

him out there, but if I recall rightly, I think his first wife was buried out there.

Q. What business was he employed at in Brunswick?

A. I don't know if he was on W.P.A. or not. I rather suppose he was on W. P. A. At the time of his wife's death I know he was in rather desperate circumstances, and her sister from down in Virginia said that she would help pay that funeral bill, and she did. I don't remember how she paid it any more, but she did.

(The Court) I think you allege that there are two frame houses, one marked 413 Walnut Street and the other 415 Walnut Street, is that correct?

A. I guess that's about right.

Q. And you think they would only be worth about $1,000 altogether? A. I would imagine.

Q. (Mr. Claggett) Would you be willing to pay that much?

A. No, not me.

Q. (The Court) The one is of considerably more value than the other?

A. Oh, the large house would be. The other one was built just as a summer kitchen, out in the yard.

Q. To the Gen. Interrogatory?

A. I don't know anything else of interest. You see I am hardly acquainted with it and would be hard to give you any other information.
