are Congressman Parren J. Mitchell, Rosa Parks, Dr. Elizabeth M. Oliver, Alex Haley, Marvin S. Gilman and Dr. Asbury Smith who gave invocation at the 7th banquet, Ms. Julie Hall was soloist. Benediction was by Vivian B. Castian.

"What makes me and 35,000 other Central Marylanders work for nothing."

"We care. United Way volunteers aren't here to make money. We're here to help real people with real problems, real needs. And we need your help.

"You've heard us say, 'Without you, there's no Way.' Well, that's not just a slogan.

"More than 70% of all donations come from employees at the workplace. And that means that your on-the-job contributions make a major difference. That's why we ask you to give generously. Not out of guilt, but out of a desire to build a better community for all of us.

"United Way of Central Maryland supports more than 100 local health and human service agencies. Family counseling...assistance for the aged...Hotline For the Out of Work...these are just a few. They may or may not touch your life personally. But for one out of three Central Maryland families, they do...every day.

"That's why United Way volunteers work for nothing.

"So when your United Way representative comes around, please give.

"Your gift really helps."

Doug Dodge President of Mercantile-Safe Deposit & Trust Company and United Way's 1984 Campaign Chairman.
