

Q. Do you know what it was used for?

A. Yes, farm work.

Q. They didn't pay you back, did they?

A. No, they couldn't pay me back.

Q. When did Mr. Harbaugh die, if you know?

A. Been dead about four years, I guess, five years probably.

Q. Then after his death you had Mrs. Harbaugh sign a note for the amount and had Mrs. O'Keefe go on the note?

A. Yes, that is it.

Q. And then entered up that judgment?

A. Yes.

Q. You never loaned any money to Mrs. O'Keefe?

A. No, sir.

Q. This judgment doesn't represent any money Mrs. O'Keefe owed you?

A. No.

Q. What was your contact with Mrs. O'Keefe? You lived at Blue Ridge Summit and she lived at Burkittsville. Did you visit her frequently?

A. Quite frequently. I stopped when I came down this way just to say hello to her, because she always nursed my wife when she was a little girl.

Q. There was an attachment there between them?

A. Yes.

Q. You said about five years ago you brought some furniture to the home of Mrs. O'Keefe. Her home was furnished then, was it not?

A. Yes, furnished then, but after he died there were some things she wanted her mother to have.

Q. Mrs. O'Keefe's home was furnished when you brought this extra stuff in, I mean furniture.

A. Yes.

Q. Did you designate to the appraisers which property to appraise?

A. Yes. Mrs. Warner was down with me too, and I know what I brought down.

Q. You say your wife had a list?

A. Yes.

Q. What list was that?

A. A list of the stuff I brought down at the time, a stove and some chairs and bureaus.

Q. And you appraised the remainder of the property?

A. The remainder was all appraised.

Q. For whom did you bring this stuff down, at the request of Mrs. Harbaugh?

A. Yes.

Q. What did she say when she told you to bring it down?

A. She came down with me at the time.

Q. Did she say, "I am giving this to mother?"

A. She said, "I am letting mother have the use of it." The stove, I think she said, belonged to Mary. The stove they had there wasn't much account.

Q. When you brought the load of stuff in, what became of the furniture of Mrs. O'Keefe?

A. That is still there.

Q. Isn't the place over-crowded with furniture?

A. Well, there wasn't so much there then.

Q. Could you give the Examiner a list of the property you brought down there belonging to Mrs. Harbaugh?

A. I could, I guess. It has been some time ago.

Q. But your recollection has been refreshed recently by having the appraisal up there?

A. Yes. There was a cook stove, I know that, and some chairs.
