

was running too close to the house.

Q. This State Roads Commission Plat #8937 shows the location of this two story brick dwelling we are talking about?

A. This is the house, right here. Yes.

Q. Is that just above the printed legend on the one side of the plat?

A. Yes.

MR. NEWMAN:

Q. There is a line on the plat marked "right of way line and existing right of way line", isn't there?

A. That is what it says there.

Q. That line goes through the front of the dwelling on the plat, does it not?

A. This line, yes.

Q. And from this plat, 3-1/2 or 4 feet of the dwelling would be out in the road and the stone walk would be out in the road.

A. This stone business right here - the stones as far as I know have always been there and the porch joined right here. This open area is where the porch extended.

Mr. Storm: You are referring to the cross mark on the plat?

A. Yes. This always had two stones out here. This has been done since the porch has come off.

MR. NEWMAN:

Q. What do you mean?

A. This drawing has been made -- prior to that this came straight out here and up to the corner of the house and that was right on this line right here.

Mr. Storm: Which line are you referring to?

A. This. The iron fence here is between the <sup>big</sup>maple tree and right here. Here is the iron fence. The stone wall I put in I joined it right on to the fence right here. I joined it on to the iron fence. The iron fence had a gate on the right hand side of the tree and there was always space enough between the tree and the fence to run a lawnmower and the gate joined on the porch and the ironpost is still there and the porch ran up to the end of the property. We only owned six feet in front of that property and that is why the porch was so narrow. It was too narrow hardly even to sit on. But that is why we had a narrow porch.

MR. NEWMAN:

Q. That is what you have learned through family conversations?
