The humble Petition of Robert Carville Sheweth.

That your petitioner according to his bounden Duty hath often humbly supplicated your L^{sp}: for your L^{sps} grace and favour to be extended to him, knowing that if your L^{sp}: continue to proceed with the rigour of Justice against him, it will tend to the ruine of your pet^r and family: That your L^{sps} designed voyage for England (to which your Pet^r doth heartily wish a prosperous hon^{ble} and happy success, and safe returne) hath left your Pet^r, this onely oportunity of addressing himself to your L^{sps} clemency, and he humbly begs pardon for this Importunity dreading the consequence of being thus left by your L^{sp} with the remarks of your L^{sps} displeasure towards him, assureing your L^{sp}: that he shall not be wanting according to his ability to emprove your L^{sps} bounty and mercy to the Advancem^t of your L^{sps} Hono^r and Interest herein what becomes the duty of a good Subject and a Christian.

Your Pet^r therefore humbly beseeches your L^{sp} will be
 p. 85 graciously pleased to readmitt your Pet^r to his practice of an Attourney and ord^r his Recognizance of good behaviour to be withdrawne, and accept of such composition for his ffind as your L^{sp}: in your charitable benignity shall consider off
