Where Your Fantasies Become Reality

No, it's not Father's Day. Yep it's macho time again, Sunday January 20th, when men become men, children are sent to see double feature at the movies and those who think a nose guard protects nostrils should say

It's Super Bowl Sunday!!

A fellow whose family get ready to keep your mouth named after the state of Montana shut for about 6 to 8 hours— is out to prove he's better than a "Thou shall respond and speak guy whose name reminds me of for too long, the reality just didn't (Continued on page 6) a place where boats come to rest - Marino. ## Dining Out Tugs: Not up to expectations

By C.T. Goodman

I have wanted to dine at Tugs The elegance of Tugs is visible ever since the restaurant moved yet subtle. Although its houses a into its present location at 222 St. bar that is a little too small for Paul Street. I don't know what at- the Happy Hours it hosts, the tracted me so— the soothing col- restaurant's dining area portrays or scheme of royal blue and gold, more of an intimate feeling in its the elegant awning that stretches smallness, thanks also to a piano the length of the walkway to the bar and a lovely decor. The serfront door, or possibly just the vice, from maitre d' to busboy, is cute little fish as mascot that extremely friendly and helpful, peeks out from their magazine easily earning the included ads. Well, whatever it was about gratuity the restaurant adds onthe place that had intrigued me to the bill. And the food, the for the past year or so finally got point of it all, is superbly me inside this past week. And, prepared, attractive and like all things that are anticipated delicious, with its prices for din-
