Then came the brutal murders of James Chaney, Michael Schwerner and Andrew Goodightmare continued with the racist slayings of Jimmie Lee Viola Liuzzo, followed by the hellfire of the urban rebellions.

Martin King soon came to a point of reckoning, not only on the society was ready to fulfill the dream domestically, but also on ternationally as long as the immorality of the Vietnam War went unchallenged

It was at this point, in early 1967, that many who were close to Or. King affirmed that "he

In the words of Dr. King less than a year before they cut him "For years I labored with he idea of reforming the existing of the South, a little there. Now I feel quite different ly. I think you've got to have a reconstruction of the entire society, a revolution of values.'

If Dr. King were alive today, he would be working to organize and mobilize the millions of homeless and impoverished who are now walking the streets of America.

He would be telling us that in order to disrupt apartheid, we must make the supporters of apartheid here in the United States uncomfortable through non-violent direct action.

"I have a dream that one day every valley shall be exalted and every hill made low. The rough places will be made plain and the crooked places will be made straight, and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together. This is our hope."

May this spirit continually permeate our minds and hearts.
