

the day after he died.

Q That's all.

Q (Mr. Brown) Did you go to Mr. Tebbs' office and tell him it was not necessary for him to file this bill in Equity; did you go to his office?

A Are you talking of the paper that was sent to them, or what paper are you talking about?

THE COURT: No, he means this bill for the sale of the property in Court.

A They came out there - that paper was in the making as I understand at that time - my sister Rachel and Helen were at my place, and my brother promised me he would go to Mr. Tebbs' office, and we waited two hours and he didn't show up. We tried as far as we could go. I would like, if I am entitled to anything, I would like to know whether I am going to get anything or not, or let it go down the drain like everything else.

Q (The Court) You have heard your brother Ralph Valentine testify as to who were the next of kin - the brothers and sisters and so forth?

A I have.

Q Is his testimony correct on that line?

A Yes, that is correct.

Q What do you feel is a fair value of the farm?

A Before the first day of April we had a man would give--

Q Not what somebody may give you; what do you feel--

A I have no idea.

Q You have no idea; that is all you have to say. Do you feel that it is necessary that the property be sold in order to divide up the proceeds?

A If we can't agree and nobody wants to agree, that is the only thing I can see to be done.

Q And you can't agree, is that correct?

A That is impossible, because they want entirely more than the property is worth, the way I understand it.
