

Q Who farmed that place? That was farmed, too, wasn't it?

A We hired help as far as that goes.

Q You had fertilizer on the farm?

A When fertilizer came to one place it generally came to both.

Q Did you have that fertilizer for the farm on which you lived, or Guy's place?

A I say when it came to one it came to both. That is the way it generally went.

Q On this occasion you referred to, is that the way it did?

A Well, I wasn't over on the other place. I imagine it come.

Q You don't know whether it did or not?

A Well, it generally come to our place when it come to the other place.

Q That was when both farms were being farmed under the supervision of your husband? A. Yes.

✓ Q After April 1, 1941, Mr. Guy Stull never gave his father any share of the crops, did he?

A We didn't get so much off the year before. That's the reason Daddy said there would have to be a change made.

✓ Q But he didn't get anything after April 1, 1941?

A Indeed he didn't. Well, April 1, 1941, wasn't there a little corn brought over when Daddy was sick? When Daddy was sick there was a little bit of corn brought over there, yes, sir.

Q A little corn?

A Yes. How much corn was brought over there from the other place, Ray?

A Just answer the question.

A It was about two truck loads. Mr. Nevin Stull hauled it.

Q Had the 1940 crop all been delivered - your husband's share - had that been delivered to him prior to that time?

A We didn't get anything. We didn't get no wheat crop the year before.
