

Answer: I approached Mr Beugle about the money he was to get it from me - I told him to make a calculation how much I should need after he had spoken of Mr Smith's mortgage and Beugle's mortgage I then asked him how much the Devilbiss mortgage was He told me it was $400 I asked him whether the Beugle mortgage was included in the $400 He said it was not. I told him then that the Devilbiss mortgage could be $400 He still contended it was $400 - I then asked him if he knew how much money my brother had loaned to his mother. He said $250 - I then asked him where the other $150 came from to make a $400 mortgage He said to me "Oh why, Dan added $150 for keeping his mother". I told him that Dan did not keep his mother & that his mother would not pay it I told him that mother knew nothing of that $150 - He said that my mother had to prove that my brother had his fingers on the words and figured to prevent her seeing it when she read the mortgage I told Mr Beugle that my mother did not read that mortgage He asked me then who did read it I said to him in these words "You read it for her and explained it to her as a $400 mortgage covering the whole of the costs including the Beugle mortgage" and that she would pay it he then reported that she would have to have the Dan had the words with his fingers he then in reply said if we would not pay the mortgage and stood a suit it was no use to try to get the money;

13th Interrogatory: Did your conversation with Capt Croff mention anything about the Lenoxford Note?

If so, what?

Answer: I mentioned about the money she had paid on that note of Lenoxford. I told Mr Croff He claimed a credit of 50¢. I don't know whether I mentioned the Lenoxford Note, to Croff.

14th Interrogatory: Was that 50¢ paid to Lenoxford paid for Daniel Devilbiss, or for his wife?

Answer: I think it was paid for or on his account at any rate.

15th Interrogatory: Was the money paid on the Black Note paid for him or on his account?

Answer: Yes, that's what Black tells me himself -
