

- Q. Why didn't you.
- A. I had to heat the other property.
- Q. Have you ever received an account of the rents collected from Hardy since this statement of your sister's?
- A. I have not had any statement at all since Radcliff sent letters out to the tenants.
- Q. You say you never had any agreement with your brother and sister as to the expenses on the furnace?
- A. No.
- Q. You changed from one-third to one-half in April of 1947?
- A. Yes, It was too much on me. I paid out too much.
- Q. In other words it is more difficult to heat Nos. 6, 8, and 10 than No. 1 South Maple Street?
- A. Yes.
- Q. Why?
- A. You got pipes running from No. 1 South Maple Street underneath clear over to No. 6, rented by Hardy.
- Q. In your opinion is one-half a fair charge against them?
- A. Yes, sir. It is.
- Q. What is the size of Phillip's office?
- A. Not as large as this room.
- Q. Is the restaurant as large as the jewelry store?
- A. No, it is not.
- Q. Is the restaurant as large as the barber shop?
- A. Larger, but smaller than the jewelry store.
- Q. This apartment occupied by Ray Main on the second floor is a considerable distance from the furnace?
- A. Yes, sir. Maybe forty feet, might be more.
- Q. In your opinion is it harder to heat Ray Main's apartment than No. 1 South Maple St.?
- A. Yes, sir.
