
ON-THE-WAY EXCHANGE — Enroute to the 11th round knockout of John "The Beast" Mugabi by Marvelous Marvin Hagler at Las Vegas Monday night, there were some rather exciting exchanges of wrath. And it wasn't only Hagler dishing out the punishment as he successfully defended his world middleweight title. In left panel the muscular and unbeaten Ugandan is shown jolting in a classic shot to the head of the bald titleholder. But the "Marvelous One" wasn't about to relinquish the crown without a battle. Right panel here offers evidence of the power of Hagler which led eventually to Mugabi trainer George Francis rushing to his prone fighter after the knockdown to implore him: "Stay down!"

QUITS UMBC POST — Billy Jones has resigned as head basketball coach at University of Maryland Baltimore County. Expressing gratitude for the chance given him when he was 28 years old, Jones says he fears UMBC officials are not aware of the pressures connected with moving to Division I in the NCAA, as they plan to do next fall.

Wingate warns NCAA rivals Hoyas sense 'Tournament time'

DAYTON, Ohio — Georgetown, with three NCAA championship game appearances in the last four years, finds itself entering this year's tournament in an unfamiliar role: an underdog.

Absent from the lineup this year is All-America center Patrick Ewing, the 7-footer who took his act to New York. But while the Hoyas are not the Ewing intimidators of years past, they're still 23-7.

If anyone believes Georgetown has gotten soft, senior guard David Wingate has a message.

"It's tournament time and we'll be coming after them," he said before practice Tuesday.

"We've experienced everything you'd ever want to experience, going to the Final Four two years in a row," he added. "We've got experience. Some people are happy to be here. We're not. Not only do we want to win it, we think we can."

Round 1 of Georgetown's quest began here Thursday night, when the Hoyas face Southwest Conference tournament champion Texas Tech.

Ralph Dalton, the 6-11 graduate student with the unenviable task of replacing Ewing in the Hoyas' lineup, said experience will be a key factor in the tournament.

"The pressure won't bother us a bit," he said. "We're happy with what we're doing, but now it's time to elevate our play another step.

"We've gone through this quite a few times. We're ready."

Pre-season view

Sizing up the O's

By Fred McMane

MIAMI (UPI) — The Orioles have enough power to light up the city of Baltimore for about a month.

Unfortunately, the opposition's power last season lit up their pitchers like the White House Christmas tree and the end result was a disappointing fourth place finish in the American League East.

Traditionally, the Orioles have combined superb pitching with excellent defense and just the right amount of power to be perennial contenders in the division.

So imagine how surprised Birdwatchers were last year when the Orioles' once-proud wings were clipped for 4.38 runs per game.

That shocking development all but negated a club record 214 home runs that helped produce runs, the second highest total the league.

That powerful lineup returns intact, so manager Earl Weaver's major task will be to assemble a pitching staff that is not so self-destructive.

If he can do that, the Orioles might fool a lot of people in the tough AL East.

STRENGTHS - Power-laden lineup that includes Eddie Murray (.297, 31 homers, 124 RBI), Cal Ripken Jr. (.282, 26, 110), Mike Young (.273, 28, 81), Fred Lynn (.263, 23, 68) and Floyd Rayford (.306, 18, 48); three quality starters in Mike Boddicker, Storm Davis and Scott McGregor.

WEAKNESSES - Shaky infield defense at third base and second base; questionable bullpen; lack of catching depth.

NEW FACES - Juan Beniquez, signed as a free agent, adds outfield depth; Jackie Gutierrez, obtained from Boston, provides backup infield help; Rich Bordi, acquired from New York Yankees, could help stabilize bullpen.

OUTLOOK - If the pitching returns to form, the Orioles will be a strong contender. If it doesn't, the Orioles will play a lot of 3½ hour games.

Area well represented in roundball 'rat race'

An extraordinarily large number of AFRO-area players are appearing in the NCAA national championship basketball tournament currently under way throughout the country.

High school products from the Baltimore-Washington corridor bear proof of the strength of the region as far as black talent goes.

Pop-seeded and No. 1 ranked Duke has Duane Ferrell of Baltimore's Calvert Hall in a key role.

Also from Baltimore are Reggie Williams and David Wingate at Georgetown, and Reggie Lewis at Northeastern, all three from Dunbar.

Washington's contributions include Johnny Dawkins, Mackin High; Tommy Amaker, Woodson, and Billy King, Park View, all of Duke; Anthony Jones of Dunbar, with Nevada-Las Vegas, and Ralph Dalton with Georgetown.

Also products of D.C., are two coaches: John Thompson of Georgetown, and George Raveling of Iowa.

Both are Washington natives, though both played college ball elsewhere — Thompson at Providence and Raveling at Villanova.

Thompson praises Terps

Georgetown head Coach John Thompson has been there. He knows what winning the NCAA Tournament requires.

"At this point in the season, it's not a matter of a team's record, it's who's playing well," said Thompson. "And Maryland is a great example of that."

A late-season surge, including two victories over North Carolina, earned the Terrapins an at-large berth in the 64-team Tournament. Head coach Lefty Driesell Tuesday said his club is primed to challenge anyone.

Hearns wastes no time, stops Shuler in first

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — The doubting Thomases, Thomas Hearns admitted, included Hearns himself.

"The one year of traveling is over for me," Hearns said Monday night after he set himself up for a redemption bout with Marvin Hagler by savagely knocking out James Shuler at 1:13 of the first round.

"I feel very good about myself. We may have had a few doubts in the past, but we are very secure now. I want a rematch very badly. I think I proved I deserve it tonight."

Hagler kept up his part of the rematch bargain later with an 11th-round knockout of John Mugabi.

Hearns, looking determined, began the assault on Shuler with a series of jabs. A left hook opened up Shuler and a right hand nearly a minute into the fight staggered him. Hearns followed Shuler to a neutral corner seconds later and floored him with an overhand right over a jab.

Shuler showed no signs of getting up while being counted out by referee Richard Steele.

"You don't want to stay in there too long if you don't have to," Hearns said. "I don't think it's necessary to go into the ring and play with an opponent. Why go three or four rounds if you don't have to?"

Olympics cage tourney slated

The Maryland AAU-USA Junior Olympic boys' basketball tournament will be held at the Annapolis Junior High School, beginning April 2.

The double elimination state tournament will include age groups from 10-and-under through 19-and-under. Winners will be eligible to advance to the AAU-USA national championships.

Sears, Roebuck and Company is the national sponsor for AAU-USA Junior Olympics. All teams interested in entering this tournament may contact Mel Parker, (301) 269-1296.

Eubanks leads Keystone to JC's

CAMDEN, NJ — Rick Eubanks bucketed 28 points and otherwise served as catalyst for the Keystone Junior College five as it took the JC Region 19 basketball championship here Sunday.

Eubanks also was named the game's MVP, as the Giants scored, 82-80 over favored Passaic (NJ) Junior College.

The victory propelled Keystone into the National JC Division II championship tourney which began Thursday in Delta University Center, Mich.

Aw gee whiz, NCAA

North Carolina A&T and Mississippi Valley State enjoyed the euphoria of winning berths in the NCAA Basketball Tournament.

But then came realization of the dubious honor. A and T drew Kansas and Mississippi got Duke in the tourney's opening round. Kansas is ranked 2-3 in national ratings and Duke is No. 1.

SILVER SCREEN: 'Crossroads' a winner

Joe Seneca

Have you heard the name Robin Ritschie (pronounced RAtchie) lately? Can you place the name? Second question, do you recognize the name Jeff Corey? Could you recognize the name Joe Seneca? Ritschie, Corey and Seneca are the starring Crossroads.

Ralph Macchio, the 24-year-old actor, catapulted to recognition in the 1984 hit movie The Karate Kid, plays Eugene Martinez, a gifted teenage guitarist gunning for stardom. Macchio's acting is convincing. Crossroads.

The multi-talented singer-songwriter-actor, Joe Seneca, who received rave reviews for roles in The Verdict and Silkwood, stars as the legendary Willie Brown (a.k.a. Daddy Blues, Mississippi Sam, Big Daddy Brown, Blind Dog Folsom"), an aging bluesman who has lost his muse.

After a successful third album, Eugene is committed to perfecting his blues guitar, devoting all his classical disciplines, until he has career and prospects him to abandon as a musician.

Eugene had read that years ago, Willie Brown was a friend of the great Robert Johnson, whose songs — sung and played by Eric Clapton — are said to be the result of a pact with the devil. He is sure that Willie Brown is still alive and finally locates him in a Mississippi rest home.

With the spirit of youth and the wisdom of the old man's angry reaction, crushed with years of bitterness, Eugene slowly chips away at the old man's angry exterior, and Willie Brown is born anew.

The problem is known that he wants to be a great bluesman and that Johnson's song is the key.

After being convinced and recruited, Willie agrees to teach Eugene the tune, but haunted by memories, he first talks the revengemusician into accompanying him back to a isolated spot unholy bargain.

In the heart of the Mississippi Delta, in a desolate place marked by a single gnarled tree, two dusty and lone roads meet. This marks the legendary crossroads where, according to blues lore, one can make a deal with the devil bargaining their souls for fame and fortune.

On the road south, the unlikely duo hook up with a tough-talking teenage runaway named Frances, played by Jami Gertz.

As the trip progresses, Willie Eugene's talent and shares his legendgiddingly acknowledges tongue" (all in fun and good taste).

Pure entertainment with good visuals, fine acting and comfortable, open dialogue. Crossroads is an excellent choice of movies for teens and everyone in your household over 25. It's even suitable for younger children, except they might miss the point now and then, plus there's a smattering of light profanity.

I would highly recommend Crossroads. It is a simple, yet sturdy story filled with tremendously good acting. A bittersweet ending to a movie, in which music is acting main character.

Even though Joe Seneca doesn't have top billing, he literally (and easily) steals the show. He is a natural for the part and heightens the believability of his character and the movie.

Seneca worked to play Willie Brown whom he describes as "a complicated, very sad and lonely man." Seneca himself played with Robert Johnson throughout the 30's."

Born and raised in Cleveland, Ohio, Joe began his career as a nightclub singer, thrilling audiences with his soulful ballads and singing backup for Pearl Bailey and Billie Holiday.

"Willie Brown's life has sold his soul to the devil, and he has to go home to reclaim it. At first, he uses Eugene because he knows the kid is using him. But soon his realizes that his prodigy genuinely loves the music — he has 'soul' — and a new kinship develops."

While watching the film, I realized a few things also. There is an obvious respect between Ralph and Joe that gives the impression that they really and truly like each other on and off camera. This accounts for the "click" in their on-screen relationship.

Crossroads is an excellent choice of movies for teens and everyone in your household over 25. It's even suitable for younger children, except they might miss the point now and then, plus there's a smattering of light profanity.

I would highly recommend Crossroads. Don't miss this one. — PENNY DEAPS.
