

Q All you had reference to would be some little household property?

A Yes, as far as I know. I never knew the man before his wife died.

Q Are you acquainted with his real estate in Brunswick?

A Yes.

Q And will you state fully and at large its location, its character and worth?

A Well, it is located on Walnut Street and I forget the name of that avenue goes up by there - I don't know whether that is Dayton Avenue or not. Walnut Street is the street right along the railroad, and it is right on the corner of an avenue. I believe that is called Dayton Avenue.

Q Will you state its character and its value?

A Well, it is a right large house - I wouldn't like to say how large - two-story house. I think it is in an L shape, as well as I recall. It looks very disreputable on the outside. I was there just day before yesterday and I didn't go inside of it, but it is in deplorable shape on the outside. It looks very bad. Then there is a little building built in the yard, oh I suppose possibly might be as much as 16 x 20 or 24, something like that, built back in the yard away from this, because it looks to me like they had two lots - I am pretty sure they do - two lots there.

Q Then there are two buildings on the property?

A On the property.

Q Can you state the value of each building or the property as a whole, approximately?

A I would hate to try to do that, because that kind of property in Brunswick brings but very little. I would imagine - I doubt extremely whether the entire property would bring as much as $1,000. It is just left run down. That is all there is to it.

Q Do you know anything about the tenants or anything about their pay?
