THE GAME IS UP—The police apprehended four youths last week in the 4500 block of Park Heights Avenue, when it was discovered that the car they were sitting in was stolen. The officers first became suspicious when they saw the youths sitting in a 1988 black Camaro with Maryland dealer's tag. While circling the block, the police discovered through their radio that the car was stolen from Fox Chevrolet.

Assistant State's Attorney Timothy Doory could not believe his ears in a Baltimore City Circuit Court Friday when a state witness who had participated in a recorded statement and testified under oath in 1984 completely disassociated himself from the statement and his testimony while citing memory lapse.

Henry Mazyck, 19, of the 1800 block of West Fayette Street turned out to be a problem witness for the state in the re-sentencing trial of Willie "Sweetsie" Reid for the 1983 killing of an elderly couple, Irvin Bronstein, 78 and Rose Bronstein, 75, in their Pimlico home.

Reid was tried before and received the death penalty but the Supreme Court overturned the sentence because of victim impact statement.

New state laws take effect this week

Hundreds of new state laws took effect Friday in Maryland, from tougher drunken driving penalties to the start of a massive plan to change the way colleges and universities are governed.

About three-fourths of the 808 bills signed into law from the 1988 general assembly will take effect, including a 12 percent pay raise for state police, stricter inspection regulations for trucks and a smoking ban in larger retail stores.

Maryland will operate under a new state budget, a $9.8 billion spending plan that will be the state's last under $10 billion. The budget includes increases for education and social agencies, a 4 percent pay raise for state employees and a $5 million economic development fund for attracting new businesses.

July 1 marks another chapter in our state's history," Gov. William Donald Schaefer said in a statement. Many of the bills which take effect will provide a better, safer, more responsive environment for our citizens."

Marlon "Pooh" Quillens, a 6-0, 150 pounds shooting guard from Southwestern High, said he will attend the Community College of Baltimore, in September on a basketball scholarship.

Quillens averaged 10 points, 2 assists and 2 steals on a 10-13 team that featured All-Met selection Antonio Jones. Six of those loses came in overtime.

"My initial goal is to further my education," Quillens said. "I want to get an associates degree and use it as a stepping stone to a higher educational level.

Quillens, who was recommended to CCB's coach Roger Dickens by former standout William "Hot Shot" Banks now at Coppin State, is projected to be a point guard, in spite of his offensive abilities.

"He has the natural instincts to be a lead guard," Dickens said. "He can

READY TO RETIRE—Alice Pinderhughes, one of the city's longest-serving school superintendents, says she is weary and ready to resign from her post.

Pinderhughes stepping down with few regrets

By Jill P. Carter

She came to the post in 1983 following a lot of criticism surrounding her candidacy. Now at 67, Alice G. Pinderhughes is resigning as superintendent of public schools, after serving the longest term in office since John H. Fischer who is known for desegregating Baltimore City Public Schools.

With mixed feelings about leaving a forty-five year career in the school system, Pinderhughes says she is sad, but ready to leave.

"I feel very sad, but I am also very weary," Pinderhughes said. "I rarely say that, but yes, I am ready to retire."

She says she is not bitter about being asked to resign by Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke last December.

"When I was first asked, I was surprised and a little upset, but I've had time to reflect on it and I carry no resentment," Pinderhughes said.

Taking nearly a half century of knowledge and commitment to education away from the school system, Pinderhughes feels comfortable leaving it in the hands of some virtually newcomers to education and to Baltimore.

Meldon S. Hollis, is a relatively new president of the school board with a background in law. Mayor Kurt L. Schmoke, while he professes a commitment to education has been in office only seven months, possessing a background in law as

Peanut man serves up the hot goodies

By Alisa Samuels

There is nothing in the world like peanuts.

They tantalize the soul, with their freshly roasted aroma and please the mouth with their crunchy and delicious taste.

Briscoe M. Graham, 22, sometimes called "The Peanutman" gives those delicious nuts to Baltimoreans four days a week at Lexington Market's famous peanut stand-Konstant.

"Peanutman about sums it up," Graham said.

He sells peanuts ranging from 45 cents, four ounce bags to two pound, baseball bags of $2.90.

"I think the 10 ounce, $1 bag is the most popular," the 1984 Northwestern High School graduate said. "I think it's the best bargain."

He got the job in September, 1984 through Starters Job Program, a program designed to help young people find work. Ever since, he has had a bag of peanuts.

Graham said he makes approximately $13,000 annually selling, roasting and weighing the peanuts.

He plans to resume his

Voodoo priestess tied to murder

By Misty Brown

BATON ROUGE, La.— A self-proclaimed priestess — the sister-in-law of a local Baptist minister— was convicted by a six-member jury of cruelty to a juvenile after she gouged out a 16- year-old boy's eye during an "exorcism" ritual.

Andrea Cowan, a member of the Rock Zion Baptist Church, could face a 10-year jail sentence for removing the left eye of Darrell Washington.

Citing freedom of religion, however, Judge Michael McDonald ruled against using the terms "exorcism" and "exorcist" during the two-day court proceedings, authorities said.

"There is no crime against exorcism," a spokesman for the Baton Rouge Police Department said. "We are not allowed to convict someone even if they conduct a Satanic Church ritual unless they break the law."
