On July 3, the foods, customs and music of Trinidad and Tobago will be featured as the festival focuses on this Caribbean island nation throughout the day.

All day the festival will present a variety of island musical styles. The festival will end its tribute to Trinidad and Tobago with a costume parade accompanied b a steel drum band.

Winner of the costume contest will receive two round trip tickets to Trinidad courtesy of B.I.W.A. Visitors can watch demonstrations of Creole and East Indian food preparation in the Foodways tent. The Calypso Cook Caterers will prepare "Callaloo" a rice and meat dish, to the delight of on-lookers who will be able to watch each step in the making of these native dishes. Northwestern Africa's food customs will be represented by Belay Embaye and his wife Bekele Shure who will guide visitors in the preparation and porridge, and "Budena" — a thin flat bread. Doris Palacious will show audiences how "Pupusas," cheese and meat pastries are made, as well as other foods from her native El Salvador. Telling the story of a people would not be complete if not accompanied by music.

The Festival will present musical forms as varied as the cultures they represent. The Festival's music stage will emit Bluegrass sounds from the United States Piedmont region. The music is known as Piedmont southeastern foothills area where this music developed.

'UTODIA' LIVES UD TO ITS NAME By Deborah Johns Moir

Utopia, the word, means paradise. It is also the name of a night club in Landover. It is quite impressive. On any given night, limos transport the regular clientele.

One of the many features of the club is spaciousness. Converted from a movie theater, there are ample dance floors, a large sit down bar, which accommodates 75 people and an even bigger stand up bar. There is an excellent sound
